BY W. H. VENABLE. Hear our three times three, before
Thou sailest from Columbia's shore—
Hero of the charm'd pen,
Loved of children, loved of men. Loved of children, loved of men.
We have felt thy spell for years:
Oft with laughter, oft with tears,
Thou hast touched the tender part,
Of our inmost, hidden heart;
We have fixed our eager gaze,
On thy pages nights and days,
Wishing as we turned them of the s we turned them o'er, Like poor Oliver, for more; And the creatures of thy brain, In our memory remain, Till through them we seem to be, Therefore, hear our cheers before.

Sailing from Columbia's shore. In immortal Weller's name, By the rare Micawber's fame. By the flogging wreaked on Squeers, By the hungry Jingle's tears, By the Bendle Bumble's fate, By the hands of snight and By the famous Pickwick Club, the hands of shrewish mate, By the dream of Gabriel Grubb; in the name of Snodgrass' muse. Tappy's amorous interviews, Wiukle's ludicrous mishaps, And the fat boy's countless naps; By Ben Allen and Bob Sawyer, By Miss Sallio Brass, the lawyer:

River Thames and London fogs, Honest Cap'n Cuttle's hook, Pickwick's memorandum book, Richard Swiveller's excess, easting with the Marchioness: By Jack Bimsby's oracles. the chime of Christmas bells. By the cricket on the hearth, By the sound of childish mirth. By spread tables and good cheer, Wayside inns and pots of beer, Hostess plump and jolly host, Stages for the turnpike post, Chamberniaid in love with Boots, Chambermand in love with Boots, Toodles, Traddles, Tapley, Toots, Betsy Trotwood, Mister Dick, Susan Napper, Mrs. Chick, Snevellieci, Lilyvick, Mantillini's predilections

To trausfer his "dem" affections, Branch Barraby and Grip. By poor Barnaby and Grip, Flora, Dora, Di and Jip, Peerybingle, Pinch and Pip,— Hear our three times three before Sailing from Columbia's shore.

In the name of gentle Nell, Child of light, beloved so well, Upon whose white, unmoving breast
We, weeping, saw the roses prest;
And by the grave where Smike was laid,
Round which his mournful cousins played By tiny Tim, whose plaintive tone Asks God to "bless us every one;" And by the sounding waves that bore Poor little Paul to heaven's shore: By each ideal thou hast given Of mortal goodness fit for heaven, By thy yearning toward the human Good in every man and woman, By every worthy deed and word Thy cherished story-book record, By every noble sentiment Thy genius to the world has lent, By every effort thou hast made The cause of just reform to aid, By all thy hope of man's relief

From want, and ignorance; and grief, By all thy faith that coming time Will soften pain and lessen crime. And by thy never-failing trust That God is merciful and just-We send our blessing after thee, Great preacher of humanity, And give the three times three before CINCINNATI, OHIO.

A Genuine French Romance. One of those little romances of which the French are so fond, has lately Taken place in Paris, and is thus described in a journal; Mr. Robert, an immensely wealthy and highly accomplished elegant, well known not only for his valuable collections of paintings and medieval relics, but for his rare skill as a designer and painter, hearing that one of his tenants, a Mr. B., whom he had never seen, kept one of the most extensive ateliers of fancy boxes and ornamental grand instrument. In one of the organs, which he is now constructing both steam objects in France, called on him with a view to make his acquaintance.

Entering the counting room he found a good natured, eccentric gentleman of middle age, who greeted him, and exclaimed:

'I suppose that you also have seen my advertisement and come to apply for that situations and designable.

ation as designer?!!
For a joke, M. Robert replied that he had. M. B. supplied him with paints and brushes, and requested him to produce a design for a casket. M. Robert soon found that what M. B. really wanted was an artist who would strictly carry out his own ideas, and that these were pure, and formed on an extensive knowledge of art. In a short time he produced a sketch which suited the em-

M. Robert very gravely engaged himself, exacted good wages, and insisted on having several new articles of furniture placed in the room which was assigned to him...But when he was introduced to the work rooms district for the purpose of nominating a candidate for when he was introduced to the work rooms district for the purpose of nominating candidated for Senate, (Assembly, District Attorney and nd found one hundred and fifty girls, many m young and beautiful, busily employ ed and was informed that he would be required to supply them with designs and show the young ladies how they were to be carried out, the young artist began to feel as Tif he should have to be carried out himself being very susceptible.

"Working for a living." said he to him-self, "is not entirely devoid of attractions."

Let us work."

M. Robert being an accomplished artist, delighted his employer, and he soon found a remarkable fascination in seeing his designs realized in steet, silver, enamel, or wood. He took a pleasure hitherto unknown in seeing his works in shop-windows and finding them in the bondoirs of his friends.

The control of the rate of course concealed the control of the sample of of the samp young lady who also took part in the duties of the steller. This damsel was as re-markable for her accomplishments as for her markable for her accomplishments as for her extraordinary beauty, and M. Robert soon found that as regarded taste and culture it all matters which specially interested her, he hadneyer met with any one like him. Step by the p, the pair fell in love, and little by little the artist on ingratiated diffusely. by little the artist so ingratiated himself with the latter, that the latter, after due der Riberation, consented to their union

This caused a peal of laughter, which was redoubled when the artist added.

A Story from Paris. A Paris letter tells the following story of Twelfth Night fete in that city:

A wealthy family in the aristocratic Boulevard Malesherbes were amusing themselves in seeking the King's portion, or the ring in the festival cake, when a lady of the company says to the hostess: "I wish my portion to be given, to the poorest little boy we can find in the street." The servant was dispatched on this freezing night, and not far from the house he found a ragged urchin, trembling with cold and hunger. He brought him up, was ordered into the saloon, where a thousand lights glittered, and a sparkling fire glad-dened and surprised him. He drew hisportion which the benevolent lady had prom ised, and as luck would have it, the little fellow found the "ring," (beans they use in Paris instead,) and of course, he was "King." They all shouted out that, being a King, he must chose a Queen. He was asked to do so, and looking round the company, he chose the very lady who had pro-posed to cede her portion of cake. He was asked why he chose her. He said:

"T don't know; she looks most like moth-"Mother I whose mother?" "My mother! I never knew her, but was tolen away from her, and here is her por-With this he drew from out his ragged coat a likeness, which proved to be that of the very lady herself, who, in Italy, had her child stolen from her, and now he turns up a poor little ragged Savoyard, dragging along a miserable existence in Paris, while his mother, by an intuition, perhaps, felt that in the air near to where she was, was one so dear to her.

A Lucky Old Lady.

An old woman of the middle class recently appeared in a jeweler's shop in Paris, and produced a bag of old gold and silver coins, which she wished to have made into buttons for a birthday present for her daughter.

"hear," said she, "that such things are worn nowadays, and I'm determined that petite shall have as fine buttons as anybody."
"But madame, perhaps, does not know "But madame, perhaps, d the value of these," replied the jeweler, who was both honest and learned in coins. "Indeed I do," said the old dame. "Folks wanted me to believe they were rusty copper, and of no account, but I know they're good gold. They couldn't cheat me." "But they have an additional value as curiosities," persisted the good man. And he explained to her, of which she had no idea, that some coins were worth twenty times their intrinsic value. Hearing this, the good woman produced a large number of brooches or clasps and other ornaments, which her father had disinterred from Merovingian graves in Burgundy, and which she had not hitherto dared to sell, from a current belief that they belonged to the Government. The collection, which was of incredible value, was purchased from her at a fair price, and now adorns the museum of

THERE IS A speck of war in Nassau—the same Nassau that during our war was the paradise of blockade runners. It appears that the Lower House of the Nassau Legislist the Lower House of the Massau Legislature rater an excited debate, passed, by five majority, a bill for the disendowment of the established Church. This bill was vetoed by the Executive Council, and the Lower House becoming indignant, sent a Lower House becoming indignant, sent a request to the Governor that the Legislature be dissolved and a new election ordered. This the Governor refused, as an appeal to the people would be fatal to the Government party, which is identified with the Church. The dispatches say the excitement runs so high that bloodshed is feared, and the Liberals have voted an address to the Home Secretary in England, asking that the Governor be compelled to conform to the wishes of the Lower House and order a new elec-

THE ingenious English organ builder who invented the pneumatic lever, has perfected several other improvements in this and electricity are impressed into the service, the result of which is to make it as easy, physically, to play the full organ, as to run the fingers over a piano forte.
