City were contested. After a long discussion, in which considerable ascerbity CONFERENS AND ADVISERS. NOMINATIONS HADE but it is to be hoped that Muon Lagrange and the favorite tenor of the New York will give mother season of performances in this city before the season is over. The concert of the Philarmonic Society, given at the Academy of Music last Saturday, attracted a large and select crowd, and overy connoissour of music will confess that the orchestra of that society is far superior to any other we have ever had in this city. The names of the gontlemen who are at the head of that enterprise are a sufficient guarantee for the selection of the programme, and thus we heard Spohr's beautiful overture of "Tessonds" interpreted exquisitely, and the performance of Bechoven's ninti symphony with chorus, composed of the members of the society, closing with Schiller's ode "To Tay," was imposing, and a success in every sense of the world. Another concert given restored and Mr. Harrison desorves apinous performers the performer on the piano, who called forth an enthusiastic encore on the part of the audience, and that well known violinist, Mr. Ross, who gave repeated evidence of Mr. Thomas, completed the interesting entertalnment of the evening.
