LETTIEM LEUTEL

Fraudulent Distilling—Seizure of the Apparatus—Partial Hearing.

The revenue officers are continually on the alert and occasionally pick up some unfortunate individual whose greediness to accumulate a large amount of "filthy lucre" in a short time has caused him to attempt to defraud, the Government of its share of profits. Yesterday, morning A. Cos-grave, R. Colville and W. H. Sturgeon, charged on oath of officer Keyser with defrauding the Government by the illicit distillation of whiskey, were arrested and had a hearing before U.S. Commissioner

It appears that near the latter part of February, Revenue officer Keyser obtained information to the effect that some parties information to the effect that some parties were engaged in distilling liquors in a part of the building No. 303 Liberty street. On the fifth of the present month he visited the premises named, and made an examination with a view of testing the reliability of his information. In the cellar he discovered a still of the capacity of about one hundred and thirty gallons, which had the appearance of having been recently in use of the capacity. having been recently in use. The cap, however, had been removed, and the still itself lifted from its foundation. The examination was extended to the third floor of the building, and there officer Keyser found the missing "cap," also a still worm, mash tubs, and other appurten-ances, and a barrel containing low wines. Being satisfied that the still had recently been in operation, he made preparations to remove the same, but deferred the seizure for a few days. On his return he found that the worm had been taken to pieces and secreted in different places but, he succeeded in finding the separate parts and re-moved them to the Collector's office.

At the hearing officer Keyser testified that he had been unable to discover desinitely who had possession of the cellar and third story of the building, or to whom the still belonged, but that when he was about thriving the apprenting Mr. Cos. third story of the building, or to whom the still belonged, but that when he was about removing the apparatus Mr. Cosgrove asserted that he had bought it, and dared him (Keyser) to touch it. He also testified that Mr. Sturgeon had an office in the second story of the building, and that Messrs. Weldon & Kelly had been employed to do the necessary plumbing work in set. to do the necessary plumbing work in set-ting up the still. He had assertained that the still was shipped from Philadelphia in boxes marked "furniture," and consigned to the house stated.

After Mr. Keyser had concluded his testimony, the hearing was continued until three o'clock r. M. to-day. Pittsburgh Petroleum Association-Special Meeting -- Resolutions, &c., &c. A special meeting of the Pittsburgh Pe troleum Association was held at 10 o'clock yesterday morning, at the rooms of the Association, No. 4 Dalzell's Building, Duquesne Way and Irwin street. On motion of Mr. Kirk, Major Wm. Frew was called to the chair. Mr. Frew stated that the meeting had been called at the instance of Mr. Kirk, and the Association were now ready to hear for what purpose the call was made.

Mr. Kirk then offered the following reso-Intions:

Resolved: That this Association fully approves and endorses the action of the National Convention, held in this city, March 4th, in reference to the United States tax on Ath, in reference to the United States tax on Petroleum, and that we are totally opposed to any tax or taxes being levied either on Crude or Refined Petroleum.

Resolved, That while we are thankful for the control of the best tax on the state of the st the proposed reduction of one-half the tax by the United States Senate, showing as it by the United States Senate, showing as it does a disposition to anneliorate our condition, yet must regard it as totally inadequate to remedy the evils of which we complain. ation are hereby tendered to the honorable Senators Van Winkle, Cameron, Buckalew and Sumner for their able and eloquent re-arks in behalf of our cause; and also to the Senators who supported them by their votes, and that we hope and trust they will continue their efforts until this odious tax repealed and justice done to an imporant interest.

Resolved, That these resolutions be published in the Pittsburgh papers and a copy forwarded to the National Oil Committee at Washington, D. C.

The resolutions were adopted.
Mr. Warden submitted the following: Resolved, That we acknowledge the services of our Representatives and others, and request the House of Representatives to give our cause a careful consideration, and urge them to repeal the tax on refined oll, and ask the Committee of Ways and Means of the House to examine the report of the Committee of the National Convention, now in Washington, as it fully covers

Two Men Buried Alive-Fatal Accident. A distressing accident occurred at the Superior Brick Works, one mile east of Torrens station, on the Pennsylvania Railroad, yesterday morning, by which two of the employes, Jacob Saddler and Joseph Petigrew, met with a horrible death. The y had just been employed yesterday morning and were set to work excavating clay: The superintendent, it appears, warned them to be careful and left them at work. He returncareful and left them at work. Ine returned about an hour afterwards to see how they were progressing, and discovered that the bank had caved in, but no signs of the workmen were visible. Tools were obtained to see the second of the workmen were visible. ed and men set to work to ascertain if they. had been buried in the pit. After digging down about one foot the body of one of the men was found and taken out, and a few inches beneath it the other was discovered. They were both dead. Coroner Clawson was notified and held an inquest on the bodies yesterday afternoon, when the jury rendered a verdict in accordance with the facts. Saddler was twenty-five years of age. and Petigrew twenty-one. They were sin

Another Gambling Case-Probably Com-

Some two weeks ago J. N. Stokes, hailing from Oil City, made information before Alderman Nicholson, charging Elijah, David and George Hall, and several others whose names we could not ascertain, with being common gamblers, alleging that they had "fleeced" him of all his money. The parties were arrested and held for a hearing, which was to have taken place yesterday, but, as is the custom in such cases now, the prosecutor failed to appear, and the hearing was postponed till Monday, the 13th of ing was postooned till Monday, the 13th of April., Whether there was an effort to compromise of not be compromise of not be compromise of the matter. Our Own Opinion of a Home Institution. In making our round of calls at places of public interest, on Saturday, we very opportunely happened in at the Pittsburgh Female College. Regarding this home institution as one of the moblest monaments. reared to the honor of our city and State, and one in which all friends of learning and culture should take deep inferest, we: feel assured that a few passing remarks will not be deemed out of place by our readers. It seems to us there are many good, public spirited citizens, who, with Mr. Parton, glory in the many peculiarities of peculiar Pittsburgh; who are unstinted in their terms of praise and laudation of our fron producing furnaces, leviathan foundries and monster workshops, and yet who are so blinded with the dense volume of smoke rolling from the scenes of our industry, as to be unaware that here, situated in one of the prettiest localities in our city, stands an educational institution worthy recognition and rank among the best in the country. Within a comparatively brief time it has outstripped many older schools. and to-day commands patronage from one third of the States of the Union And ye we occasionally hear of persons who, instead of acquainting themselves with its facilities for imparting a thoroughly solid and ornamental education, send abroad to institutions where there are fewer teachers and less facilities, and at a much greater cost—"go, farther to five worse,". We will not obtrude advice, but venture to suggest to all who have daughters to educate to visit the College and make themselves ac-quainted with our home institution. We were delighted and entertained by

We were delighted and entertained by our visit. The College buildings, which we have frequently described, are situate on one of the prettiest and most seeluded arenues of the city, leading from Penn street to Duquesne Way, running along the beautiful Allegheny river. They are among the finest architectural specimens in the city, and are admirably adapted to the purposes for which intended, being large airy poses for which intended, being large, airy and commodious. Improvements and additions have been made from time to time, until the Chapel, Recitation Rooms, Office, Parlor, Library, Dining Room and Studio are models of their kind. Every hall and room in the building is neatly papered; well lighted and ventilated, and furnished with gas. Some important improvements are now in progress, which will add much to the appearance of the buildings and comfort of the inmates. We ought to add, that there is no such defacing of walls and furniture as is common in our institutions of learning, and that the buildings are kept remarkably neat and clean.

So much for the buildings. The College justly challenges comparison in the number and ability of its Faculty with any ladies' school in the land. The trustees deserve special commendation for the liberality they have always displayed in the management of the College. The object has not been to make money, but to build an institution that would afford to our cifizens unsurpassed facilities for the education of their daughters. Every dollar realized from tui-tion is expended on the institution, the prime object being to secure, first of all, a first-class Faculty. Teachers are selected with reference to their qualifications; every one employed has had from five to twenty five years experience. In addition to those in the Literary department, there are special teachers in music, drawing and painting, French, German, wax work, needle work, de., de.

In conclusion, we urge on our readers especially those interested in educational matters, to give the claims of the Collège the full consideration its many excellent qualities merit. It is a growing power in our community, and should be fostered, encouraged and supported with generous hearts and hands. We are pleased to chronicle the fact that its debts are in process of liquidation, and upwards of fifty thousand dollars subscribed as an endowment. We have all reason to be proud of its possession, and should use our best indeavors to promote its usefulness. Instead of representatives from eleven States, we hope the day is not far distant when every State will send its representatives, and Pittsburgh be as well known for its educational facilities as it now is for its manufactures. We wish it the most abundant success; and commend it to all our terday the Spring term opened, study. Olasses will be formed within a few days, and those charged with the education of girls should send to the President, Dr. I. C. Pershing, for a catalogue.

The Spring Trade-How Our Merchants Have Prepared for It -- A Word to Drug-

With our wholesale dealers the Spring rade has opened lively, and from present appearances the season will prove one of unusual prosperity. The leading houses in all lines of trade have strengthened themselves with very large stocks of goods, in expectation of the increased patronage that will flow in upon them as a necessary conquence of the conservatism in buy selling which has extended back through two or three business terms. Activity invades all departments of mercantile life, and the good effect of a lively, bustling trade will soon be felt by all classes of the community.

New Millinery and White Goods House. The event of this week will be the opening of Rosenbaum, Steinhart & Co.'s Philadelphia Emporium at No. 76 Market street. The curiosity of our fair lady readers in anticipation of this event has been excited and reports which have leaked out in spite of the endeavors of Messrs, Rosenbaum, Steinhart & Co. to prepare for the public a complete surprise. It was the intention of this enterprising firm to execute various extensive improvements in their spacious store rooms in secresy and quiet, till some fine, balmy spring morning there would be unveiled to the astonished gaze of the passers-by and the residents of Pittsburgh and vicinity, a bower of perfect beauty and loveliness. The knowledge of their plans having, however, become general, the veil of ing, however, become general, the veil of secresy has been withdrawn, and Messrs. Rosenbaum, Steinhart & Co. now publicly announce (see our advertising columns) that on Wednesday, March 25th, the Philathat on wednesday, anirch 25th, the Philadelphia Emporium will be opened with an entirely new and, well selected stock of Ladies, and Children's Straw Hats and Bonnets, Frames, Artificial Flowers, Black and Colored Crapes, Bonnet and Trimming Ribbons, Straw Cords and Tassels, Ornaments, Pattern Hats and Roungis Laces Veillings Pattern Hats and Bonners, Laces, Vennments, Pattern Hats and Bonners, Laces, Veilings, a full line of. Another Bawdy House Case. The days of bawdy houses in this city, it would appear from the number of prosecutions recently, are at an end, or at least the of the law have penetrated beyond the land and gone out upon the "mighty waters" of the Allegheny, in search of wrong doers. On Saturday James McKenna made infor-ration before Alderman Taylor charging John Walls with keeping a bawdy house. The Attraction. The manner in which the establishment of Bates & Bell, 21 Fifth street, has been thronged with ladies since the weather has become pleasant, and the streets passable, is truly wonderful to those not acquainted with the many attractions there in the way of fine goods at low figures. The finest loo of Piques for ladies and children's dresses ever offered in the city are on exhibition there to-day, in addition to which is a full stock of linen goods, consisting in part of towels, napkins, handkerchiefs, pillow linens, sheetings, &c. A large stock of marsailles, honoy comb, Alhambra and Imperial; also, a full assortment of crib and cradle quilts of every conceivable pattern. The stock of silks and dress goods generally is very large and attractive. Last but not least, is the large stock of shawls, spring cloths, buttons for saccues and a superior cloths, buttons for sacques and a superior assortment of chintzes.

Lotta.

Last night a full house greeted this actress. The first piece, the "Pet of the Petticoats," was well played by Lotta, because she cannot play otherwise, and the stock did not do badly, especially Mrs. Mark in a truly remarkable degree by the rumors | Bates, who is a host (or perhaps a hostess) in herself. But in the after-piece, as "Nan the Good for Nothing," the "Draniatic Cocktail" completely took the audience by Cocktail completely took the audience by storm, her singing, her toilette, her dancing, banjo-playing and sweet and perfectly irresistible face acted like magic on the audience, which from gallery to orchestra applauded with all its might. Five times did would probably have been doing so yet if she had not, with one of her characteristic tigued. What Lotta is the New York critics have in fain tried to tell: When Mini said last night to Paul, "You are the Devil," she was nearly right; for surely only a supernatural being could be so sweet; joyous, fascinating and effervescent as was the pretty debutante of last evening. To night she will appear in the same roles as last night, and those who cannot see her are greatly to be pitied.

Pocket Picked. John Savage, while attending the sale of the lease on the Optic Saloon, Fifth street, yesterday, had his pocket picked of his pocket book containing twelve dollars. He discovered his loss as soon as he left the saloon, and remembering that a young man, a stranger in the city, was near him while in the building, he informed an officer, and pointing the young man out, had him arrested. The accused, who was conveyed to the watch house, gave his name as Edward Andrews, and said that he had just arrived in the city from Philadelphia. He is a tinsmith and in search of work. He tells a plain, straight forward story, and has not the appearance of a thief or pickpocket. He will probably be released from custody to-

Every patient has written his or her name on a scroll book certifying to these facts, and each name is numbered from the beginning. A few days since a patient wrote opposite to his name: "Had Dr. Spencer lived in ancient times he would have been worshipped as divine. Prometheus stole fire from heaven. But Dr. Spencer can pluck without pain the burning fire-brand from hell." A clergy-nan wrote: "When I entered Dr. Spencer's office and saw on the door, Teeth extracted without pain,' I thought it a very bold statement. I can now certify that it is proved, breath sweetened, and life length ed by having them extracted and a new set inserted. It is as easy to have then out, as far as pain is concerned, as to wish them out.
