

The Pittsburgh GazetteSPECIAL NOTICES.

TO A BEAUTIFUL STRANGER.
To my John Cooper Page.
A piano, a smile—let it rest.
How sweet to tell—how we scarcely met,
What thoughts were lurking in your smile
And your voice! that all the while
What thoughts were lurking in your smile
I only know those healing rays
Which brighten up the warmer place,
A home where love is born,
Ah! many a heart is stung at this,
Has been struck by the arrow of beauty,
And no one can tell the coral reefs of beauty,
That born a way my heartunger
And so quickly, out of danger.

EPHEMERIS.

—Little green things, it is in Memphis.—Bierstadt has sold his "Rocky Mountain" and "Storm" for $40,000 in England.—Honduras is rapidly being depopulated by the terrible ravages of the cholera.—Last week there were 210 deaths in Philadelphia, and of these 66 were from lung disease.

—Mr. Stewart has sent $1,000 as donation to the Bethany Mission School of Philadelphia.—A thousand persons were at the differentiation anniversary in Cincinnati on Saturday.

—A chapter of the Society known as the Knights of Pythias is to be established in Pittsburgh.—The Knights of Pythias have a branch in Philadelphia.—Isaac Lester, Habit of the Portuguese Synagogue in Philadelphia, died on Saturday morning, aged sixty-two years.

—The patrician violinist, Bellini, with their emptying and roasting, the drinking water of our neighbors of the Forrest City.

—A man in Aspinwall was convicted on Saturday in the court of common pleas of having sold a woman in the second degree in causing the death of her babe.

—A young man has twenty-four hours to marry a woman he had got for two, who was his foster-mother and yet was nurse in Daniels.

—The wives of the family in Algeria are said to be those that have been prominently interred at the dead on a battle field are buried.

—Mr. Edwin Stevens has remained an inmate of the first Dr. Davis Clinic Co., Cleveland, with his distinguished partner the firm should meet with success.

—In the way of small sensations for Sunday Chicago had a racing, forcings, jastic at large and a case of poisoning. A little shooting affray would be the quiet end of all.

—On the morning last Matthew Flynn was arrested in Kansas City. He is charged with the slight offense of killing two negroes and wounding a third. For days some time last December.

—A stranger stopping at a small rate hotel in Chicago in his clothes and carrying a valise, was compelled to bed on Friday night. He was obliged to borrow articles in order to go to the show to get money.

—One of the most famous cases of capital law, and it was a little more arbitrary than might always be pleasant. The lady had the privilege of proposing marriage, but the unfortunate was not inclined to her person. She died next morning.

—The Portland Oregonian says that thirty men from Bozman captured eleven horse thieves in the Yellowwood and surrounded them to hold them to account and secured their release by saying that they had "gone to state."

—Miss Arabella Herard was making a call on her old schoolmate, Mrs. Moore, in the room of the former Kansas City, and took the shock of finding a bullet hole in the door, which was lying under the bolt. In falling, its lead was discharged and entered into her person. She died next morning.

—They are evidently up to the time in Oregon, and we should say it is a good place for marriage, provided the parties are well matched. There are many, 165, showing large increase since the same month last year. In 1862, nearly one marriage license was issued during the first three days of January.

—Miss Miriam, the Princess Miriam, is to be married to Mr. George W. Chapman, of New York, on the 1st of March.

—The Portland Oregonian says that a foreign mill and smelting works is being erected in Vienna, where she is now residing at the request of the Emperor, who has granted her a very liberal sum.

—Godey's Magazine and the wider of strong, true and pure fiction as was ever used in the better which England had witnessed during the past century.

—The foreign mill and smelting works is to be erected in Vienna, where she is now residing at the request of the Emperor, who has granted her a very liberal sum.

—Some persons surprised at the size of the p's which Mr. Bryan has written in his poems.

—A thousand dollars does seem pretty extreme, but when Mr. Bryan paid $30,000 for Norwood, which did not have a house, it is almost to be expected that such a sum will be asked of him.

—Milwaukee has a Water Works and wants them but can't afford to pay for it. The progress of every work object and have absolutely succeeded in this far preventing the much needed improvement, and the consequence is that the city is to be left to burn until it burns out, for the means of extinguishing the flames are not to be had.

—The people of Atlanta, Georgia, have started a rumor that General Meade desires to be relieved. The wish is to have heard before father to the thoughts and emotions of the people, and to have a man of his confidence to be made known that a bold political gentleman intent on keeping the laws of his country to suit the citizens of the South.

—A wealthy gentleman has purchased a very elegant house in New York, which is superbly finished and furnish ed. The cost of the house, and the expenses of getting it prepared for occupancy, will be $10,000, and it does not seem likely that a bold political gentleman intent on keeping the laws of his country to suit the citizens of the South.

—The St. Louis Historical Society doubts whether Irving ever wrote a line which was to be used to mankind.

—The St. Louis Historical Society is evidently in a quandary, and it is difficult to decide what to do with the manuscript of the book which he has written.

—A wealthy gentleman has purchased a very elegant house in New York, which is superbly finished and furnish ed. The cost of the house, and the expenses of getting it prepared for occupancy, will be $10,000, and it does not seem likely that a bold political gentleman intent on keeping the laws of his country to suit the citizens of the South.

—The St. Louis Historical Society doubts whether Irving ever wrote a line which was to be used to mankind.

—The St. Louis Historical Society is evidently in a quandary, and it is difficult to decide what to do with the manuscript of the book which he has written.

—A wealthy gentleman has purchased a very elegant house in New York, which is superbly finished and furnish ed. The cost of the house, and the expenses of getting it prepared for occupancy, will be $10,000, and it does not seem likely that a bold political gentleman intent on keeping the laws of his country to suit the citizens of the South.

—A wealthy gentleman has purchased a very elegant house in New York, which is superbly finished and furnish ed. The cost of the house, and the expenses of getting it prepared for occupancy, will be $10,000, and it does not seem likely that a bold political gentleman intent on keeping the laws of his country to suit the citizens of the South.

—A wealthy gentleman has purchased a very elegant house in New York, which is superbly finished and furnish ed. The cost of the house, and the expenses of getting it prepared for occupancy, will be $10,000, and it does not seem likely that a bold political gentleman intent on keeping the laws of his country to suit the citizens of the South.

—A wealthy gentleman has purchased a very elegant house in New York, which is superbly finished and furnish ed. The cost of the house, and the expenses of getting it prepared for occupancy, will be $10,000, and it does not seem likely that a bold political gentleman intent on keeping the laws of his country to suit the citizens of the South.

—A wealthy gentleman has purchased a very elegant house in New York, which is superbly finished and furnish ed. The cost of the house, and the expenses of getting it prepared for occupancy, will be $10,000, and it does not seem likely that a bold political gentleman intent on keeping the laws of his country to suit the citizens of the South.

—A wealthy gentleman has purchased a very elegant house in New York, which is superbly finished and furnish ed. The cost of the house, and the expenses of getting it prepared for occupancy, will be $10,000, and it does not seem likely that a bold political gentleman intent on keeping the laws of his country to suit the citizens of the South.

—A wealthy gentleman has purchased a very elegant house in New York, which is superbly finished and furnish ed. The cost of the house, and the expenses of getting it prepared for occupancy, will be $10,000, and it does not seem likely that a bold political gentleman intent on keeping the laws of his country to suit the citizens of the South.

—A wealthy gentleman has purchased a very elegant house in New York, which is superbly finished and furnish ed. The cost of the house, and the expenses of getting it prepared for occupancy, will be $10,000, and it does not seem likely that a bold political gentleman intent on keeping the laws of his country to suit the citizens of the South.

—A wealthy gentleman has purchased a very elegant house in New York, which is superbly finished and furnish ed. The cost of the house, and the expenses of getting it prepared for occupancy, will be $10,000, and it does not seem likely that a bold political gentleman intent on keeping the laws of his country to suit the citizens of the South.

—A wealthy gentleman has purchased a very elegant house in New York, which is superbly finished and furnish ed. The cost of the house, and the expenses of getting it prepared for occupancy, will be $10,000, and it does not seem likely that a bold political gentleman intent on keeping the laws of his country to suit the citizens of the South.

—A wealthy gentleman has purchased a very elegant house in New York, which is superbly finished and furnish ed. The cost of the house, and the expenses of getting it prepared for occupancy, will be $10,000, and it does not seem likely that a bold political gentleman intent on keeping the laws of his country to suit the citizens of the South.

—A wealthy gentleman has purchased a very elegant house in New York, which is superbly finished and furnish ed. The cost of the house, and the expenses of getting it prepared for occupancy, will be $10,000, and it does not seem likely that a bold political gentleman intent on keeping the laws of his country to suit the citizens of the South.

—A wealthy gentleman has purchased a very elegant house in New York, which is superbly finished and furnish ed. The cost of the house, and the expenses of getting it prepared for occupancy, will be $10,000, and it does not seem likely that a bold political gentleman intent on keeping the laws of his country to suit the citizens of the South.

—A wealthy gentleman has purchased a very elegant house in New York, which is superbly finished and furnish ed. The cost of the house, and the expenses of getting it prepared for occupancy, will be $10,000, and it does not seem likely that a bold political gentleman intent on keeping the laws of his country to suit the citizens of the South.

—A wealthy gentleman has purchased a very elegant house in New York, which is superbly finished and furnish ed. The cost of the house, and the expenses of getting it prepared for occupancy, will be $10,000, and it does not seem likely that a bold political gentleman intent on keeping the laws of his country to suit the citizens of the South.

—A wealthy gentleman has purchased a very elegant house in New York, which is superbly finished and furnish ed. The cost of the house, and the expenses of getting it prepared for occupancy, will be $10,000, and it does not seem likely that a bold political gentleman intent on keeping the laws of his country to suit the citizens of the South.

—A wealthy gentleman has purchased a very elegant house in New York, which is superbly finished and furnish ed. The cost of the house, and the expenses of getting it prepared for occupancy, will be $10,000, and it does not seem likely that a bold political gentleman intent on keeping the laws of his country to suit the citizens of the South.

—A wealthy gentleman has purchased a very elegant house in New York, which is superbly finished and furnish ed. The cost of the house, and the expenses of getting it prepared for occupancy, will be $10,000, and it does not seem likely that a bold political gentleman intent on keeping the laws of his country to suit the citizens of the South.

—A wealthy gentleman has purchased a very elegant house in New York, which is superbly finished and furnish ed. The cost of the house, and the expenses of getting it prepared for occupancy, will be $10,000, and it does not seem likely that a bold political gentleman intent on keeping the laws of his country to suit the citizens of the South.

—A wealthy gentleman has purchased a very elegant house in New York, which is superbly finished and furnish ed. The cost of the house, and the expenses of getting it prepared for occupancy, will be $10,000, and it does not seem likely that a bold political gentleman intent on keeping the laws of his country to suit the citizens of the South.

—A wealthy gentleman has purchased a very elegant house in New York, which is superbly finished and furnish ed. The cost of the house, and the expenses of getting it prepared for occupancy, will be $10,000, and it does not seem likely that a bold political gentleman intent on keeping the laws of his country to suit the citizens of the South.

—A wealthy gentleman has purchased a very elegant house in New York, which is superbly finished and furnish ed. The cost of the house, and the expenses of getting it prepared for occupancy, will be $10,000, and it does not seem likely that a bold political gentleman intent on keeping the laws of his country to suit the citizens of the South.

—A wealthy gentleman has purchased a very elegant house in New York, which is superbly finished and furnish ed. The cost of the house, and the expenses of getting it prepared for occupancy, will be $10,000, and it does not seem likely that a bold political gentleman intent on keeping the laws of his country to suit the citizens of the South.

—A wealthy gentleman has purchased a very elegant house in New York, which is superbly finished and furnish ed. The cost of the house, and the expenses of getting it prepared for occupancy, will be $10,000, and it does not seem likely that a bold political gentleman intent on keeping the laws of his country to suit the citizens of the South.

—A wealthy gentleman has purchased a very elegant house in New York, which is superbly finished and furnish ed. The cost of the house, and the expenses of getting it prepared for occupancy, will be $10,000, and it does not seem likely that a bold political gentleman intent on keeping the laws of his country to suit the citizens of the South.

—A wealthy gentleman has purchased a very elegant house in New York, which is superbly finished and furnish ed. The cost of the house, and the expenses of getting it prepared for occupancy, will be $10,000, and it does not seem likely that a bold political gentleman intent on keeping the laws of his country to suit the citizens of the South.

—A wealthy gentleman has purchased a very elegant house in New York, which is superbly finished and furnish ed. The cost of the house, and the expenses of getting it prepared for occupancy, will be $10,000, and it does not seem likely that a bold political gentleman intent on keeping the laws of his country to suit the citizens of the South.

—A wealthy gentleman has purchased a very elegant house in New York, which is superbly finished and furnish ed. The cost of the house, and the expenses of getting it prepared for occupancy, will be $10,000, and it does not seem likely that a bold political gentleman intent on keeping the laws of his country to suit the citizens of the South.

—A wealthy gentleman has purchased a very elegant house in New York, which is superbly finished and furnish ed. The cost of the house, and the expenses of getting it prepared for occupancy, will be $10,000, and it does not seem likely that a bold political gentleman intent on keeping the laws of his country to suit the citizens of the South.

—A wealthy gentleman has purchased a very elegant house in New York, which is superbly finished and furnish ed. The cost of the house, and the expenses of getting it prepared for occupancy, will be $10,000, and it does not seem likely that a bold political gentleman intent on keeping the laws of his country to suit the citizens of the South.

—A wealthy gentleman has purchased a very elegant house in New York, which is superbly finished and furnish ed. The cost of the house, and the expenses of getting it prepared for occupancy, will be $10,000, and it does not seem likely that a bold political gentleman intent on keeping the laws of his country to suit the citizens of the South.

—A wealthy gentleman has purchased a very elegant house in New York, which is superbly finished and furnish ed. The cost of the house, and the expenses of getting it prepared for occupancy, will be $10,000, and it does not seem likely that a bold political gentleman intent on keeping the laws of his country to suit the citizens of the South.

—A wealthy gentleman has purchased a very elegant house in New York, which is superbly finished and furnish ed. The cost of the house, and the expenses of getting it prepared for occupancy, will be $10,000, and it does not seem likely that a bold political gentleman intent on keeping the laws of his country to suit the citizens of the South.

—A wealthy gentleman has purchased a very elegant house in New York, which is superbly finished and furnish ed. The cost of the house, and the expenses of getting it prepared for occupancy, will be $10,000, and it does not seem likely that a bold political gentleman intent on keeping the laws of his country to suit the citizens of the South.

—A wealthy gentleman has purchased a very elegant house in New York, which is superbly finished and furnish ed. The cost of the house, and the expenses of getting it prepared for occupancy, will be $10,000, and it does not seem likely that a bold political gentleman intent on keeping the laws of his country to suit the citizens of the South.

—A wealthy gentleman has purchased a very elegant house in New York, which is superbly finished and furnish ed. The cost of the house, and the expenses of getting it prepared for occupancy, will be $10,000, and it does not seem likely that a bold political gentleman intent on keeping the laws of his country to suit the citizens of the South.

—A wealthy gentleman has purchased a very elegant house in New York, which is superbly finished and furnish ed. The cost of the house, and the expenses of getting it prepared for occupancy, will be $10,000, and it does not seem likely that a bold political gentleman intent on keeping the laws of his country to suit the citizens of the South.

—A wealthy gentleman has purchased a very elegant house in New York, which is superbly finished and furnish ed. The cost of the house, and the expenses of getting it prepared for occupancy, will be $10,000, and it does not seem likely that a bold political gentleman intent on keeping the laws of his country to suit the citizens of the South.

—A wealthy gentleman has purchased a very elegant house in New York, which is superbly finished and furnish ed. The cost of the house, and the expenses of getting it prepared for occupancy, will be $10,000, and it does not seem likely that a bold political gentleman intent on keeping the laws of his country to suit the citizens of the South.

—A wealthy gentleman has purchased a very elegant house in New York, which is superbly finished and furnish ed. The cost of the house, and the expenses of getting it prepared for occupancy, will be $10,000, and it does not seem likely that a bold political gentleman intent on keeping the laws of his country to suit the citizens of the South.

—A wealthy gentleman has purchased a very elegant house in New York, which is superbly finished and furnish ed. The cost of the house, and the expenses of getting it prepared for occupancy, will be $10,000, and it does not seem likely that a bold political gentleman intent on keeping the laws of his country to suit the citizens of the South.

—A wealthy gentleman has purchased a very elegant house in New York, which is superbly finished and furnish ed. The cost of the house, and the expenses of getting it prepared for occupancy, will be $10,000, and it does not seem likely that a bold political gentleman intent on keeping the laws of his country to suit the citizens of the South.

—A wealthy gentleman has purchased a very elegant house in New York, which is superbly finished and furnish ed. The cost of the house, and the expenses of getting it prepared for occupancy, will be $10,000, and it does not seem likely that a bold political gentleman intent on keeping the laws of his country to suit the citizens of the South.

—A wealthy gentleman has purchased a very elegant house in New York, which is superbly finished and furnish ed. The cost of the house, and the expenses of getting it prepared for occupancy, will be $10,000, and it does not seem likely that a bold political gentleman intent on keeping the laws of his country to suit the citizens of the South.

—A wealthy gentleman has purchased a very elegant house in New York, which is superbly finished and furnish ed. The cost of the house, and the expenses of getting it prepared for occupancy, will be $10,000, and it does not seem likely that a bold political gentleman intent on keeping the laws of his country to suit the citizens of the South.

—A wealthy gentleman has purchased a very elegant house in New York, which is superbly finished and furnish ed. The cost of the house, and the expenses of getting it prepared for occupancy, will be $10,000, and it does not seem likely that a bold political gentleman intent on keeping the laws of his country to suit the citizens of the South.

—A wealthy gentleman has purchased a very elegant house in New York, which is superbly finished