The Pittsburgh Gazette

GLEANINGS.

—Chevalier Wykoff is married.

—Cleveland wants a gallery of fine arts.

—Dogs are vaccinated in France for distemper.

—The Manassas Gap Railroad track has been relaid.

—Patti is jealous of Kellogg, who in turn is ditto of Patti.

—Three thousand bales of cotton were raised in Illinois this year.

—Cleveland is also desirous of possessing a female medical college.

—General Dent denies having written the Grant letter attributed to him.

—Heated skates is the latest invention. The heating is chemically done.

—Washington wants to be reformed, but begins by beginning parties at 7½ o'clock.

—A German Arctic expedition is being formed, and eighty thousand dollars are to be spent.

—Pike's new opera house in New York is larger and seats more people than the Academy of Music.

—The roses and lillies are all in full bloom and the trees and grapes green, at New Orleans, still.

—Holmes's Guardian Angel is to be translated into French with the title of "Ancestral Sin."

—Thirteen thousand men are engaged at Conserneau, in France, in the capture and cure of sardines.

—A horse, evidently believing that all flesh is grass, took a bite out of the check of a Mr. Ragle.

—"They say" that Goldwin Smith is going to remove to this country, he being disgusted with England.

—The first Grant club in Connecticut was organized in Hartford last week, Gen. Whittaker taking the chair.

—The bridge over the Mississippi at Quincy will cost $1,000,000, and will not be ready for use until next August.

—The Camden, (N. J.) nickel works were completely destroyed by fire on Sunday night. Loss, $15,000; no insurance.

—A boot blacking machine has been invented. We think this is the only one of its kind, although there are numerous eye blacking machines.

—It is stated that a Japanese named San-ge-roo has been immured in Savannah for pounding a tradesman under the influence of too much San-ga-ree.—Boston Post.

—A woman in Philadelphia died of heart disease, on Monday, in a railway station, where she was awaiting the departure of a train on which she wished to go to the funeral of a friend.

—An exchange says "drunk and disorderlies saw the city ordered in Minneapolis." Such trash have often seen that the city wouldn't put up with anything of the sort here.

—Napoleon, not content with his present literary fame, is writing another book. If he does not watch out, the cruel Bismarck will get out a better one and again eclipse him.

—Query. If England can afford to spend $1,000,000 for a war in Abyssinia how much can we afford to spend for a piece of Cuba?—how much for the whole of St. Thomas; for a hole is all that is likely to be left there.

—Prentice says that "Carl Schurz's writings make people laugh almost as much as his fighting used to do." Just so, and the same way that people like Prentice then laughed, out of the wrong sides of their mouths, and the writings aren't going to right them.

—The Philadelphia Bulletin announces in one column that Ole Bull is about to sail for America, and in another that he has arrived in Boston. If both are true, the City of Paris may as well shut up shop for a faster than she is somewhere.

—The Denver people have gone back on the Union Pacific Railroad, Eastern Division. They say that that company has been fooling them long enough, and that now they will build a branch road to Cheyenne City, and strike the real Pacific Railroad there.

—Amusements are becoming very tedious, long wailey, to anglicize a teutonic expression. Wagner's new comic opera is said to be six hours long. Offenbach's Robinson Crusoe, just brought out in Paris, is five hours long, and Ristori's Marie Antoinette, when not cut down occupies the whole evening from eight o'clock to one or half-past one. No one can possibly be amused for so long a time, no matter how amusing the play is.

—A young woman, named Coon, died very suddenly in Chicago, on Sunday morning. From the sundry bruises on her head, the emaciated condition of her body, and the statement of her husband and children, it is supposed that she was almost dead with starvation, and that she fell partially out of bed, with her head resting on the floor, and thus died. Some suspicion of the husband having beaten her to death is felt, and he is in custody, but the general opinion is that the death was an accidental one.

—Mr. Durand, managing director of the Union Pacific Railroad, is preparing to erect a pile bridge across the Missouri at Omaha, as soon as the river shall freeze. An exchange says: "This bridge will secure unbroken communication during the winter between Chicago and the Plains, and it will save the railroad companies, in two months, more than it will cost. Of course, when the ice breaks in the spring, the bridge will be carried down the river. But during the winter months it will save a large sum in the transportation of freight across the river."

—The Cincinnati Chamber of Commerce is crowded in its present quarters, and recently appointed a committee to wait upon Mr. Pike to ascertain on what terms he would let them have the splendid hall in his new building. Mr. Pike, after considering for a while, offered the whole building, hall, shops, offices, &c., with the ground, for one million of dollars. The committee thus reported, and no action has, as yet, been agreed upon. The hall is described as the most elaborate and perfect, in every detail, in the country. The frescoing alone being finer than in any similar building on the continent.

—A girl on Tuesday last placed her tongue on an iron pump handle in Albany. Nobody witnessed the operation, and as she could not call out, she was forced to remain in the decidedly uncomfortable position until some one noticed her, when, by heating the iron, the tongue was released. A notoriously hen-pecked observer of the performance rushed home armed with a piece of cold iron, but his wife was too sharp for him, and would not allow her tongue to touch it, thus blasting his hopes of a quiet evening at home.

—On Thursday last a negro, who was was one of the two, who, early last week, murdered an inoffensive German farmer, without a shadow of cause or provocation, without ever having seen him before or having spoken a word to him, and without being in liquor, was arrested in Venice, Illinois. A large mob of Germans collected and three times attempted to seize and lynch the prisoner, once having actually fastened the rope around his neck, but the sheriff and constable, by dint of a good deal of personal influence and bravery, rescued him. At the third attempt the constable who had locked himself into a room with the prisoner, fired through the door at the beseiging crowd and wounded a man; this stopped for a time the ardor of the mob; but they returned a fourth time to the attack, and in spite of the five barrels of the constables revolver, which were fired in rapid succession, the door was broken in and the wretched negro taken and hanged. The other negro, the accomplice in the murder, is still at large.
