PITTSBURGH PETROLEUM MARKET.

OFFICE OF THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE, MONDAY, May 11, 1868.

CRUDE—There was a wonderful commotion in the oil market to-day, and what intensified it more was the fact that it was so sudden and unexpected. On Friday and Saturday the market was dull and weak, and, compared with the early part of the Saturday the market was dull and weak, and, compared with the early part of the week, prices had declined fully a cent per gallon; to-day, however, spot oil sold up to 11½c, against 11c on Saturday, and even at the advance; there were but few sellers and plenty of buyers. There are various causes assigned for this sudden change, the most prominent of which, is that it is a vigorous and preconcerted "bull movement" gotten up specially for the occasion by a clique of Pittsburgh and Philadelphia operators on the other hand, it is claimed that the advance is perfectly legitimate, being nothing more nor less than the natural movement of the trade, brought about by legitimate causes; such as greatly diminish stocks, both in this country and in Europe decrease in the production and a steadly in plenty of buyers. There are various causes assigned for this sudden change, the most prominent of which, is that it is a vigorous and preconcerted "bull movement" gotten up specially for the occasion by a clique of Pittsburgh and Philadelphia operators. On the other hand, it is claimed that the advance is perfectly legitimate, being nothing more nor less than the natural movement of the trade, brought about by legitimate causes; such as greatly diminish stocks, both in this country and in Europe, decrease in the production and a steadly increased demand. It is asserted that there are only, about fourteen thousand barrels of cill in warehouses in Philadelphia, and that the stocks in four of the leading European markets is nearly one hundred thousand barrels less than at this time oneyear ago. These are all: speculations, however, and must be taken for what they are worth of one shing, however, there can be no disputationally in the stocks of the state of the trade of the trade. The natural movement of the trade, brought about it is asserted that there are no the production and a steadly in the production and the pr
