Letter from Dr. Hobert Hunt New York-No. 1,

Trom Pr. Hobert Humber, of New York—No. I.

The Westlers of the Gastler-Sta: The history of the various methods of treatment employading the or Consumption, and the fatters of the various methods of treatment om ployading its provention and cure; induce me to believe that a series of plain and practical Letter for the emesory whiter its produced, and the best means of arresting its progress and effecting its removal, will be appreciated by all classes of your readers.

For the past fifteen years I have devoted myself exclusively to the clucidation and treatment of Pulmonary Complaints, and can theratore speak with confidence on the success of the method of mailcation I. recommend. Hyery addition to the stock of can therefore speak with consucere on increase as success of the method of medication I recommond. Hyery addition to the stock of medical experience is beneficial to mankind and capacially so with reference to the success which produce, the precentions which will precent, and the remodulal means which will sure so great a scourge as Consumption.

Consumption is not only the most common and most fatal disease known to on mon and most fatal disease known to car race, but it is also probably the one less understood by the public. Even the best informed people are, still ignorant of the condition of the system in which it takes rise, and of the carly symptoms by which its approach may be known. The public news journals coatain specches, sermons, and extracts from moral, religious and scinntific books—articles on government, comments are an ord on the laws of trade—but seldom a word on the laws of the fact. This negative policy may have added to the social status and dignity of the medical profession, but it undeabtedly has proved most fatal to mankind.

These considerations have induced ine to propare a series of letters on Catarrh, Bronnitts, Consumption and Assima; and, in Earl Russell consures the America has gased the House of Lords.
