The Pittsburgh Suzette.

A LOCK OF HAIR. A wood-nymph sat by a mossy tree.
One bright May-day when buds were springing;
Her treeses were dark as night could be;
But her best was light and she was singing.
A sunay song in the forest there:
Was it she who gave me this lock of hair? One mildsummer noon, by the signing sea.
Along the pebbly shore I strolled.
And one was there who walked with me.
Whose eyes were azure, whose hair was gold:
Was it she whose forehead yielded me this
Which I hold to my lips and lovingly kiss?

I reamed one twitight through a land
Of crimson and gold, where the autumn sun
Had painted the trees with the deftest hand
That ever to mortal ken was known;
And by my side was a brown-haired girl;
Was it then that I stole a chestnut curl;

The winter winds were wild and drear.

My soul was sick, and I sighed for rest,

My soul was sick, and I sighed for rest,

And the woman who is to me most dear

Kissed me, and soothed me upon her breast;

This tress is as white as a fiske of snow,

And it came from my beautiful mother's brow.

And it came from my beautiful mother's weekly.

EPHEMERIS,

Ricciotti Garibaldi and his brother are going to England. -Upwards of fifty thousand people died in Chicago last year. -There are to be two camps instead of one at Chalons this year. -Grasshoppers are to be very plenty in Western Lowa this year.

large sum of money We might congratulate ourselves on the lecrease in the number of murders all over the country, if we did not know that assassinations had taken their place. Assassinations are fearfully on the increase.

-Fanny Kemble's genius, mighty in itself, is inspired also by the spirit of the greatest tragedienne of a past generation. She reads Lear from a book which was the companion and property of Mrs. Siddons. -Lord Cardigan, in spite of his often forcibly expressed contempt for the canaille, was able to appreciate faithful service. He left one hundred pounds per annum each to his valet, butler, coachman and gardener.

-A Swedish match making company, located at Joenkoeping, sent 36,000,000 boxes of matches to this country in 1866. Pollak, the Vienna match man, also sends an immense number of parlor matches over here. -It must be very disgusting to George Francis Train not to be believed when hesays he is worth $30,000,000. Train is a wonderful instance of the way effervescent materials will subside if allowed to stand

Nobody ever hears anything of him now. -The clergy connected with the diocese of the Archbishop of Turin are going to present to the Princess Margherita, as a wedding present, a book of hours, having on one cover the representation of our Savior's tomb worked in gold and ivory, and on the other the image of St. Margaret in a medallion surrounded by precious stones. -Queen Victoria visited Earl Derby before his departure for Cannes. Anxiety for his health and a desire to honor as much as was in her power, a broken down man who has used himself up in her service, and who has been one of the bulwarks of the great tory party, a party which always had the sympathies of royalty, prompted this unusual proceeding of the Queen.

-The violets of our American forests are devoid of the heavy perfume of their English prototypes, but instead they possess a fresh odor of forests in spring that is as pleasant as, and perhaps more appropriate to their poetical reputation for modesty than the delicious and rather penetrating fragrance which is as charming on the kerchief, as violet ribbons are in the auburn hair of a blonde beauty.

-Two sewing girls in St. Louis being in almost destitute circumstances and desponding, attempted to commit suicide the other day. One of them had already taken poison and the other was about to do so, when a little brother of one of the girls brought in a policeman, who, with the aid of a physician, put a stop to their designs. Both girls have been provided with occupation and homes, and are now comfortable.

-The vile practice of publishing to the world private personalities concerning living people has reached its climax in a book just published in New York, and purporting to be written by a former confidential servant of Mrs. Lincoln, at the White House. If this woman was really what she pretends, confidence was never worse placed nor more ungratefully violated than in her notable production in book form. -The English Dean of Arches has decided against some of the ritualistic practices of the Rev. Mr. Mackonochie, rector of St. Albans, Holborn.
