THE RIGHTS OF WAR.

When the Boston Post decides that "making Territories of States" is "a revolutionary measure," we are not disposed to dissent from its judgment; but, when it goes on to assert that "THADDEUS STEVENS is the father of this measure," we do not concur, unless the imputation is used in a sense so restricted as to deprive it of purgency. Who opened the door for "revolutionary measures?" Nay, made such measures indispensable to the life of the nation and the proper security of personal liberty? When eleven States rushed into rebellion they well understood what chances they invoked, and what hazards they incurred. They did not consider it possible to so order matters that, being successful, they should force a solution by arms upon the loyal people and States, and, being defeated, should reserve all legal rights and remedies for their own advantage. (War is not a one-sided affair. In it there are blows to take, as well as blows to give. It pays little heed to those microscopic distinctions with which lawyers are prone to puzzle their wits.

When the Confederate armies surrendered, all of the eleven revolted States became "conquered territories." Much of domain included within their respective boundaries had been conquered long before. The people of those States had no other conception of the situation, for none other was admissible. It would be absurd for a horse thief to imagine that by surrendering to the Sheriff he avoided the penalties consequent on his crime. A thief, with only sense enough to make him responsible for larceny, would naturally infer that by surrendering he would be in a way certainly to get his deserts. This was precisely the expectation of the rebels when their means of resistance gave out and they succumbed. For a while, they were ready to assent to any conditions their conquerors should impose. Some of their northern sympathizers, who had defended the rights of secession, both as mutual and constitutional, began parading sophistical arguments to demonstrate that secession was impossible, and, being so, that no forfeiture of rights had been incurred. The rebels took the hint, and soon grew arrogant. Instead of supplicating, they made demands. Instead of accepting thankfully the magnanimity of the government, they undertook conspicuously at Memphis, New Orleans, and elsewhere to crush out, by the most sanguinary measures, all the genuine friends of the Union they could lay murderous hands upon.

This change of demeanor wrought a corresponding alteration in the temper of the Northern populations. Thoughts of lenity, impulses of compassion, and dispositions to cover the past with the mantle of oblivion, were put aside, not willingly, but because some degree of severity seemed necessary to preserve order, to ensure tranquility, to maintain the just authority of the laws, and render free institutions permanent. The idea of regarding the revolted States as "conquered territories," as rightful spoils of war, is not only logical, but is forced upon the acceptance of millions whose benevolent sentiments make them loth to press advantages against a fallen enemy. So, too, intelligent foreigners, who, at first, thought the government ought to treat the rebellion as a wild escapade, the result of exuberant youth and vigor, are taking soberer views of the situation.

The London Times, enlightened by the sojourn of its chief proprietor in this country, recants its former position, and asserts the rights the federal government has acquired under the laws of war. It says, "It is a simple fact that the land south of Mason and Dixon's line, once parceled out into States, forming parts of the Union, is now a conquered territory, lying in the hands of the conquerers, and awaiting their disposition of it anew." If it were not so, the Times argues, it would have been impossible to carve Western Virginia out of the Old Dominion." Having made this broad assertion, the writer then declares that "South Carolina is now nothing more than a geographical expression." The continuity of the life of each Southern Commonwealth is absolutely broken, and when South Carolina comes it must come just as Utah or Idaho might be admitted. It must start afresh, and President and Congress have just the same liberty—in determining when and under what conditions it shall start afresh—as in determining when and under what conditions Utah shall be entitled to become a member of the Union." To this it adds, by way of advice, "It will, no doubt, be wise in admitting into the Federal Union, States from the South, to adhere to the old boundaries; but there is no compulsion to do so."

To this general treatment of the case American statesmen are rapidly gravitating. This is the meaning of Mr. STEVENS' bill to organize North Carolina as a Territory, and of Mr. JULIAN's bill to erect territorial governments for each of the seceding States. Whether either of these measures will actually prevail will depend upon the conduct of the Southern people. Mr. WADE, and not a few with him, incline to the prompt readmission of the Southern States so soon as they shall respectively ratify the Constitutional Amendment. But, in assuming this position they clearly recognize the fact that those States are "conquered territories," and that conditions may consequently be imposed on them now to which they could not be made to submit but for their participation in the revolt. If either of the revolted States shall refuse or fail to adopt the amendment, it follows that Mr. WADE and those who concur with him, will be prepared to use the rights acquired by war to any extent that may be requisite. Mr. SUMNER, on the other hand, shows a disposition not to let any of the insurgent States off upon consenting to the Amendment. There is no difference here, in principle, between Mr. WADE and Mr. SUMNER, but only a difference as to the extent to which the principle shall be pressed.

THE Committee of the American Tract Society, unable to meet the constant demands made on them from all parts of the country, issued an appeal a few weeks since for a publication fund of $100,000, on condition that $50,000 be raised before January 1st, 1867. Of this amount $40,000 has been subscribed, leaving $10,000 to be secured during the coming week. A benevolent banker in Philadelphia offers to be one of ten to give the $10,000.

EDITORIAL BREVITIES.

John George Ryan is the name of the fellow who edits the Indicator at Pine Bluffs, Arkansas. He gives the following as a specimen brick to gain patronage and support of the reconstructed rebels of the South:

"I am not inclined to be an assassin, but, if to destroy a tyrant is assassination, then I would destroy the tyrant. As it has been proved, President Lincoln was the elected head and voluntary servant of the Radicals, who purposed the destruction of the South, and, in a measure, succeeded in their hellish designs. I was opposed to, and fought against Lincoln and his tyrants, and ever will. When the news of his death reached me, I rejoiced. When I learned that a man who never identified himself with the Confederate cause, struck the tyrant blow, I thanked God that he had selected an instrument, from the heart of radicalism, right under the tyrant's guns, to deprive America of a Radical tool.

"And when I laid down my arms, after a bloody struggle for independence, I thanked God from the fullness of my heart, that Abraham Lincoln did not live to mock our misery."

We askin the name of common decency if such a vile traitor should be permitted to again take a seat in the councils of the nation?

THE press in England make considerable ado about the election to Parliament of a Mr. Kavenaugh, who has neither arms nor legs. We have seen stranger things here. Men without brains have been chosen to more important positions.

A letter to the Boston Journal from Washington says:

"A quiet, but well organized move is being made to bring out Mr. Colfax as a Republican candidate for President, with Senator Howard, of Michigan, as Vice President."

ILLICIT distillers of spirits continue to be turned up by Government detectives in New York and Brooklyn. It would be consoling if we knew that they were as certain of punishment as the whiskies they turned out.

Stoves have been successfully introduced into the street cars in many of the neighboring cities. We do not see why some of our enterprising companies do not follow the good example.

A COUPLE of thieves have been arrested at Jeffersonville, Ky., for robbing the Penitentiary. In all probability the future will show that they have stolen from their own residences.

MR. THOMAS PARROT started from Texas with four hundred horses to drive to Kentucky, on speculation. Two hundred were taken on sight—by thieves on the roadside.

A PRISONER, while being tried in a New York city court for the larceny of a large sum of money, managed to make his escape.

The present bonded debt of Michigan is $3,979,921.25, and the increase in consequence of the war is $1,591,078.40.

PETITIONS, numerously signed, are in circulation at Chicago for the pardon of the murderess, Mollie Trussell.

THE GREAT MEDICAL ANNUAL—Hostetter's United States Almanac for 1867, for distribut'on, GRATIS, throughout the United States and all civilized countries of the Western Hemisphere, will be published about the 1st of January, and all who wish to understand the true philosophy of health should read and ponder the valuable suggestions it contains. In addition to an admirable medical treatise on the causes, prevention and cure of every variety of disease, it embraces a large amount of information interesting to the merchant, the mechanic, the miner, the farmer, and professional man; and the calculations have been made for various climates and latitudes as are most suitable for a correct and comprehensive NATIONAL CALENDER.

The nature, uses, and extraordinary medicinal virtues of HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS, the staple remedy and alterative more than half the Christian world are fully set forth in its pages, which are also interspersed with valuable recipes, humorous anecdotes, and other instructive and amusing reading matter, original and selected. Among the Annuals to appear with the opening of the year, this will be one of the most useful, and MAY BE HAD FOR THE ASKING. Send for copies to the Central Manufactory at Pittsburgh, Pa., or to the nearest agent for HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS. The Bitters are sold in every city, town and village of the United States.

PROCLAMATION.

CITY OF PITTSBURGH, SS.

In accordance with the provisions of an act of the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, providing for the incorporation of the City of Pittsburgh, and of the various supplements to said act, I, William C. McCarthy, Mayor of said City, do issue this my Proclamation, that on the first Tuesday in January, A. D. 1867, being the first day of the month, the freemen of each ward of said city qualified to vote for members of the House of Representatives of this Commonwealth, will meet at the several places for holding elections in their respective wards and precincts, and elect by ballot, under the provisions of an act of Assembly passed the 8th day of May, A. D. 1857, and in conformity to the above civil authorities, and also to the Ordinances of Councils distributing said city.

The citizens of the First ward will elect, by ballot, one person to be a member of the Select Council of said city for two years, and two persons to be members of the Common Council for one year.
