Culture of the Sweet Potate. The peculiar requirements of the sweet potato are, a rich sandy, or sandy loam soil, warm and dry. Our Northern droughts and heat do not affect them as they do the common potato, as their native habitat is a warmer climate, with plenty of sun. To secure these, plant on our warmest soil, in round, high hills. Prepare the ground by good manuring and plowing, as for other hoed crops. Any farm manure; well worked into the soil, is good, as the sweet potato is not so particular as the Irish in that respect, but good fermented farmyard manure they luxuriste in. Mark the places for hills three feet centers, by setting up sticks, and if fur-ther manuring is thought necessary, put a shovelful of any composted farm manure in the hill, and mix it well in the upper soil; raise the hills with the hoe or shovel, ten inches high, rounding them off. This is for garden culture; for field or more extended culture, it is more economically done with the team and plow. As soon as danger of frost is past, which in this latitude is from the middle of May to the first week in June, set the plants, two good strong ones, or three smaller, to a hill, first brushing off a little of the topsoil of the hill; set the plants down to the first leaf, pressing the soil carefully, firmly and close around the bottom. Damp or wet weather is best for transplant. ing, although by watering well they may be set out at any other time.

The after cultivation consists mainly in keeping the ground clear of weeds, as for other hoed crops. The vines start slowly at first, but after a while they run vigorously.

In hoeing them, haul the soil towards the plant, and occasionally lift the vines, to keep them from taking root. them from taking root. At the first frost, to cut the vines, dig them in a dry day, and after drying off the soil, store them in a warm place free from frost. They must be handled as carefully as choice fruit, to insure keeping. A few may be drawn in August, or earlier, by running the finger into the hill, and when a good-sized one is felt uncover it, and carefully remove it from the stem, taking it out and returning the soil to

Where the crop is raised on a small scale, it is better to procure the plants from nurserymen, or other experienced propaga-tors, as they are a somewhat peculiar plant to produce. Sweet potatoes are often raised on idges, eight or ten inches high, three to four feet spart; the plants are set on the top of ridges, twelve to sixteen feet apart. More chubby ones are raised where sods are other is on the tapis. This time it is a placed in the bottom of the ridges, as the meeting the sod prevents the extension in length. The ridges should run north and south, to more fully receive the benefit of and got bitten, find that wrought iron points

Small Matters. There are many otherwise good farmers who are entirely regardless of little fixtures, and who devote all their time to the larger matters. Now we hold that while the latter should by all means be made the main objects of attention, the former should on no account be neglected, and it is as much the part of the thoroughly good farmer to nal, who writes over the nom de plume of see to the one as the other. We enjoy vis- "Farmer," says that the tires on his wagons iting a farm where this attention to little wear out before they get loose, and the everywhere noticeable and in complete keeping with the more weighty matters. We like to see well built gates i istead of bars, barn-doors on rollers instead of hinges, and fodder racks for sheep instead of feeding them upon the ground or floor. We ike to see all doors to outbuildings provided with hasps, for both fastening them upon the inside if necessary, and also for pon the inside if necessary, and also for last fall, the snows during the winter, and ecuring them back, when open from the the continued rains of April, all combined action of the wind; to see a gate to shut across a barn door to keep out cattle or sheep when the door is open; to find in connection with every barn, or stable a closet for narnesses and carriage robes, as well as a tool room and a room for the storage of the larger farm tools and implements; to find hooks for hanging up odd pieces of rope, chains, shovels and the like, and nails for hanging up the smaller tools and untensils used upon the farm, as well as boxes for the reception of old iron and every sort of waste; and a work bench and tools for making and repairing all kinds of farm implements. If in examining the buildings upon a farm we find the latter, we are also generally sure to find all the other conveniences suggested above, as well as many others it is not necessary to enumerate. And one hardly knows, without having tried it, how much the farmer can accomplish during his spare hours in the way of fixing up his buildings

We recently passed the residence of a man, who would be indignant did we not class him among the best farmers in the of the camphor that kills the gape-worms; town where he resides, whose ox cart was town where he resides, whose ox cart was used, and a part of whose harrow was visi-ble from beneath a snow drift in an adjoining field. They will be all ready when wanted in the spring, but we fear the example of the farmer in this matter will be hard to be counteracted by his more commendable qualities; and the contrast between him and the farmer who has all his tools and implements well housed in his outbuildings or barn cellar is too striking to need further illustration.—Maine Furmer.

Pleughing Up Old Orchards. A question frequently arises as to the best course to be pursued with an old usglected land orchard, which has become covered with a dense sod of grass, and this often of an inferior character, and full of disagreeable weeds. Orchards that have been widely planted, and which have gaps from the de-cay of trees, especially when these have been trimmed up with high stems, and long, naked branches, do not cast sufficient shade upon the ground to prevent the growth of grass and weeds. These intruders occupy the surface soil to the disadvantage of the roots of the fruit trees, and we may wonder fully improve the health of such orchard by ploughing the ground, and at the same time severely pruning the branches and cleansing the bark of these old trees. These good results may be continued by shallow culture of the soil, with suitable applications of manure where needed. By giving a dose of lime, or marl and ashes, we shall infuse a new life and growth and productiveness that will astonish and delight us, and reward us for our labors and outlay. It may be urged as an objection to break ing up the sod, that the most careful ploughman will unavoidably damage some of the roots that approach the surface, but this is an injury that must be submitted to; and after all, it is not such a serious affair, and is overbalanced by the advantages of renewing the productiveness of the exhausted orin good soil. In poor ground 25 feet will Plant pears and cherries 20 feet apart Dwarf pears should be planted 8 to 10 feet apart.

Plant plums 16 to 18 feet apart. Currants, pie-plants, gooseberries, black and raspberries should be set in long rows six feet apart, and three or four feet apart in the rows.

Strawberries in rows four feet apart and two or three feet in the rows. Always give every early plant set out plenty of room to grow, if you wish it to do its "level best."

Another Swindle on Farmers.-Most of our readers recollect the Hay-fork and other is on the tapis. This time it is a placed in the bottom of the ridges, as the wrought iron plow-point, fitting into a holthe sun's rays in warming up the soil. The vines should occasionally be lifted, and kept on top of the ridger.—W. H. WAITE, in Country Gentleman. up through the Southern counties of the State in order to get into West Virginia, Penasylvania and the Eastern States, farmers would do well to be on the alert for them. Papers desirous of saving their patrons' pockets will direct attention to this ing scheme. It has cost the farmers of the West about $200.000 the past year.

A correspondnt of an agricultural jour-"Farmer," says that the tires on his wagons reason is, he saturates the felloes thoroughly with linseed oil before the tires are set. The felloes are placed in hot oil for about an hour, and are thus rendered perfectly waterproof, so that the shrinking and swelling that loosens the tire are prevented.

THE GRASS crop of Pennsylvania, according to all accounts, will be the heaviest cut for the last ten years. The wet weather of to create a heavy growth of grass, and our farmers now anticipate a yield of hay which will glut the market and defeat the calculations of the speculators in this particular article of agriculture. FARMERS in Western New York make very favorable reports of the crop and fruit prospects in that section. Their work is already well advanced, having been begun about the middle of March. They are sowing largely to barley. The winter grain looks remarkably well. Fruits are enough advanced to show that there will be an abundant crop, with the exception of the peach. REMEDY FOR SAGGING FARM GATES.-Have two latches, or rather one latch and a stationary bar projecting like a latch, which rests on a support cut in the arc or a portion of a circle, that is secured to the post in the same manner as the catch of the latch. When the gate is swung to, the stationary bar strikes on the circular support and raises the gate to its place, and supports it so there is no bearing or strain on the latch or hinges.

To Cure Gapes.—The dose for a chicken five or six weeks old is a pill of camphor the size of a small garden pea. Where the camphor julep given them to drink is strong, they seldom require a pill. It is the odor standing by the road side where it was last impossible, because the parasites are in the wind-pipes.

A BUFFALO paper says twenty four thousand bushels of potatoes were brought to that city last week by lake and Grand Trunk Railway. The last sale reported was fifty barrels at three dollars and fifty cents per barrel. The ruling rate at wholesale is one dollar and twenty-five cents per bushel.
