The votes were then given. Bishop White named me as one of the tellers, and I declined, under the apprehension that some of our men might have been induced to give way, and that I might possibly be suspected. For the same reason I gave my own voto open, in pledge. The result was the election of Bishop Onderdonk, while seventeen Loor Church votes were given for myself, mak-ing me appear to be what I was not, viz-the candidate of their party.
