The Prince of Wales is a constant attendant at the Crown Princess of Prussia.—Queen Victoria will soon be another grandmother.

A man out west has had or two horses been shot, and wants to know what to do.

Grace Church, New York, pays a salary of ten thousand per annum, and can't find anybody to fill its pulpit.

—Lithuania, the ancient French advocate of free institution, and Professor in the University of France, has had a stroke of apoplexy.

An original letter of Columbus has been discovered in Europe, and purports to be from the Maritime Society.

The King of Bavaria has again proposed for the hand of the princess who is likely to be his wife.

—Marshall Bedekel has made the escape of the Emperor of Austria in Austria for the benefit of the last days of the Emperor.

—Florida is suffering from a surfeit of mites and a dearth of sleep.

One and a half million of the last, and they were all sick.

—Anna Dickinson wants to know precisely where General Grant stands. We think he is on his feet, and cat like he is likely to do, as matter what turns up.

We have heard of watered whisky, watered rum, and watered silk, but we think that only General Grant gets a dog as novel as it is curious, and deserves the honor of originating it belongs.

—A New York paper wants to know if Mr. Seward gets a cold when he allows his legs to go to sleep. General Seward was so cold in the heat last week that their ears froze, and so did their noses.

—Prado is building seawall, and has a long one built, which is to be finished in time.

—When Mr. Seward bought St. Louis, he said he had no money in the purchase for which he had to beg, namely, Gen. Santa Anna, the hero (?) of Mexico. The old General resides at St. Louis, is a citizen of the world, and it is said he is well off, and is a adopted citizen of the United States, a sort of thing not much looked after by Mr. Seward just now.
