(ADDITIONAL LOCAL NEWS ON FIRST PAGE.)

Holloween—The Night and its Observance.

Next to Christmas and New Years nights, perhaps no night in all the year is so merry and wild a night as that of the 31st of October, All Hollow's Eve, or Holloween, as it is called by all its observers. This is the night of all others in the year, when gay and fantastic, but oftentimes badly frightened superstitution runs riot, absolutely without stint among the young people of both sexes, and some of the observances which mark the occasion are so whimsical and absurd that one is at a loss to imagine how any one not afflicted with a mild insanity could ever have invented them.

It is evident that the observance of this night is of pagan origin, as there is nothing in church beliefs to warrant any such goings on as obtain in its commemoration. The leading idea of the time seems to be that is in the night, of all others, for supernatural manifestations and influences. It is the night set apart for the walking abroad of spirits, both of this and the invisible worlds, for be it known, the ghosts and goblins from beyond the grave are not the only ones that walk on that night, but when the devoted observer of the mystic rites is sufficiently under the influences that he has conjured, he becomes insensible—temporarily dead—and his own spirit, leaving his body, goes forth on an exploring expedition of its own, returning with stores of uncanny knowledge.

Throughout the countries of Europe there is a singular uniformity in the customs marking the observance of Halloween. Principle among these customs are those in which nuts and apples are employed: indeed, so prominent are nuts as a feature of the occasion, that the night is in some localities called Nutcrack Night. Burns, in his poem on Halloween, thus celebrates this feature of the ceremonies:

The auld guidwife's well-hoordit nits
Are round and round divided,
And mony lads and lasses' fates
Are there that night decided.
Some kindle couthie, side by side,
And burn together trimly;
Some start away wi' saucy pride
And jump out owre the chimly
Fu' high that night.

Jean slips in twa wi' tentie e'e;
Wha 'twas she wadna tell,
But this is Jock as this is me
She says to her heart'
He blinket owre her and she owre him
As they wad never mair part,
Till fire't her start-d up the lum
And heard nae mair at a'.

Brand in his Popular Antiquities says: "It is a custom in Ireland when the young women would know if their lovers are faithful, to put three nuts upon the bars of the grate, naming the nuts after their lovers. If a nut cracks or jumps the lover will prove unfaithful; if it begins to blaze or burn, he has regard for the person making the trial. If the nuts named after the girl and her lover burn together, they will be married.

There is an old custom which still prevails in some localities in the celebration of this merry night, in which an apple is the "medium of manifestations." A stick is hung up horizontally by a string from the ceiling, and a candle placed on one end and an apple on the other. The stick is rapidly twirled about, and as it revolves, the merry ones of the party jump up one after the other in wild attempts to snatch the apple off the stick with their teeth, no use of hands being permitted. It falls out, however, that the faces more frequently come in contact with the candle than the apple, and much scorching of hair and eyebrows and much smearing with tallow and lampblack are the result, to the great amusement of the spectators. This queer observance seems to have been invented by some person with an inventive brain for grotesque fun, for with not the slightest tinge of the superstition that has given it such significance in most of the observances which mark the night.

The same is true of that other custom concerning apples, which prevails among the juvenilies of some regions. A tub is filled with water, and a number of apples put afloat in it. The youngsters then, one after another, dash their heads into the water in the deepest endeavor to catch the tantalizing fruit in their mouths. Of course unbounded fun, both to participants and spectators, results.

Among the customs still retained by the young people of Scotland is that of kail pulling. Two young people go out blindfolded, hand in hand, to the kail-garden, and each pulls the first stalk of kail or colewort that is met with. They take the prizes back with them to the fireside, and there interpret them. According as the stalks are big or little, crooked or straight, such shall be the future husband or wife of the holder of the stalk. The amount of earth clinging to the roots of kail indicates the amount of fortune to come with the bride or groom, and as the pith of the stalk is sweet or bitter, so shall the temper be of the coming man or woman.

Another device for settling matrimonial doubts is the "three dishes." Three basins are set side by side on the hearth. One is empty, one is full of clean water, and one is full of dirty water. The inquirer comes up blindfold and dips his finger at random into one or other of the dishes. If he dips into the clean water he will marry a maid; if into the dirty water, a widow; but if into the empty dish, he shall forever remain in single blessedness.

There are other customs that are anything but slight and merry as those who have submitted—customs so weird and fearful that their observance has been known to create those who had the nerve to carry them out. One of these is a spell familiar to all, that of eating an apple before a looking glass, with the prospect of seeing reflected in the glass the future face of the future husband or wife peering over the shoulder of the eater.

Another of these uncanny ceremonies is to wet a shirt sleeve and hang it out before a fire to dry, the owner meanwhile lying in bed watching it. At midnight the apparition of the future husband or wife enters the room and turns the sleeve. Burns, in one of his songs, makes this mention of the custom:

"The last Halloween I was waukin'
My droukit sark sleeve, as ye ken.
His likeness cam' up the house staukin,
And the very gray breeks of Tam Glenn."

There are numerous other weird performances, all having the same object, viz: the conjuration of the spirit of the future wife or husband.

Among the superstitions most strongly believed in is the faith that on each Hallowmas Eve Halloween is gifted with mysterious faculties, such as second sight and the ability to hold converse with disembodied spirits and supernatural beings.

The observances among us have their origin among those of the old world, and are by no means so generally practiced in this country as in England, Ireland and Scotland. For the most part, like most of the customs which have been transplanted from Europe to America, the ceremonies of Halloween have become, among us only the shadow of their original substance. To fully lack the body of genuine belief that gives them a substantial existence among the old world peasantry. Here they are practiced because we have heard them described, and any make-believe superstition languishes.

Nevertheless, belief or no belief, so long as Halloween is made the occasion of social gatherings and merry making, so long will it be a jolly time to be wished for and made the most of. So we wish all our readers to-night a bonny HALLOWEEN.

Supreme Court.

Yesterday morning the Supreme Court met at nine o'clock. Judge Strong was absent, but except him a full bench was present.

Burford vs. McGee; Armstrong county. Argument concluded by E. S. Golden, for plaintiff in error.

Eccles vs. Stewart, et. al.; Westmoreland county. Argued by Laird, for plaintiff in error, and by Foster, contra.

Hiener vs. Hiltz; Westmoreland county. Argued by Laird, for plaintiff in error, and Foster, contra.

Allegheny Valley Railroad Co. vs. Templeton; Armstrong county. Argued by Golden, for plaintiff in error, and Foster, contra.

Adjourned until to-day.

A Domestic Spat.

Frederick Merton was before Alderman Lynch, yesterday, charged with beating and abusing his wife, Catherine Merton, in a shameful manner, and without just cause or provocation. Frederick attempted to defend himself by showing that Catherine had given him ample provocation by scolding him like a virago on the slightest pretext, but the magistrate had the good sense to know, as all rational men do, that the power of speech is woman's only weapon for offensive and defensive warfare, and he therefore held Frederick to bail in the sum of $300 as security for his appearance at a further hearing to be had in the case on Saturday. As both parties left the office considerably mollified, it is to be presumed that the affair will be amicably adjusted.

Spot Alm.

The Bedford Inquirer says: An individual calling himself Samuel Saunders, has been travelling extensively in this county for the ostensible purpose of raising money to erect a State monument to the heroes who fell at Gettysburg. The scoundrel succeeded in getting a large sum of money out of our citizens. He was suspicioned very sharply of being a swindler in St. Clair township, and was arrested, but succeeded in making his escape from an upper story of the residence of Gideon D. Trout, Esq., on Tuesday night, the 16th inst., by fastening a blanket and letting himself down. He was dressed in a black cloth suit, is supposed to be about five feet eight inches in height, with heavy black mustaches and whiskers. It is supposed that he had succeeded in collecting several thousand dollars.

The Wooster University.—The Ohio Synod of the Old School Presbyterian Church, which closed its session at Wooster last week, agreed to locate their proposed University at that place, provided the citizens of Wayne county will contribute one hundred thousand dollars to erect the buildings. The Republican says that all but fifteen thousand dollars of the amount has been subscribed, and the remainder has been pledged by the committee having charge of the subscription. The Building Committee of the University expect to organize in December, and take immediate measures for erecting the buildings.

District Court.—District Court met yesterday morning at the usual hour, and the case of Wm. Parkinson vs. Wm. H. Brown, ejectment, on trial on Monday, was resumed. It occupied the attention of the Court during the entire day, and will probably not be finished before to-morrow, as the case for the defense had just opened at the time of adjournment last evening.

Common Pleas.—Court met at the usual hour yesterday morning, but there was nothing to do, and the Court adjourned until ten o'clock this morning, when License Court will sit. To-morrow morning it is probable that the Criminal Court argument list will be taken up.

Large Losses.—There have been two millions of dollars worth of property, in the oil region, destroyed by fire within a year.

Special Caution.—Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup has become so popular that various parties have put out articles calling them Mrs. Winslows. Please take notice that the Mrs. Winslow of the soothing Syrup is not connected with any other article. wlt&w

EARLY TELEGRAMS.

FENIAN EXCITEMENT.

Canadian Volunteers Demand the Death of the Raiders—Excitement in Cincinnati.

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—The Herald's Toronto special says: General excitement exists among the military organizations, who are strictly opposed to leniency to the Fenian prisoners. The "Queen's Own" will circulate a petition denouncing those who show the white feather at the holding of William H. Seward.

The Herald's Ottawa special says the threats of vengeance by the Fenians should Lynch be executed, is creating great excitement there. The volunteers at Ridgeway demand the death of the raiders while others oppose it, believing that war with the United States would follow the execution.

CINCINNATI, Oct. 30.—The Fenians of this city assembled in large numbers at their Armory last evening. Great excitement was manifested over the news from Toronto and Washington. Many of those who participated in the Buffalo expedition were present. Head Centre Fitzgerald mustered into service four full companies of men. Arrangements have been completed for uniforming and arming as many as may be mustered in.

General Sherman and the War Office—Departure of Minister Campbell—The Withdrawal of French Troops to Commence Next Month.

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—The Herald's Washington special says: General Grant is anxious that General Sherman should assume the portfolio of Mr. Stanton, in order that he may have the hearty co-operation of the war office in the work of organizing the army. Gen Sherman, it is reported, does not aspire to the position, and Gen. Grant hopes to have Gen. Steadman nominated for the position.

The Times' Washington special says: Colonel Campbell, United States Minister to Mexico, has left that city with credentials to the Juarez Government, and with full instructions conforming with the tripartite arrangement already announced between the United States, France and the Republic of Mexico. Napoleon is to commence the withdrawal of the French army from Mexico next month, and it is probable the whole army will be withdrawn by the first of January next. Of course Maximilian leaves also.

Our Government will extend to the Juarez Government a protectorate to be operative and ready in case of emergency. In order to accomplish this a military officer of high rank will go with Col. Campbell, and both General Sherman and General Hancock are spoken of in this connection. In consideration of these friendly offices, Mexican territory will be ceded to the United States which will give us the whole of Lower California, together with Sonora and Chihuahua.

Surrender of Indians—Body of Lieutenant Rhodes.

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—A Herald's special dated Fort Garland, (Col.,) October 11th, says: A band of Utah Indians have surrendered to General Carson.

The Santa Fe Mexican says: The body of Lieutenant Rhodes, who mysteriously disappeared several weeks since, has been found. It was found he had been shot.

Outrages by the Ute Indians.

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—The Tribune's Leavenworth special says the Denver papers publish accounts of the most horrible atrocities perpetrated by the Ute Indians.
