THE resignation of Secretary McCul-LOCH is promised for to-day, whatever the result of impeachment. A serious difference with the President is assigned as the cause of his intention to retire. The difficulty is supposed to originate in matters connected with the internal revenue.

THE Lehigh Coal and Navigation Company is in financial trouble. Its stock has recently been quoted as low as 18, and its bonds, payable in gold, as low as 87. The prosperity of the coal trade during the later years of the war, induced it to make vast outlays in constructing a railway, parallel to its canal, from Easton up to Mauch there was no profit in the anthracite trade last year, and none this, embarassment naturally ensues.

The resolution was once accepting but five of the articles, to which they are entitled, and to enforce a defeated by the casting vote of Speaker Col- rejecting the rest, that HENDERSON PAX, but subsequently renewed and put condemned eight of the articles and to hope for so sensible a decision. The adjournment is to enable members to attend. the Chicago Convention. They have no business there, and the Convention would be far better off without their presence. If impeachment fails through the weakness or treachery of Republican Senators, these would be likely to find Chicago rather an uncomfortable place next week, and, understanding this well beforehand, they would defeat the resolution.

ONE HOUSE of Congress has passed a bill admitting Arkansas to all its "practical relations" to the Federal government. This bill awaits the action of the Senate. Another bill was reported yesterday in the House also restoring the Carolinas, Louisiana, Georgia and Alabama, which is to come up for action to-morrow. We trust the House will pass the bill as to all the States specified, except Alabama, and that this will be stricken from its provisions. The bill has apparently been made an omnibus measure in order to carry through the one State which has not yet complied with the conditions heretofore imposed by Congress. The Republican party cannot afford to disregard its own consistency of record, or to wink at any evasion of the Federal law-making authority. Alabama has been generously provided for in the SPALDING bill, and no prudent and thoughtful friend of Reconstruction as it has been exemplified, and as it is still to be sustained and enforced in four States, will lend his vote to a measure which he would find it so difficult to defend. No degree of justice, in fact, excuses a violation of the law as its letter stands. Not even the intrinsic merits of the Alabama case can justify a flagrant departure from the right course of legislation. The dispensing power is one entirely too arbitrary to be proper for Republican recognition, and we protest against its exercise in this case. We propose that our record shall be of laws faithfully obeyed, not overslaughed at pleasure, and the party of impeachment has no business with any other proposition at present.

The meeting at Wilkins Hall yesterday was fairly attended by the representatives of the interests especially concerned in the protection of river navigation from obstructions, and the proceedings are embodied in an interesting report in this morning's GAZETTE. Af

IMPEACHMENT.

The air was filled with the buzz of exciting rumors from Washington, yesterday afternoon. Reports ran that, when the Senate went into secret session after adopting the suggestion of the Chief Justice, as given in our dispatches, the expression of opinions by individual Senators followed. A dispatch to the Chronicle says

The result of the impeachment trial is The result of the impeachment that is clouded in doubt, although it is supposed that the President will be removed. The session of the Court to-day is with closed doors. When the final vote will be taken is in doubt. A proposition to postpone further action until the 15th of June has been made by Republican Senators, and it s claimed that a majority of Senators are a favor of the postponement, so that there no certainty that the final vote will be taken on Tuesday, as heretofore ordered.
To-day will be devoted to arguments by Senators pro and con, but it is impossible to sum up the status of the body on the great dent of acquittal.

Up to the time of adjourning, eight Senators had spoken under the fifteen minutes rnle, these were Stewart, Sherman, Grimes Hendricks, Edmunds, Williams, Howe and Morrill, of Maine. Messrs. Stewart, Edmunds, Williams and Morrill sustained all the articles of impeachment, while Sherthe articles of impeachment, white sher-man and Howe sustained only the second, third, fourth, eighth and eleverth articles. Messrs Grines and Henricks took sides with the President and declared him inno-cent of all the articles. My informant says that all but the second, third, fourth, eighth and eleventh article are sure to be defeated, enough. Senators having expressed themselves inside of the Senate Chamber, who have not spoken, to leave no doubt but the others will be defeated.

Messrs. Trumbull, Fessenden, Ross and Fowler have not indicated as yet, how they will vote, although it is expected that Trumbull and Fessenden will vote the same as Sherman and Howe. A statement same as Sherman and Howe. A statement was circulated throughout the Capital that Senator Trumbull had expressed himself as intending to go against all the articles; but it cannot be traced to any reliable source. It is known, however, that he intends to speak during this afternoon, and the excitement is running very high in consequence, to know exactly how he stands. The friends of impeachment are not all discouraged by the treachery of Mr. Grimes, of Iowa, although the feeling against him is running very high among the Iowains at the Capital. The President's private Secretary arrived at the Capitol during the recess of the Senate, and was closeted with Grimes in his committee room during the recess.

3:30 p. m.—After recess of the Senate Garrett Davis took the floor in support of the President's innocence, and was followed by Senator Henderson, who spoke fifteen minutes against the first eight articles, and ceased on account of his time being up, without declaring or intimating that he was in favor of any of the articles. This has discouraged the friends of impeach-well founded, and the President's acquittal be sustained by TRUMBULL and FESSENDEN the result of the closest vote. Add with WINKLE and FOWLER to the twelve Demoderided eleventh article. We need express no opinions upon these speculations. The truth will be known to all to-morrow, and we forbear present remarks.

SECTIONAL POLITICS.

A New York journal congratulates its readers and the public upon the fact that we "are now rid of that monstrous anomaly in our political system-the Southern vote." There is much in this. The "Southern" element in the political experience of the country, from the earliest period of our Na tional existence, controlled parties and shaped the public policy, at home and abroad, with an exclusive view to the maintenance and protection of the aristocratic institution of slavery. No question of national import reached its decision without first receiving the "Southern" endorsement, and no party expected or secured success which falled to conciliate this overshadowing and all potential influence. Southern politicians of all parties were champions of slavery first, and Whigs or Democrats afterwards. This "peculiar institution" was the touch-stone of true South, ern statesmanship and National considerations were invariably reduced to the secondary place. With that "Institution," the despotism of the South in the politics of the Republic has passed away, and the North will no longer be disgraced by its "doughface" servility, or deprived of that share in the control of the National policy to which by the right of its population and material development it is justly entitled. Our political parties are to be hereafterhomogeneous. regardless of geographical or sectional lines, and the deliberations of Congress and of National Conventions will be governed by a policy as broad as the Union itself.

This is the theory of the new state of things. In fact, however, there still rement still united and powerful, animated by its former singleness of purpose, and tenacious of its resolution to re-inaugurate slavery as a social and political institution, will be entirely dependent upon the Northern Democratic co-operation for its continued. existence or its hopes of final success. Southern Democrats declare that they can cajole the colored vote to their support, and that they will improve their first political triumplis for the restoration of the old order of things. Will the Northern Democracy make itself a party to this scheme? The probabilities are that it will. The consolidated Southern strength, shrewdly handled, ruling the party but ensuring its National success as the reward of Northern subserviency, was too potent an element of Democratic rule in the past, to be surrendered as long as a hope exists for its renewed availability. Let the Democracy of the reconstructed States satisfy their Northern triends of their ability to control the Southern vote as of old, and they will find themselves restored to much of their influencewhich has been temporarily lost. The only point that has been really gained by the events of seven years past, is that sectionalism is to be confined to that party alone, and the great Republican organization is Neither special privileges nor "peculiar institutions" are hereafter to shape its policy

tion, to be held at Cleveland on the 27th, should witness a very full representation from this city. At the preliminary meeting at Cleveland, in December, much regret was expressed that a larger delegation was not present from a district of such commanding importance as this. It was felt that the industrial interests of Pittsburgh needed to be very independent of legislative action, and very indifferent to the universal demand for the reduction of taxes, the retrenchment of expenditure and the reform of the revenue service, to explain the nonattendance of a large delegation of its representatives at a meeting which could be made so productive of general benefit to manufacturers throughout the country. The ensuing meeting should have a strong delegation from this city, from every leading branch of business, and composed of the most intelligent and influential men. It is within the power of these industrial interests, by concert of action, and the adequate and timely presentation of their iffst demands, to secure that consideration from the Federal authority proper regard for their views upon the important subjects of retrenchment and re-

And a conviction, if They also pledged to the blacks the right of secured at all, may hang upon that much suffrage "under proper qualifications as to property and intelligence." But their colored fellow-citizens failed to "see it," and over forty thousand majority for the new Constitution and the Republican ticket illustrated their opinion of the sincerity of the Democratic offer. Now these gentlemen, having failed to secure the blacks to their support, return to their true colors and re-assert their determined hostility to the Congressional plan. Their protests now, like their bribes heretofore, will prove futile. The new era has been fully inaugurated in South Carolina, and will take no step backward. Let the Democracy be encouraged in the hope that future efforts, to win the confidence of the majority of their citizens, will be more successful than the first has been. THE SOUTHERN MISSION CONFERENCES, of the Methodist Church, are so called because the field is nominally in the regular possession of the other wing, known as the Church South, and such conferences as have chosen to unite themselves to the Church North are regarded as, in that respect, missions in a foreign field. These Conferences have a white membership of ninety thousand, and the two colored Conferences have over twenty-six thousand members. It is the question of admitting these bodies, irrespective of color, which is now under discussion at Chicago, but it is well understood that if there were no colored Conferences interested, no discussion would have arisen, as all would have been admitted to full membership at once. It is gratifying to perceive that the indications all point toward the early and decisive recognition, by the General Conference, of the southern members, regardless of the distinctions which, obliterated by politicians, survive bith a lingering tenacity in the church. A telegram from Malta reports that dis-patches from China have been received by

tion of our readers at this time: "We are gratified to learn that Maj. Gen. James S. Negley, who participated in the Mexican war, and distinguished himself by his daring and gallantry on so many fields of the late war, is a candidate for Congress from the Pittsburgh (Pa.) District. Not a few of the Tennessee Unionists who enjoyed his kindness and protection, as opporunity afforded, while he was serving in the Army of the Cumberland, will join with us in our gratification and wishes of success. A gentleman of large and active mind and heart, and of undaunted courage, as un-flinching in closing out the issues of the late war as he was in fighting it out to a successful termination, his selection for Representative to Congress would honor his district, honor every gallant soldier, and contribute to the safety and honor of our republican institutions."—Memphis (Tenn.)

The contest in the Twenty-second District for the Congressional nomines of the Republican party is quite interesting, and great earnestness is , evinced by, the friends of the contestants for the honor, as the Convention approaches. The candidates are General J. S. Negley and Hon. Thos. Howard, and the Pittsburgh press are singularly reticent and are occupying posi-tions of "equal esteem" towards each of the gentlemen. The chances of General Negley for the nomination, (as General Moorhead will not consent to run,) are suf able to stand—where the Whigs never stood ficiently encouraging to warrant the prediction that he will be the nominee. General redeemed from all sectional influences. Negley is a man of unblemished character, respectable ability, devoted earnestly to the great mercantile and manufacturing interests of his district, and won a fame as a disor control its action. Republicanism means | tinguished soldier in the late war. The an able and influential member, could not fall upon a worthier or more substantial Republican.—Wash. Pa. Rep. 1844.
"A strong movement is developing in Pittsburgh to bring forward, as the candidate for the Congressional honors of the Twenty-second District, Major General James S. Negley, who represented Pennsylvania with such distinguished ability and conspicuous gallantry on the fields of Stone River and Chicamaugua. In the Army of the Cumberland, General Negley commanded a division in which Eastern Pennsylvania was largely represented, and his old comrades and friends in this end of the Commonwealth will learn with pleasure of the merited proswill learn with pleasure of the merited pros-pects of their former chief."—Philadelphia

The utmost care should be exercised in making the nominations in the different districts and counties. Let us avoid the errors or the past. If we do, we shall win a com-paratively easy triumph. In the first place, ve invoke our friends to remember that the best way to defeat the enemies of the war that saved the Union is to honor, by every means, the brave Union soldiers who served in that war. Without at all depreciating civilians, or denying their right to a share of the honors of the well-fought field, we have always believed, and now more firmly than eyer, that it is a primary obligation laid on the Republican party, and one they cannot honorably evade, to prefer the Remblican veteran if he is as capable as he has been brave.—Phila. Press.
