

LETTER FROM NEW YORK

Home for Working Women—The Gospel of the Chamber of Commerce—Base Ball—Racing News—Miscellaneous Items.

New York, April 4, 1868. The boarders at the Working Women's Home gave a reception on Thursday evening to their family friends and those of the institution. It was largely attended. There are now one hundred and fifty boarders in the building, which is quite a goodly number, considering the brief time the Home has been established. It will, however, accommodate five hundred. A library, comfortable parlors, and bedrooms, and good board and washing are furnished, and the inmates can have the freedom and comforts of a well regulated family, where the costs are such as may be met by the humblest toiling woman. This Home was organized as an experiment, and bids fairly for success.

The semi-centennial anniversary of the New York Port Society for Promoting the General among Seamen and their Families. In the address of the Hon. W. E. Dodge, the Chamber of Commerce was complimented in its consideration of a plan for founding a Normal School for the education of Sailors. Such a school is necessary, and under the auspices of the Chamber of Commerce could hardly fail of a great success. The sailor boy in such a school as the one proposed could be educated to the full duties of a ship commander, and the importance of this project will immediately be recognized, when it is considered how large a number of sailors find homes for their families in this city.

The centennial celebration of the organization of the New York Chamber of Commerce will take place on Monday evening next, when addresses will be made by the President, and by Messrs. Dow, Oplkyke, Grinnell and Jonathan Stryker. A sketch of the history of the Chamber will be read by the Secretary. Invitations to be present have been extended to members of the learned professions and to the heads of the departments of the State and City.

The Union Base Ball Club of Morrisiana—the champion of the United States—opened the season on their ground at Melrose on Wednesday, with a game between themselves and the best field party which could be made up from the spectators. The odds of five outs was given the field party and even then they were whipped. In a few days the innumerable hosts of base ballists will be in the midst of games.

At a recent meeting of the American Jockey Club, measures were taken for the establishment of subscription rooms, the entrance fee to which shall be from $10 to $50, and where a match book shall be kept for the registration of all racing bets. These will be known as "The American Tattersal Subscription Rooms," and will be governed by nearly the same rules as those enforced in the rooms of the Messrs. Tattersall, in London. Pool selling is not to be allowed here. At the next meeting of the Club the question comes up as to whether pool selling is to be again allowed in Jerome Park. It is to be hoped that this swindling pool selling system may be abolished altogether. The Jockey Club will have their headquarters in these subscription rooms.

The anniversary of the fall of Richmond was duly celebrated last evening, at Steiner Hall, by Post Sedgwick, No. 11, Grand Army of the Republic. The oration was very large. Miss Clara Barton delivered her lecture on the "Work and Incidents of Army Life." General Rush C. Hawkins made an address. The music was very fine.

After public decency had been outraged for many months by the display and sale upon our streets of licentious illustrated papers, and the cheapness of such citizens had become well nigh exhausted at the criminal tolerance of the authorities with regard to these vile sheets, it is most gratifying to be able to chronicle the fact that the Superintendent of the Police has issued orders for the seizure of all copies of the Illustrated Police News wherever exposed for sale. The wholesale dealers, hearing of this order, declined to sell any copies to the news men, and sent the remaining copies to Boston. This is well, but the authorities should not stop with the licentious press of the hub. Among the vilest of the vile papers are those published in this city, and daily exposed upon our streets.

LETTER FROM ST. LOUIS

Growth of the City—What is Needed—An Item for Water Street.

St. Louis, March 31, 1868. DEAR GAZETTE.—With the genial weather of the past few days, trade has looked up, merchants' look happy, and the wharf is lined with steamers filled with merchandise. This beautiful and solid city is awaking from the deathly lethargy of slavery, and breaking the honors with which its trade is fettered in the years of martial law. To quote from the Democrat (a good radical sheet and the liveliest business paper here), in a recent trade editorial: "She realizes the existence of a village on Lake Michigan, of the liveliest and trickiest, called Chicago, and (retaining all the old sterling honor, for which St. Louis is famous commercially) is learning lessons in trade."

To be sure she has a good deal to learn. It costs about fifty dollars (in the way of commissions, &c.) more to sell a car load of wheat in St. Louis than in Chicago. To go from here to any upper Mississippi point by rail, you must take Chicago in your route, the only Telegraph Company here (the Western Union) charges four times as much from St. Louis to Pittsburgh as we pay from Pittsburgh to New York. But this is passing away. St. Louis no longer relies inertly and lazily upon her unparalleled natural advantages as of yore, but is using railroads, elevators and all the newest appliances of trade freely, and the day dawns when, through the Valley of the Father of Waters, and more telegraph facilities, she will take her proud place in the van of improvement's march, completely divested of the foggy memories of Pittsburgh, Queen of foggy cities. Already direct importations of foreign commodities, via New Orleans, are largely resumed; cargoes of wheat are billed through to Liverpool, as well as thousands of tons of pig iron and similar staples.

Tell Water street that Wheeling nails are all the go here, the dealers saying that they are better, stronger, smoother and in better kegs than Pittsburgh nails. One Wheeling house sold nearly fifty thousand kegs in this market last year, with a connection imperfectly established, and expects largely to exceed that amount this season. (From the St. Louis Freight: From Pittsburgh are down to 18c, I hope the steamboatmen like it—shippers seem to.)

A Good Cement—Alum and plaster of Paris will mix with water, and used in a liquid state will form a very heavy cement. It will be found quite heavy for many purposes. It forms a very hard composition, and for firing the bricks, etc., on lamps, nothing could be better.

How to Judge Character by the Hair.

(From the Secrets of Beauty.)

Coarse black hair and dark skin signify great power of character, with a tendency to sensuality. Fine hair and dark skin indicate strength of character, along with purity of goodness. Stiff, straight black hair and dark indicates a coarse, strong, rigid, straightforward character. Fine dark hair signifies the combination of exquisite sensibility with great force of character. Flat, clinging, straight hair, a melancholy but extremely constant character. Harsh, upright hair is the sign of a reticent and sour spirit, a stubborn and harsh character. Coarse red hair and whiskers indicate powerful animal passions, together with a corresponding strength of character. Auburn hair, with florid countenance, denotes the highest order of sentiment and intensity of feeling, purity of character, with the highest capacity for enjoyment or suffering. Straight, even, smooth and glossy hair denotes strength, harmony and sweetness of character, hearty affections, a clear head and superior talents.

The hair, delicate, supple hair is the mark of a delicate and sensitive temperament, and speaks in favor of the mind and character of the owner. Crisp, curly hair indicates a hasty, somewhat impetuous and rash character. White hair denotes a lymphatic and indolent constitution, and may add that besides these qualities there are many other properties residing in the coloring matter of the hair tube which undoubtedly have some effect upon the disposition. Thus red haired people are notoriously passionate and red hair is proved by analysis to contain a large amount of sulphur, and very black is colored with almost pure carbon. The presence of these matters in the blood points to peculiarities of temperament and feeling, which are almost universally associated with them. The very way in which the hair flows is strongly indicative of the ruling passions and inclinations, and perhaps a clever person could give a shrewd guess of the manner of a man or woman's disposition by only seeing the back of their heads.

A Parisian Romance. A young married couple in Paris, extremely wealthy and adoring one another, after six months of rapture, found themselves invalids. At first they concealed from each other their sufferings, but their malices continued to increase. The physician was called in found that the patient's jeune femme had symptoms of phthisis, while the husband suffered from a complication of disorders of the highest and most serious matter. The decision was that the climate of the South was necessary for the young wife, and that of a colder climate for the husband. The sun of Nice, orange trees, and the blue Mediterranean for the one, and long journeys through the mountains, plains, flocks, and mountains of Norway for the other. Thus spoke the doctor.

At immense expense the spirit of his disease was carried out, and his letter was evaded. Two houses were built, in one of which was a miniature Siberia, full of currents of air, in every respect cold and dry, where, by dint of taking violent exercise in every imaginable way, and working his system, the husband endeavored to recover his health, while in the adjacent building everything was warm, luxurious, soothing and tropical. This latter was the home of the young wife. The pair, perfectly happy, living, as it were, a thousand miles apart—the one amid his froreos, representing icebergs and reindeer—the lady in a constant scene of flowers and lemon trees.

It would be pleasant to add that both recovered, but such was unfortunately not the case. This fair life lasted three years, when the one and the other died. While they lived they were, however, happy.

Kite Flying. The India correspondent of the London News, speaking of the town of Patna, says: "Patna is famous for kites. Anybody desirous of making his fortune quickly, should naturalize the Patna kite in England. Every tenth shop in the bazaar is a kite shop, and you would think that the whole population flies kites. With them it is a scientific amusement. The kite is diamond shaped, and light as a feather. It has no tail, and is flown on an almost incredible height with the lightest possible silk cord or thread. This thread is rubbed with powdered glass; and the science of kite flying consists in artfully causing your kite to fall across your antagonist's line, which will be prepared with glass, it cuts like a knife, and so then your antagonist's kite flies away, and is lost, and you win the wager dependent on the match."
