The Pittsburgh Gazette.

THE FIRST BLUE BIRD.

Whatever weight the hours have borne Along the path of frost and snow, The world is never too forlorn. For birds to sing again; we know That earliest buds will soon expand That Spring is somewhere in the land For hark! the blue bird sings.

Somewhere the grass is green again,
The meadow mild with shower and sun;
Out bud the trees, up starts the grain,
Through baimy woods the brook doth ran,
If anywhere such things may be
Then why not soon for thee and me?
For hark! the blue bird sings.

The world is old, the world is old,
But Spring is ever fresh and new;
No dream so fair, no hope so bold,
But some sweet day may find it true;
Who knows how soon that morn may rise
And fill us with a glad surprise?
For hark: the blue bird sings.

-When George IV. of England was a boy of fourteen he was severely flogged thrown into Congress." It is therefore strongly in favor of retaining the remarkably his father's orders. George IV. was, one of the worst and most contemptible of Kings. Albert Edward must surely have been flogged when aged fourteen. -Pouring boiling water on servant girls Pouring boiling water on servant girls gree of Doctor of Medicine, and several of was the favorite amusement of the wife of the alumni have already built up a large and a respectable shop keeper in London. Keep- lucrative practice.

ing the wives of all sorts of respectable people in hot water is the favorite amusement of servant girls here. The servant girls have more than a balance in their favor.

-An American Captain Howard hit a man named Carstairs, on the head with water bottle, in Liverpool, because he would. sing "the bonnie blue flag," in spite of frequent requests that he should cease. An altercation followed by the water bottle was the result. Carstairs died a day or two afterwards from the wound.

-Agnes Brown, of Ohio, is said to be 110 and Mary Floyd, of Kentucky, 101 years old; both are colored. It is remarkable the number of colored "centurions," as A. Ward would say. So many colored persons have been unable to keep family bibles, that we think that probably their memory magnifies their vears.

-The New York World says: England has had an Admiral King; may we not as fitly make an Admiral President?" Let us extend that logic a little. England decapitated a King; why shall we not hang a President? England drove away one King in disgrace and appointed his successor; why shan't we do the same thing to a President?

ON ST PATRICK'S DAY, after the procession, a grand banquet was given in Montreal. Among the guests was Gen. AVERILL the United States Consul General. After a most complimentary speech at the General, the chairman gave as a toast The President of the United States." To this the General responded in a speech, which was o stamped with the General's usual good sense that we give below an extract. After referring briefly to the personal compliments of the chairman he mentioned the present crisis in home politics, and his belief that they would turn out all right in time, and then added:

"I believe in the hard-working Anglo saxon, and for that matter in every body else that works and respects labor, and I d not believe that any individual or party will be able to injure the country seriously of permanently. "The mills of the God grind slow, but exceedingly fine." mills are now grinding the idleness, pride, presumption, and barbarism of the Southheir ignorant lazy whites—their bold and able, but often presumptious white men and their poor barbarian freedmen-a mixed and mighty grist, which no power on earth can prevent being reduced to atoms and moulded into new forms. Such noble characters in war and peace as the Lees and Longstreets of the South will serve as a strong leaven to the new mould. Beyond this generation I look with confident assurnce to the day when that land—fertilized by the dust of this decayed past, and furerity. And we shall not object to the in rowed by the ploughshare of war-will yield a rich harvest of civilization and prosroduction of new materials there. We want plenty of Irishmen. Irish blood has flowed since the foundation of the Republic into the veins of our people, and has been spilled freely upon our soil. They bend their steps into every avenue of our indusns, poetry, and songs o tries: the traditio Ireland are established in our hearts and minds, so that it is no wonder St. Patrick's Day has come to be observed in every town and hamlet of our country almost as regularly as any of our national holidays."

A slight reference to the proposed Irish reform closed the speech, which was received | Entire Stock of Goods Closing Out, with enthusiasm.

AT Todmorden, England, the Rev. Mr. Plows, the incumbent of the parish, Mrs. Plows and several of the servants were attacked, on the night of the 2d instant, by a suitor of one of the maid servants who had been discharged on account of his visits. Armed with a hatchet and a pistol, the man made a furious attack on Mr. Plows, and frightfully mutilated him about the head. He next attacked the female servants, and a housemaid was shot dead. The murderer then armed himself with a poker, and proceeded to a bedroom in which Mrs. Plows was lying, and where she had recently given birth to a child. Stripping down the bed-clothes, he fired at Mrs. Plows, but the ball did not take effect. He next attacked her savagely with a poker, inflicting severe scalp wounds, breaking her nose, and otherwise injuring her. While in the act of striking a precarious state.

THE Prince of Wales held a levee at St. James' Palace on the 3d inst., which was attended by the entire diplomatic corps with the exception of the American embassy. The Pall Mall Gazette says that "this arose from the fact that the American Congress States not to wear court suits. Mr. Adams does not care to revive the sensation excited a few years ago by the attempt of an ardent American diplomat to appear at court in a simple evening dress—an attempt which resulted in a squabble with the flunkeys and a long diplomatic correspondence—and con-sequently he stays at home."

ATTEMPTS have frequently been made to use bitumen and asphaltum in manufacturbefore distillation, has, however, as already referred to in the Ledger, shown a marked improvement in the quality of the light. A mixture of 25 per cent. of bitumen and 75 per cent. of a certain kind of gas coal, yielding by itself 18.1-2 candle gas, has given a 10 and 20 candle gas, and there is little reason to doubt that we may in some such manner secure a better light than we have enjoyed for some time. Certain varieties of petroleum may be equally or even more ap-

-On Sunday night a vast mass of ice floated out of Rondout Creek and carried with it a sectional dock owned by Mr. Morgan Everson, on which lay the steamboat 8. F. Brown. Some fifteen or twenty canal boats, a sloop, a Sleightburg ferry boat, and a barge were all torn from their moorings and forced into the main channel. Seven about promiscuously in the river until Tues-day noon, at which time steamboats of the Cornell Line were busily engaged in towing them back into the creek.
