The motion for a preliminary injunction is held under advisement. QUESTION OF ALLEGIANCE. In the course of the evening Wm. E. Forester, member for Bradford, alluded to the state of the law in regard to the allegiance of British subjects, saying this matter especially demands attention in the bearing it had upon the relations of this country with the United States. He shought the time now ripe for arriving at at a definite understanding. He explained the law on the right of expatriation, and showed that at the present time two millions of the Queen's subjects were living in the United States as American citizens, in practical violation of these laws. It was the difference which rose between England and America in regard to the rights of adopted citizens which caused the war of 1812, and now the difference which still existed was counted on by the Fenians as likely again to embroil the two nations and thus further their treasonable designs. He urged Great Britain (to abandon her claim of life allegiance in the case of emigrants to foreign countries, and advised the appointment of a mixed commission to settle the question forever. the state of the law in regard to the allenjunction is held under advisement.
