May Comp., 1865.... PITTSBURGH PETROLEUM MARKET.

OFFICE OF THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE, TUESDAY, March 24, 1868. CRUDE—The Crudo market was a little weak, apparently, to-day, and, compared with yesterday, prices are off fully a quarter. We have but a single sale to record, 1000 to 1200 bbls for 'immediate delivery at 81/40—last evening—6000 bbls to be delivered between now and the first of May, seller's option, at 834c; also, 107 bbls at 834c, bbls returned. Spot oil cannot fairly be quoted above 8%c to-day, against 8%c yesterday, and even at this reduction, buyers did not appear to be very anxious to take hold, though they are always backward about buying when the market has a drooping fendency. Future deliveries are unchanged, nominally, and, in the absence of sales, yesterdays quotations may be regarded as the standard of values. We have no advices from Oil City to-day, but, we no advices from Oil City to-day, but, we presume, there is no change; one thing, however, is generally conceded, prices are still too much inflated at that point for this

REFINED—The market for bonded oil is quiet and unchanged. But two sales reported, two five hundred barrel lots for April, seller's option option, at 25c. March is still quoted at 241/6243/c, while for May, is still quoted at 24½@24¾c, while for May, June and July, there seems to be no change whatever. There is still considerable inquiry for present and future deliveries, and we would have plenty of sales to report, were it not for the fact that there are but very few sellers at the prices offered; refluers claim, and with good reason, too, that taking the present prices of crude and reflued there is no margin, and hence they refined, there is no margin, and hence they prefer keeping their oil to selling with no prospect of any return.
