GLEANINGS.

Memphis is to have the Black Crook.

Cleveland is quite anxious for a gymnasium.

Hiram Powers, it is said, is worth $200,000.

The St. Louis Home Journal is a new weekly started in the west.

Vancouver is still anxious to be annexed to the United States.

Prairie du Chien is suffering from an organized band of horse thieves.

The husband of Madame Alboni, Count Pepoli, died recently in a lunatic asylum.

A physician in New York cauterizes cancers and the like by concentrating sunlight.

Gen. Montauban, the commander-in-chief of the French army in Rome, is a notorious infidel.

The Iowa State Arsenal at Desmoines is built entirely of stone and iron, not a particle of wood being used.

An original letter from John Wesley has turned up in Detroit, and has been presented to a Methodist society there.

Santa Anna denies having any idea of repairing to the United States. He will remain in Cuba for the remainder of his life.

Oberlin College has upwards of eleven hundred students, about five hundred of them being females, and about forty negroes.

A Mississippi physician has invented a golden ink; that is, an ink which when dry is gold color and glittering, instead of sombre black.

A Democratic paper in Wisconsin has the significant title of the Beaver Dam Argus. Profanity such as this should not be encouraged.

The best pea-nuts come from Africa. The yield is great, generally amounting to something like seventy-five to one hundred bushels per acre.

A Missouri paper complains of inadequate male facilities in that region; the rest of the article led us to believe that mail facilities were meant.

The French navy has adopted an American invention for lowering and detaching small boats from the sides of vessels going at full speed.

The great storm in Connecticut last week did great damage to trees and telegraph wires. The snow drifts in some places quite covered the fences.

A Mormon has been converted to Romanism and has become a priest. What he is to do with the handmaidens of his time of heretical darkness we know not.

Carthage, Missouri, has a sociable devoted to music, literature and croquet; this is the first time that we know of that croquet has taken a place among the fine arts.

Mrs. Elizabeth Cady Stanton is said to be about fifty years of age, and to resemble the pictures of Martha Washington, in her appearance. She lectured on Friday in St. Louis.

One more unfortunate girl flung herself from a pier into the river at Milwaukee last week, but failed to drown herself, as a spectator succeeded in rescuing her.

The Sheriff of Tuscarawas county, Ohio, had to take a convict to the State's prison, and as he was just married he took his wife and the convict together, the former on her wedding tour.

A French restaurant in Nashville advertises oysters "a la Black Crook," which suggests a new idea for Niblo's, a ballet without any legs at all. Perhaps it might not be popular, but it would be novel.

The shooting in Kentucky is said to be unusually fine; partridges, rabbits, deer and bears are very plentiful. Men, too, are there in large numbers, and a great many, of all kinds, are being shot.

Ducks are so plentiful in Illinois that they shoot them by wholesale with cannon. Excepting the margin in the Ingoldsby legend, this is the only instance on record of the canonizing of fowl.

An American citizen who still exercises his rights of suffrage in Detroit has been elected to the Dominion Parliament from Essex county, Ontario. Measures are now about to be taken to oust him and give his seat to his late rival.

An exchange says that a hunting party recently "bagged" one hundred and twenty hippopotami, twenty-three rhinoceri and five lions." Pretty extensive sacking they must have used. We believe it, however, for we once saw Forepaugh's show.

The criminal docket for the Jefferson County, Kentucky, Court contains seven names of persons indicted for murder and four for rape, besides a large number for assaults with intent to commit one or the other of the above crimes. Louisville must be a dangerous sort of a place.

A large buck was discovered swimming in Lake Erie fifteen miles from shore, by the propellor Equator last week. After an exciting chase this horn crowned swimmer was captured and taken on board the Equator alive, but his evident dislike to his new position forced his captors to kill him.

Prof. Louis Degemeyer, formerly Collector at Erie, Pa., was arrested on Sunday morning in Nashville by the United States Deputy Marshal for the Western District of Pennsylvania, on a charge of embezzlement of United States funds while holding the office in Erie, in 1865. Prof. Degemeyer admits the defalcation, which amounts to $60,000, and which went in unsuccessful oil speculations.

The city passenger cars ran regularly all day last Sunday, in Philadelphia, and were well filled almost every trip; they moved without bells and made but little noise. The satisfaction expressed at the new order of things is almost universal, and an overwhelming majority of the citizens there find they have been kept out of their rights and privileges by a few interfering, sanctimonious pharisees. This is the more singular, as the press of the city was, so far as we know, unanimous in favor of the present order of things.

A man in Cincinnati was recently so annoyed by the cater-wauling of an array of feline quadrupeds, that he got out of bed, seized a boot jack and rushed to the window to inflict dire vengeance. An opposite neighbor being likewise minded appeared at the same moment, at his window, with a pistol, which he fired at the cat, but the bullet went directly to the window of the boot jack man, which so alarmed him that he retreated to bed; the cats, however, were scared off for the night. Fortunately no one was hurt.

A man in Philadelphia became the victim of a conspiracy the other night. He was going home from the police station, where he was employed as a telegraph operator, when he heard a woman scream murder in the most agonized and natural manner; he immediately ran towards her and asked what was the matter? This question was answered by a man, who was concealed there for that purpose, coming up and hitting him with a life preserver on the head, knocking him insensible. The abandoned villains did not get enough from their victim to pay for their trouble.

An atrocious case of wife beating has recently come to light in Chicago. A fiend, in the shape of a good looking man, has been maltreating his wife in a horrible manner, turning her out of doors for an hour or two on nights when the sleet was driving fast, beating her when she was in a condition only to be treated with the most considerate kindness, and performing acts of terrible cruelty too atrocious to be made public. The injured woman has at length taken refuge in the law and instituted suit for divorce. The Judge has ordered the husband to pay her thirty dollars a month during the continuance of the suit, and fifty dollars down for all present necessities.
