WHAT WE DRINK Our attention has been called to an error in the article on this subject, certain extent, these calculations are not the frequency of the first merely is carried into the river, leaving Butcher's (Run, with its numerous slaughter houses, the Fifth and Ninth wards, Two Mile Run, with all its contents, the hospitals, uncounted refineries and tanueries, and Lawrenceville, all above the pipe which receives and conveys to us our drink. How pure it must be let any one judge.

We have also been informed that the water pipe above Hare's Jaland, so as to give nd so closely connected with the map-We have also been told that there are some persons who bring water from their places into our city to avoid drinking the Allegheny water. But we are also told that the city is healthy. If we had better water might it not be more so? Now it is so in spite of what we drink; and if no change is made and our likes become a naticle for speculating in. It has ceased temporarily to Prequently they have one or more qualities in excess, which are so constantly obstructed as to observe all other traits, and to gives definite but erroreous impression of character. Lutrum and Kaoz, Garantson, Parkers and Pinturus may be taken as specimens of this class of individuals. In such one there are phases of temperament and judgment which can be truly known only upon personal acquaintance, and which greatly modify or limit all conclusions deduce on the present of the popular of the way of the class to which the third of the way to forecast and principle of the way of the class to which the twisted men and women, in the lowe of children, in acts of genile and solid present the more and affiliated. Garantson was replaced and afflicted. Garantson the most antidate and easter disconsiderable and afflicted. G

It has been common for the Conser-It has seen common not the construction virtues to stigmatise Browntow's administration as a despotism. His vigor furnished the pretext. But when we consider the circumstanges by which he has been surrounded, this estimate will be found insufficient. A large proportion of the white inhabitants of Tention of the white inhabitants of Tennesses were rebels. It was not through want of efforts on their part that the State was not carried as absolutely into the Rebellion as South Garolina. Thousands of them actually entered the Confederate armies. Thousands more who stayed a home, by reason of age or infirmities were es those who took up arm back, and with the rebels who had re-mained at home, resolved to control the political affairs of the State. They held had arraly to the democratic doctrine that to the democratic doctrine that in wrought no forfeitures; that the their's as though they had always been loyal and obedient to the laws. They d possession of their regained possession of their property; and meant to enter upon and hold all the offices of trust and profit. The enfranmt of the blacks stood in their way for one thing, and their own disranchisement for another.

For weeks past they have been en-ring to hold the annual election in denvoring to hold the annual election in defiance of the Constitution and laws o the State. They meant to vote whether they had a legal right to or not; and rent as many black nen from voting as they could, no matter how indisputable their right to the ballot. By a system of terrorism they at first hoped to accomplish their design. They were met by a resolution as ble as their own, and before which they qualled. Then they atwants mey qualted. Then they at-tempted to draw the President on to take their part, and by military power to set aside the legal impediments that obstructed their way. Doubtless it would have afforded the President solid last feather's weight of provocation to

The course pursued by the Tennessee rebels during the last year furnishes a complete justification of the comparative ription under which they rest. Of ugat to be confined to those men who are loyal to it. How long the prescrip-tion of the disloyal ought to be con-tinued must depend upon their conduct. Doubtless, it is desirable, that all citizens should be allowed a share in the mansee fit by criminal conduct to disqualify themselves, upon their own shoulders must rest the blame. The day will come, we trust, when all disabilities, growing out of the war, will cease—when the distinction of loval and disloyal will be ect as well to the frame of mind in which they are for whose benefit it is people shall accept the situation, again bear true allegiance to the Union, and acknowledge the equal rights of il their fellow citizens, of whatever race or section, the sooner an act of oblivion
