EPHEMERIS.

The Admiral has reached Malta. -Scranton, Penna., is to have a Welsh paper. -Clermont, Iowa, is to have a public library. -Titusville had a masquerade ball on Monday. -D'Arcy McGee's brain weighed fifty-nine ounces. -Dr. Justa Dgonso, Bishop of Senano in Peru, is dead. -There were 700 deaths by accident in Paris last year. -Diamonds of considerable value are found in Montana. -A boy in Iowa killed thirty-five snakes one day last week. -The second Surrat trial is announced as the sensation for May. -The Louisville Board of Health costs eight thousand dollars. -The Prince of Wales is going to Baden-Baden during the summer. -A short-hand edition of the Bible has been published in England. -Strawberries are for sale in Boston now. They are from hot houses. -Mr. Lawton, the blackberry man, has made a fortune out of his berries. -The writings of Confucius and Emerson are said to resemble each other. -Chicago is said to be the distributing point for 40,000 American postoffices. -Thirty thousand people marched in the funeral procession of D'Arcy McGee. -Madeline Henriques, at present Mrs. Jennings, is the mother of a daughter. -Toledo thinks it stands a fair chance of being the future great city of the world. -Roxborough has a cradle factory and an undertaker's shop side by side, Alpha and Omega. -Glover, the English Composer has assumed the Baton in the Orchestra at Niblo's theatre. -Boston hotels all have elevators," says the Post, "generally located in the bar-rooms." -The "Veteran Observer" of the New York Times is about to publish a life of Gen. Grant. -The English government is about to introduce the culture of tea into the island of Jamaica. -The bricklayers of Louisville have concluded that they must have $5 per day for their services. -London has a troupe of Hindoo acrobats and jugglers said to surpass the Japanese and Arabs. -The King of Hanover is said to have remarked that the King of Prussia is the modern Esther. -The greater part of the real estate in Cincinnati is owned by persons of the Hebrew persuasion. -Mr. and Mrs. Dion Boucicault are playing the heart of Midlothian at the Princess theatre, in London. -Gen. Garfield and Walt Whitman are said to strikingly resemble each other in personal appearance. -The Worrall sisters have brought out a new English version of La Belle Helene at their theatre in New York. -The names of thirty-three Pittsburghers were on the hotel lists of the Philadelphia Press for Wednesday. -There are supposed to be 7,000,000 of dogs in this country and they kill $41,000,000 worth of sheep annually. -It costs less now, thanks to competition, to travel from St. Louis to New York, than from Cincinnati to New York. -The Indians in Florida are reported to have declared war against the whites. Perhaps we may have a new Osceola. -Nashville has a party of treasure diggers who are very mysterious, and excite the population by their evolutions. -Paris has a population of nearly two million and there were 700 suicides in the city last year, 457 of whom were unmarried. -Twenty-seven million pounds of gun powder were consumed by the Government during the late rebellion. Quite enough to blast the whole country. -The "Saturday Review" thinks that because Robert C. Winthrop's speeches are so excellent they evince an English rather than an American tone. -"Charge was the Captain's cry." This Captain, the Earl of Cardigan, who led the immortal Balaklava charge, is dead. He was seventy-one years old. -The Fat Contributor, who has borrowed one of Thackeray's noms de plume, without any ability to support it, is lecturing on "Injun Meal" in Washington. -This year the season at Lake George will open on the 6th of June. The steamer will begin to run on the Lake on that day, and the hotels will all be opened. -Eight hundred German emigrants are now on board the new steamer Berlin, bound from Bremen for Baltimore. Baltimore is preparing to receive them. -An eastern exchange ill-naturedly remarks that the cotton trade is always observed to revive about the time the season for dress making with the ladies begins. -A machine for thawing out frozen water pipes has been invented, and is a perfect success. The inventor will incur the blessings of thousands of house keepers. -Mr. Dickens has read for the last time in America; unless he thinks sometime again, that he can make another couple of hundred thousand dollars out of the Yankee. -A grand Senger Fest is to be held in June in Chicago. Nearly one hundred German singing societies will, it is thought, be represented coming from all parts of the country. -With one exception, all the candidates on the Democratic ticket in South Carolina were in the rebel army as officers. With-stander doubts they represent well their constituents. -The Prince Philippe de Coburg and the Duke de Palmier have completed their tour through the United States and left New Orleans on the 9th inst. on their way to Brazil via Havana. -No Thoroughfare has been played for ninety nights at the Adelphi theatre, in London. This is the theatre where Miss Bateman played Leah for more than a year every night, Sundays and Fashion week excepted. -Besides four other biographies of Gen. Grant, each of the Heady's and one of the Abbott's have taken his life. Now, if Parton could be induced to write one, the misery of the General might be considered complete. -About fifty of the proposed candidates for Governor of Illinois have declined, the other candidates, embracing nearly all the able bodied men in the State who can read, have not yet decided on what course they will pursue. -Becher thinks the millenium, when it comes will be known, not by any strawberry mark, but by the universal prevalence of good, pure butter. Becher likes good butter, and his housekeeper don't always buy that kind. -Cincinnati preachers had a debate on the question "How far ought we to conform our preaching to the present popular demand for sensationalism?" They could not agree. The meeting was at the house of the Rev. Henry D. Moore. -Miss Oscanyan, daughter of the lecturer, has an admirer connected with the press, and he says she is the most beautiful woman in the United States. Loads of girls have had men say that about them, but they didn't put it in the papers. -The Philadelphia Evening Bulletin, which, by the way, is a really excellent evening paper, attained its majority on the 10th inst. Philadelphians are people of taste, or they would not sustain for twenty-one years a journal of this character. -A serious riot in Key West between some forty or fifty negroes and six or eight white sailors resulted in several of each party being badly wounded but none were killed. The riot was caused by some of the sailors beating a negro woman and her child. -Eighty-six thousand more messages were sent by telegraph during the first two months of this year, in Switzerland, than during the corresponding period of time last year. This great increase is due to a fifty per cent. reduction in the rates, which are now one cent per word. -The Boston Post speaks of "the universal disgust excited by the impeachment trial." The disgust was excited long ago and is only renewed by the trial which recalls to minds, willing to forget them, the outrageous doings of a man whose high position demanded decency if not dignity of behavior. -That capital little farce, "The Spirit of 1876, or the Coming Woman," which is said to have had a larger sale in a shorter time than any book since Nothing to Wear took the public by storm, has been produced at Selwyn's Theatre, in Boston, though it was never intended by the author for the public stage. -Brick Pomeroy announces himself as the leader of a new rebellion, otherwise "of a grand military and civil Democratic movement." Brick may be a very fine man in every way, but thus far the only qualification for leadership that he has shown is an unlimited command of the foulest billingsgate, and unlimited "cheek" in displaying it. -A Foreign View of Impeachment. An eminent American ambassador at one of the great courts of Europe, writes to a friend in Washington that there is much speculation in the diplomatic world respecting the impeachment of the President. It is argued that the President is the executor of the laws, and he is bound to obey as well as enforce them. Diplomats hold that the head of the Republic as well as the humblest citizen is responsible for violations of law, and that if the offenses charged against him are proved he has committed a constitutional crime for which he must suffer the penalty prescribed by the Constitution. It is said all around that it is desirable for the welfare of the people of Europe that its sovereign should be held to a like responsibility for their acts. Whoever way the impeachment terminates it will increase the respect entertained for the United States in Europe. Should the President be acquitted, it will be said that justice has triumphed because of the want of proof. Should he be convicted, it will be said that the charges were proved, and on the facts he was proved guilty of a violation of constitutional obligations. This trial will have a tendency to excite public opinion in Europe to the necessity of a personal responsibility by monarchs for the acts of the executive branch of the government. It will be another of those great historical acts of the United States which exert a world wide influence for the benefit of humanity and the cause of popular liberty. The foregoing is a literal transcript of the Foreign Ministers' communication on this subject. -Washington Letter.
