

The Pittsburgh Gazette

GIRLS AND WIVES

Two publications of merit, one a quarterly review, the other a weekly magazine of the older and graver sort, attempt this week to open a discussion which three years ago must have seemed the recess in the North British Review, an eloquent writer, whose identity requires no signature to establish it, points to the disease of marriage in the upper and middle class as one of the great evils of the British society. There is no doubt that the disease is not confined to the upper and middle class as one of the great evils of the British society. There is no doubt that the disease is not confined to the upper and middle class as one of the great evils of the British society.
