If this plan shall work, it will then re main to determine whether the black vo ters will fall under the influence of their old masters, or will be mainly swayed by new men. As we look at the case, the chances are eagerly in favor of the old masters. They are experts in political management, and know when to yield gracefully as well as when to press an advantage to the uttermost. I: would be a benefit to the blacks to have their white neighbors thus dependent on their good will.
