UNION REPUBLICAN NOMINATION.

FOR JUDGE OF SUPREME COURT:

HON. H. W. WILLIAMS,

Of Allegheny County.

THE SPECIAL SESSION OF CONGRESS.

Congress will convene in special session on Wednesday next. As is generally understood, the immediate reason for the assembling of the Houses at this time is the interpretation put upon the Reconstruction Acts by the Attorney General, and the attempt by the President to give that interpretation the force of law. This convocation under the existing circumstances, affords incontestible proof that the Executive Department, under a pretense of construing the laws, is really intent on abrogating them. None of the Senators or Representatives desired a mid-summer meeting; with perfect unanimity they hoped to avoid it. But they knew what they designed, and what they actually expressed, when they framed and passed the laws in question; and they now feel that the President, failing to defeat the will of the representative bodies by the use of the veto power, has resolved arbitrarily to set the laws aside, while merely claiming to expound them.

This indicates the immediate task to which Congress will address itself. Its first object will be, by a Supplemental Act, to veto the President and the Attorney General, and in a manner that shall constrain them, however reluctantly, to respect the will of the nation, as embodied in the laws. Care will, doubtless, be taken to protect those district commanders whose sense of duty has led them to enforce the Reconstruction Acts in their obvious meaning, and who have thereby fallen under the displeasure of the President.

An effort will most likely be made to lay new and harsher conditions on the Southern States and people. It seems to us nothing has transpired to warrant or excuse increased severity. In no proper sense can the revolted States or their inhabitants be held answerable for the temper and conduct of the President and his constitutional advisers in the matter that now attracts attention. While it cannot be denied that many Southern men would gladly have the laws enforced as the President is pleased to understand them, rather than as Congress intended, and which it is palpable that some of them have appealed to the President to interpose with a high hand to frustrate the plain meaning of the laws, the great majority, including many of the most foremost and influential, have exhibited on all occasions a willingness to submit to the prescribed conditions. The testimony is pretty uniform that, notwithstanding some untoward indications, which demonstrate the wisdom of Congress and show the necessity of adhering to the existing laws, in the spirit in which they were conceived, much progress has been made in the work of Reconstruction, and that the consummation will transpire at an early day if the President shall be compelled to keep within the line of his duty.

So, too, it is not improbable the effort will be made to further the impeachment of the President. He has certainly played into the hands of those who love him not, and made it more apparent than ever before that he is not a man fit to be trusted with large measures of authority. But he has not gone to the extreme point at which he aimed in making the movement which aroused the indignation of the nation. Instead of ordering the military commanders to adopt his interpretation of the laws, he has stopped short by simply requesting them to perform particular acts, which they feel to be in contravention of the meaning of Congress. It may be urged, and not without pertinency, that "the request of a king is equivalent to a command." But for the attitude of the people and the convocation of Congress, these presidential requests would have the effect of positive orders. Still, the President has so far receded, as in the popular judgment—perhaps in a technical sense likewise—not to have thrust himself into flagrant and criminal antagonism with Congress. His achievement has fallen short of his original purpose.

In some quarters, and those not altogether without influence upon the course of public affairs, it is urged that Congress should revise or abrogate the National Banking System, and even proceed so far as to remodel the whole financial policy. The weak points of the Banking System are subjected to slashing criticism, many of the Banks are declared to be insolvent, and a speedy crash is oracularly predicted. That the Banks have altogether the better of the Government in the bargain between them as contracting parties, hardly admits of debate. Every man of reflection and judgment, who has bestowed thought upon the matter, knows this to be the fact. Here and there a Bank has given evidence that its directors were incompetent or dishonest; perhaps smitten with both infirmities. But, on the whole, the system has so worked as not to create a necessity for giving it precipitate attention at the adjourned session. It is better, on all accounts, to let financial questions rest until the regular term in December. This postponement will have a good effect upon all sorts of business pursuits during the summer and fall. It is of vital consequence that the new crops should be harvested and reach the markets in good part, before unnecessary financial uncertainties are introduced to impede the process.

We doubt not that, in substance, the views herein expressed will prove to be those of a majority of the members of the two Houses. Consequently a session of only a few days may be anticipated. The immediate and pressing work will be done, and well done, and no more will be entered upon.

THE SHERIDAN LETTER.

The democratic journals are deeply exercised over the contents of General SHERIDAN's letter to Gen. GRANT, and over the circumstances that it appeared in print before reaching the table of the superior officer to whom it was addressed. The contents they allege evince insubordination towards the President as the commander-in-chief of the army; the publication of it discourtesy towards Gen. GRANT, as next in military rank to the President. In thus setting up as critics upon good manners in general, and upon military etiquette in special, the democratic journals have taken the country by surprise. But this must be taken as another illustration of the constantly recurring fact, that people are prone to plume themselves in matters of taste, on points of which they actually know nothing.

Let us see how the case really stand in respect to the President. That high functionary, instead of ordering Gen. SHERIDAN to extend the time for registration, simply directed him to do so unless, in his own judgment, good reasons existed for not doing so. Such reasons did exist in the mind of the General, and he frankly stated what they were; but added, that if the President, after considering the reasons, deemed them insufficient, he would, upon notification to that effect, immediately issue orders to extend the time. So far, there is no reasonable pretext for the charge of insubordination. The President left the matter to the discretion of the General, and the General did as he thought best, but still deferring to the judgment of the President.

Gen. SHERIDAN ventured to say that he had been "ordered to execute a law to which the President has been in bitter antagonism." Nobody will deny that this statement is literally correct. The President put his antagonism to the law on record in his veto message, and has made no concealment since. Is it an act of insubordination to state a fact which all the world knows, and which no one presumes to deny?

General SHERIDAN might have gone farther, and insisted that the President had no business to interfere with his execution of the law according to his best judgment. He is at New Orleans to enforce the law as it stands; not as the President may see proper to construe it. The law is his guide, not the will of the Executive. We doubt not, before many days shall elapse, Congress will make this point so plain that even the President will see it, and comprehend that he is guilty of insubordination in attempting to control the district commanders in the performance of this particular duty.

It is not conceivable that Gen. SHERIDAN intended any disrespect to General GRANT in publishing the letter as soon as it was dispatched. Unquestionably it was important the determination not to extend the time for registration should be known to the people, and the publication of the letter seemed to be the best method for making the condition of the case understood. General SHERIDAN took one view of the requirement of military civility in the premises, while Gen. GRANT is reported to take another. Which of them would be adjudged right by a Board of army officers it is not our province to determine. In private matters, however, we have always found it a safe rule not to attribute an act to disrespect unless the attending circumstances make it clear that disrespect is intended.

In his course at New Orleans, General SHERIDAN has the sympathies of most loyal men warmly enlisted in his support; and his removal because of the letter in question will be popularly judged an act of unpardonable severity.

AT ST. LOUIS, Mr. Chandler, U. S. Senator for Michigan, reiterated, with larger amplifications, his proposition for seizing Canada. This time, he was content with nothing less than the whole continent. He was for seizing territory at the South as well as at the North, until the whole continent should be absorbed. However, he seemed to have Mr. Webster's escapade in mind. That gentleman, in his cups, once proposed to seize Canada on the next fourth of July. When he sobered, he discovered he had made a fool of himself, and betook himself to the task of explaining away his folly. Certainly, he would seize Canada provided Great Britain did not do what was right, and would make the seizure, not on the next fourth of July, but on some anniversary of the national independence. So Mr. Chandler avows his purpose to steal all the territory he covets, on the right hand and on the left, but does not mean to consummate the villainy this year. He is in no hurry about it. One year, two years or five years hence will do; or even more, if the proper time happens not to turn up.

Mr. Chandler will find a strong sentiment of common honesty in the Republican ranks, standing in the way of his projects of grand larceny, whenever he shall undertake to put them into execution.

Doubtless the American people will sustain their Government in enforcing the Alabama claims; but they have little respect for a Senator who proposes that the negotiation shall be prosecuted with an uplifted bludgeon. Gentlemen do not attempt the adjustment of differences in that manner; nor do they yield to threats of violence which only ruffians are capable of making.

LEGISLATIVE CANDIDATES.

EDITORS GAZETTE:—Two editorial leaders in your paper of late have attracted my attention with much force, "Legislative Corruption" and "Legislative Candidates." I consider your strictures timely and just.

It is a burning shame and disgrace that a people as intelligent and moral as those of this Commonwealth should be so miserably mis represented in the halls of her Legislature.

You have some good men and true, but the majority are weak, immoral and totally unfit for the places they occupy.

It is high time the people should arise and take the business of nominating and electing candidates for the Legislature into their own hands, instead of leaving it to office seekers, who are intent on nothing but to serve their own ambitious purposes for filthy lucre's sake, or the name of holding an office.

In our county a nomination by the Republican party is equivalent to an election. With the ambitious office seeker, then, the chief end is to be nominated. To accomplish this, his time, money and friends are taxed sufficiently to secure the end. Time, he generally has, for politics is his business. He may be short of money, but that can be made up if he gets the nomination. As to friends, he finds them by promising to do a good turn when he gets through.

These primary meetings, as generally conducted, are a farce. Delegates are selected by the candidates for office before the people assemble. Then the whole affair of election of delegates is usually irregular, and without due form, as required in a regular election. Then comes the regular legal election and confirms what this Nominating Convention has done, got up in this irregular way.

I will not now attempt to reconstruct the nominating conventions or the method by which they are brought together, but I may be permitted to suggest that it would be a great improvement to the machinery, if the people could so far control these primary meetings as to refuse to send into a convention a delegate who had already pledged himself to vote for any office seeker, who had already advertised himself as being a candidate for public favor, or who was in a more private way importuning the public or delegates in convention for their votes. I would say, the people or their delegates, seek the candidate and not the candidate the office.

It is often said, that good, capable men will not serve if elected to office. This is an assertion that requires proof.

I have resided in Allegheny county for more than a third of a century, and in a business more or less public, and have some acquaintance with good, capable men. I could name to you, more than a score, whom, if I were to name to you, you would say they are every way without reproach—men of high order, every way capable of representing the county in her State Legislature. These men, if it were signified to them, that a majority of their fellow citizens desired their services as legislators, or in almost any other office, they would not dare to refuse taking their turn in the service of their fellow citizens. But they will not advertise themselves, nor solicit others to do so. Their services, to be obtained, must be sought, just as the Pennsylvania Railroad Company would seek an officer or agent to manage the most intricate and important part of their corporation.

ELECTOR.

PITTSBURGH, June 24th.

Barbara Friechje, of Frederick.

As soon as we left the carriage we walked to our stopping place, polite Mr. [illegible] City Hotel, to see the house of Barbara Friechje, immortalized by Whittier. As his words have come to pass:

"Barbara Friechje's days are o'er,
And the Rebel rides on his raids no more,"

so we could not learn the truth from her—but if the thing is a mith, as some say of John Burns' fighting at Gettysburg, then one of the most charming episodes of the rebellion is a fable. A dear old relative, one of the staunchest and truest and most trusting women of the North, died glorying in the bravery and patriotism of that representative woman, Barbara, and it would be sad if any ruthless pen should deprive the public of their belief in a glorious deed so nobly commemorated in verse.

Barbara's house is a curious but pretty old fashioned structure. It is a one story high roofed little dwelling, with two attic windows on the street, (from one of which the owner waived the national flag in Jackson's face,) and with strange back buildings immediately on Carroll Run. It is attractive not only in shape, but appearance, in its fresh coat of bright red paint, standing at the city end of the bridge across the run.—From a Frederick, Md., Letter to the N. Y. Gazette.

—The Clevelanders are troubled with a man going about the streets there with but one leg, and that drawn up so that he has to do most of his walking with his hands. The Herald says he is worth $100,000, his property being in New York.

Assassination of Rulers.

The divinity that Shakespeare affirms to hedge a king, is not much regarded in this country, and the heads that wear crowns must lie more uneasily than ever in view of the following facts: Even Queen Victoria has been four times attacked. There have been at least six plots to assassinate the Emperor Napoleon. In October, 1852, when Napoleon was at Marseilles, an infernal machine, formed by 250 gun barrels, charged with 1,500 balls, was to have been discharged against the Prince and his cortege; but the design was not carried out. On July 5, 1853, a fresh attempt was made to assassinate him as he was going to the Opera Comique. On April 28, 1855, Jean Liverani fired two shots at the Emperor in the Grand avenue of the Champs Elysees. In 1857, Thibaldi, Bartolotti, and Grilli, came from England to Paris to assassinate the Emperor, but were discovered, arrested, tried, and punished. On January 14, 1858, Orsini, Gomez, Pieri, and Rudio, threw their shells at the Emperor. On December 24, 1863, Greco, Trabucco, Imperatore, and Scaglioni, who had gone from London with the intention of killing the French Emperor, were arrested in Paris. The King of Prussia was fired at by Oscar Becker, a law student of Leipsic, at Baden, on the 14th of July, 1861, and his Minister, Bismarck, had last year a narrow escape from young Blink. The Emperor of Austria, on February 18, 1853, was struck with a knife in the neck by a Hungarian named Libeny; in 1858 an attempt was made on the life of Victor Emmanuel; and the Queen of Spain has been twice assailed. There is something very remarkable in the almost invariable failure of these attempts. In recent times only two rulers have fallen victims to assassination—the Duke of Parma, who, in 1854, was stabbed with a poignard in the abdomen; and Abraham Lincoln, who was shot by Booth on April 14, 1865.

Black Death Plague.

The horrors of the Black Death, which swept all Europe in its terrible course, are five centuries old, and exist only in legendary history and tradition. The Plague came somewhat nearer one day and left a more definite record of itself. But it is a long time since the Western nations have been smitten by the scourge of God with the severity of former days. The cholera has been regular in its visitation, but its ravages have been comparatively light. It appears, however, that a strange and terribly fatal disease exists in Ireland, and has existed there for some seventeen months, which has a striking similarity to that King of Plagues, the Black Death. The peculiar distinction of this unknown malady, which, in other respects, resembles a wonderfully active fever, consists in the appearance of purple spots upon the body of the patient, which spread over his person and increase in depth of color until death. The rapidity with which the disease progresses to a fatal conclusion, is remarkable; in some instances not more than four hours elapsing between the attack and the death of the sufferer. In other cases the patient has lingered for several days, and in a less violent phase of the malady a sickness of several weeks has been followed by recovery. The average is about eighteen hours from the first indications of illness. In some cases the patients preserved their senses up to the very hour of collapse; others became incoherent, and others died in the greatest agony. The disease is plainly contagious. A soldier engaged in the Fenian insurrection died of the disease, and shortly after his washerwoman and her children were prostrated with the same malady. Its nature is unknown, and its remedy of course impossible to be found. Meanwhile the death-rate in Dublin is steadily and rapidly increasing from this mysterious complaint. Are we to have a Black Death in the nineteenth century?

Another Curious Case of Trance.

At Danville, N. Y., a little girl named Robinson, aged about 10 years, was seized, after dinner, with a sort of fit, her muscles becoming as stiff as a board. Her jaws were firmly locked, the abdominal muscles hard, the toes drawn to the bottoms of the feet, the fingers tightly clenched and drawn into the palms of the hands, and the entire form so rigid that she could be raised on end by the head or feet like a stick. At the same time her forearms were revolving around each other with a rapidity that no well person could imitate. This motion continued for about half a day. Her respiration and the circulation of the blood continued normal. In this strange condition she continued about seven weeks without taking a particle of nourishment, although every effort was made to introduce food, in a liquid form, through an opening made by extracting a tooth, or by injections. The only medical agent that could soften the muscles was chloroform, and the effects of an application lasted only four or five minutes. Once she opened her eyes and replied to a question from her father: "Are you sick, Susan?" "Yes, father, I am very sick, and going to die." A liniment composed of chloroform, ammonia, camphor and turpentine was finally resorted to, and the entire skin made red with the friction, the use of which, after a few days, seemed to relax the muscular rigidity, and she at last became able to make signs for food. About seven days after she opened her eyes she recovered the full use of her faculties, and is now as well and as hearty as ever.

—The fruit of the Chinese soap tree, which forms an important article of commerce in the northern part of China, is becoming more and more valuable, and the tree has been planted in thousands on Government plantations in appropriate parts of the East Indies. The seed furnishes a soap-like product, with which trials, as to its applicability as a greasing material, have been made on the Pundya Railroad. This soap is well adapted for burning, and gives a bright smell and smokeless flame.

PURE OLD OTARD BRANDY. FOR MEDICINAL PURPOSES.—I am this day in receipt of fifty cases of pure Old Otard Brandy, (bottled,) a prime article, equal, if not superior, to any in the city. No family should be without this article at this season of the year. Those wishing pure liquors for medicinal purposes, should call and examine my stock before purchasing elsewhere, as I am confident of selling a better article, at lower rates, than elsewhere in the city.

NO NAME. Many, many people, suffer from they know not what. They are not sick—they are not well. There is no name for it. It is simply weakness—a breaking down of the vital forces. Whatever its causes, (and they are innumerable,) its symptoms are in the main the same. Among the most prominent are extreme lassitude, loss of appetite, loss of flesh and great mental depression. Indigestion and a stomach Cough are also frequently concomitants of this distressing state of body and mind. The common remark in relation to persons in such a condition is, that they are consumptive. Now, what these unfortunates really want is vigor, vital strength: and as certainly as dawn succeeds darkness, they can recuperate their systems and regain perfect health by resorting to HOSTETTER'S CELEBRATED BITTERS. It is as clear that a life-reviving tonic is required in such cases, as that the dying flame of an empty lamp requires to be revived with a new supply of oil. Perfectly pure and innocuous, containing nothing but the most genial vegetable extracts, and combining the three grand elements of a stomachic, an alterative, and a gentle laxative, HOSTETTER'S BITTERS are suitable to all constitutions, and are as applicable to the diseases and disabilities of the feeble sex as to those of men.

PINUS CANADENSIS. A tree which is abundant in Canada, Nova Scotia, and the more northern parts of the New England States, and is also found in the elevated and mountainous regions of the Middle States, and abounds in medicinal virtues. Dr. Sweet, of Boston, has prepared a medicine from the sweet inside bark of the pine tree, called POLAND'S WHITE PINE COMPOUND, which is one of rare value in all debilitated states of the kidneys. It acts like a charm in all diseases of mucous membranes, enabling them to regain their old tone and energy. It will be found well adapted to all those diseases where Buchu has been tried and failed. It is likewise well suited to chronic coughs, and an infallible specific for old and debilitated cases of asthma. Many persons who at first only took a bottle of this medicine, to try, afterwards came back and got a dozen, or half dozen, which effected radical cures of diseases of the bladder and kidney of years standing. Diabetes, a disease that has been looked upon as among the incurables, is immediately relieved by it. Notice the certificate of Asa Goodnow. The United States Dispensatory, speaking of the pine, says: "It is prescribed in leucorrhœa, piles, and other diseases of the urinary passages; in piles and chronic inflammation or ulceration of the bowels, in chronic catarrhal affections, and in various forms of rheumatism." It is exceedingly valuable in all gravelly affections, bloody urine, and where there is red and white sediment. It can be taken without interruption of one's usual avocations, and instead of sickening, produces a bracing, healthy power of endurance and vigor. Price, $1 per bottle; six for $5. For sale by the gross, dozen or single bottle, at DR. KEYSER'S Great Medicine Store, 140 Wood Street.

Read the follow additional recommendation of the fire proof qualities of our safes: BELTING AND PACKING OFFICE OF W. & A. J. PACKARD, Youngstown, Ohio June 17th, 1867. Messrs. Burke & Barnes, Pittsburgh, Pa. GENTLEMEN—We ship you, to-day, by railroad, a safe of your make, for a few repairs. The safe went through the disastrous fire that occurred here on the 6th of March last, burning our store and warehouse, and we are glad to inform you that the papers taken out of the safe after the fire were not harmed in the least. We did not suppose any safe, especially so small a size, could possibly stand such a fire, and when we discovered the papers all safe and sound, we were agreeably disappointed. We will give you an order for a large size safe when we get into our new store. Truly yours, W. & A. J. PACKARD.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

CAPE MAY. CAPE ISLAND. Since the close of 1866 much enterprise has been displayed at this celebrated sea-shore resort. New and magnificent cottages have been erected; the Hotels have been remodeled; a fine park, with a well made one mile drive, has been inaugurated; and in all the essentials of a popular summer resort, a spirit of improvement is largely manifested. The geographical position of Cape Island is in itself a popular feature, when properly understood—Situated at the extreme southern portion of the state, and occupying a neck of land at the confluence of the Delaware Bay with the Atlantic Ocean, it becomes entirely surrounded by salt water, hence favored by continual breezes from the sea. The bluff furnishes a beautiful view of the Ocean, Delaware Bay, and picturesque back country, taking in Cape Henlopen distinctly at a distance of sixteen miles. The beach is acknowledged to surpass any other point upon the Atlantic coast, being of a smooth, compact sand which declines so gently to the surf that even a child can bathe with security. Added to these attractions is the fact that the effect of the Gulf stream upon this point renders the water comparatively warm—a point not to be overlooked by persons seeking health from ocean bathing. The distance from Philadelphia to Cape Island is 81 miles by rail, and about the same distance by steamer down the Bay, and by either route the facilities for travel promise to be of the most satisfactory character. The Island has Hotel and Boarding-house accommodations for about ten thousand persons. The leading Hotels are the Columbia House, with GEORGE J. BOLTON as proprietor; Congress Hall, with J. F. CAKE as proprietor, and United States, with WEST & MILLER as proprietors, all under the management of gentlemen who have well established reputations as hotel men.

J. C. TILTON'S TOILET & CARBON SOAP. WASHING. MARK. WARRANTED always uniform in quality, and made from the purest materials. If not satisfactory, the purchase money, in all cases, will cheerfully be refunded. Try it and be convinced. The CARBON SOAP is made similar to that of most all other Best Standard Soap, But in addition there has been a new and valuable chemical compound added in the finish, by which all that hardness so peculiar to other soap is entirely removed. The coarsest as well as the finest fabric can be washed with it and remain soft and glossy as new. One pound is equal to three pounds of ordinary Soap. And herein lies its chief excellence over all other soap; it is simple, requiring no extensive or complicated direction for using. For bathing purposes it is certainly a luxury, leaving the skin soft and healthy, and can be safely used in washing the tenderest infant. For all cleaning and cleansing purposes it is without a rival. Believing it to be SUPERIOR, and that it will be duly appreciated by a discriminating public, I desire it to stand upon its merits alone. It contains no PETROLEUM, or any foreign substance; nothing of the kind. Manufactured and for sale wholesale, by J. C. TILTON, No. 10½ ST. CLAIR ST., Pittsburgh.
