SLEEPING IN CHURCH.

"They would scarcely believe him when he told them that, when in Thuro, some time ago, he on one occasion saw six hundred people asleep in church."—Speech of Dr. Guthrie.

Over their devoted head While the law thunder'd, Snugly and heedlessly Snored the six hundred. Great was the preacher's theme: Scrowed on was all the steam; Neither with shout nor scream Could he disturb the dream Of the six hundred.

Terrors to the right of them, Terrors to the left of them, Terrors in front of them— Hell itself plundered Of its most awful things. Weak-minded preacher flings At the dumb founded, Roidly he speaks and well; All on deaf ears it fell; Vain was his loudest yell Volley'd and thunder'd; For caring—the truth to tell— Neither for heaven or hell, Snored the six hundred.

Still, with redoubled zeal, Still, he spoke onward, And, in a wild appeal Striking with fire and zeal— Making the pulpit reel, Shaken and sundered— Called them the church's foes, Threatened with endless woes— Faintly the answer rose (Proof of their sweet repose) From the united nose Of the six hundred.

Storms of near an hour, Too much for human power; Prayers, too, made to match (Extemporaneous batch.) Wofully blundered, With a service of music Fit to turn every pew sick— Should it be wondered? Churches that will not move Out of the ancient groove Through which they have found'red, If they will lag behind, Still must expect to find Hearers of such a kind As the six hundred.

—Blanche Butler is said to look so little like her father, the General, that she is the most beautiful woman in Washington.

—"Death on the Railway" was the subject of a sensation sermon preached in a Lutheran church in Philadelphia on Sunday.

—The Brooklyn Common Council proposed to import English sparrows. These little birds are the best scavengers in Europe.

—At least 1,000,000 volumes changed hands at the recent seven-day's book sale, which closed on the 14th inst. in New York.

—Who ever invented the phrase about winter lingering in the lap of spring, deserves the thanks of about twenty of our exchanges.

—Charlotte Thompson's mother died on the first of April. She was almost what Mrs. Partridge would call a centurion.

—The repertoire of the Italian Opera, in London, has become the most extensive of the Italian Opera houses in Europe. It includes 39 operas.

—Four hundred and fifty-eight horse fairs are held annually in Russia, in two hundred and forty different places.

—The copyright of the song, "Shells of the Ocean," sold in London recently for $1,425, which is pretty well for a mere song.

—The man who dislikes change says that he never gets used to writing 1867 until it is time to write 1869, and so he has to skip every other year.

—The Danish professor Sinding has published a card denying the truth of the statement that the dead languages will not be taught in the Cornell University.

—A company of English and Belgian capitalists are establishing a bank in Honduras. The commerce of the Republic is also to be fostered and increased by the same company.

—The May number of Lippincott's magazine is the best that has yet appeared of that publication, and yet the names of the authors are almost, if not entirely, unknown to fame.

—Basil thinks that about these times, judging by the gloomy way in which business men talk, "there is a tight in the affairs of men which does not lead on to fortune, no matter when taken."

—The Chicago Post suggests that the owners of vessels should be obliged by law to make the decks and upper works of passenger ships fire-proof by a well known chemical process.

—There are two millions of inhabitants in Japan, every one of whom can read, and not one of whom is a beggar or a drunkard. European and American civilization will, however, soon put a stop to this standing reproach.

—Mr. Winwood Ready, whose pleasant attack on Paul Du Chailly amused everybody so much, excepting, of course, the French traveller, is about to return once more to his African explorations.

—The Pope blessed the Prince Imperial on the occasion of his first communion on Easter morning. Telegraph wires were laid down to the rear of the high altar in Notre Dame, so that the blessing came at precisely the right moment.

—A party of Louisvillians went last week on a shooting excursion to Indiana, were gone several days and on their return had a game supper. The whole party succeeded in killing one snipe and one squirrel, which were very elegantly served up.

—A manufactory belonging to the Messrs. Kleeman & Co. was burned on Saturday in Chicago. It contained 53 billiard tables, most of which were quite ready for shipment. The loss was some $40,000, on which there was an insurance of $9,000.

—The Bostonians are stricken with wonder because Janascheck will not remain any longer in the hub. She can't be convinced that Boston is the earthly realization of Paradise, and the people in Boston are so praiseworthy contented that they think she is wrong.

—English papers, thinking that the steam man, or may become an invention of great importance, have begun already to assert that it was patented long ago in England. This little joke has become so stale from constant airing, that if it came from any one but pleasant old John Bull we should be forced to consider it an atrocious bore.

—A Massachusetts paper, sneering at the infinitesimal proportions of one of the New England States says "if a single Mayflower blooms in Rhode Island it can be scented all over the State." This is, however, nothing to Boston where if a man finds out that an ancestor of his had anything to do with the Mayflower he thinks the news of enough importance to send it all over creation.

—An Indian family at Eagle River, Michigan, has been so reduced as to be obliged to eat three horses which were almost new to their existence in another way. Extremes meet. While these poor wretches were thus devouring their friends, the wealthiest of European aristocracy were eating horses for the purpose, if possible, of awakening their pampered appetites to a new sensation.

—The New York Commercial Advertiser objects to the stringent bounds set down by some critics who would have none but perfectly refined and elegant literature, and winds up thus: "Man cannot live by Herbert Spencer and Ruskin alone. He needs also Artemus Ward and Mark Twain! and there are, doubtless, those (though we never meet them) to whom the productions of James Pipes are palatable prog."

—We scarcely dare repeat to our readers the assertion so often already made, that in our opinion the Northern Monthly is the very best magazine published in America, for it is a fact known to every one who reads it. But we think the May number is especially excellent, and we are sure that that large portion of the public which objects to the doctrines of total abstinence will as thoroughly enjoy the article entitled "The proper use of stimulant and narcotics," as every one undoubtedly will enjoy the leading article in the magazine on the "Greenback Era."

—Many people (we might with no very great impropriety say most people) delight in saying disagreeable things about their friends, behind their backs, not thereby meaning anything spiteful, although often doing an immensity of harm to persons whom they really respect. Gossip is not conversation, and there are ten gossips for every one person who can converse. If every one would, when inclined to gossip, remember what Mrs. Lorringer said, there would be fewer scandalous stories, without foundation in truth, floating faithless but not unknown about the world. Mrs. Lorringer's remark was "There's good in all of us, if we only knew where it was in some of us."

—The police difficulty at Louisville will undoubtedly be brought to an end to-day. The Police Commissioners have received their commissions from the Governor, and have already sworn in the majority of their force. To-day they will demand from the Mayor the surrender of the streets and withdrawal of the old force.
