Incendiary Fire.

A dire occurred yesterday morning about wo o'clock at Jack's Run, on the line of the Pittsburgh, Fort Wayne and Chicago Railway, about five miles from the city, by which the barn on the premises of Mr. Hernan Schaffer was totally destroyed. When the fire was discovered the flames had rained such headway that all efforts to subgained such neadway that all efforts to sub-due them were fruitless, and the building with its entire contents, were destroyed. A valuable horse belonging to Mr. Schaffer was, burned to death. The stable con-tained a considerable amount of hay, etc., besides harness. While the members of the family were endeavoring to put out the the family were endeavoring to put out the fire some hams, butter and provisions were stolen from the cellar of the dwelling. The fire was undoubtedly the work of an incendiary. Mr. Schaffer discovered a colored man sleeping in the stable the night previous, and ordered him from the premises, and threatened to shoot him if he discovered him again. The colored may recovered him again. ed him again. The colored man was seen in the vicinity just before dark on Thursday evening, and it is strongly suspected that he fired the barn out of revenge.

Timothy O'Brien, a resident of Woods Run, was so ungallant as to strike his wife with his fist yesterday, a proceeding which Bridget could by no means tolerate. She made oath before Mayor Drum charging him with assault and battery. Timothy was arrested and taken before His Honor, the Mayor, for a hearing. His plea was "guilty—but drunk." The Mayor thought drunkenness no excuse and informed him that he would have to procure bail for his appearance at Court, or go to jail. Timothy had faced the battle with a bold front until had faced the battle with a bold front until this announcement was made, when he immediately "wilted." He begged, plead and promised all sorts of things to Bridget, if she would withdraw the charge, but Bridget was inexorable in her purpose and refused to comply with his modest request. He was committed to jail in default of bail.

Drunken Fight. Henry Clagget and Jim Murray, two drunken negroes, residing in Hamilton's Court, off Washington street, after getting drunk together yesterday quarrelled, and finally got to fighting. Claggett, it is alleged, drew a knife and cut the other on the left side, whereppon Murray seized a large club, or piece of board, and struck his aritagonist over the head with it, inflicting a severe wound above the left eye. Alderman Butler was notified of the affray and found the parties about to renew the fight, which had been partially quelled. He arrested them and held them to bail for their appearance this morning. They both de-clined to prosecute, but will be fined for disorderly conduct.

Fun Off-Shore. We were disappointed at not being able to attend the steamboat excursion on the Mononganela river on Thursday evening. We learn from several who were with the party that the affair was a most pleasant one. The steamer 'Fayette,' which bore the excursionists, was beautifully decorated with national devices which tended greatly to make the affair festive. des wore the stars and stripes in minature most conspicuously. The music was of the first order. Capt. Donaldson and his gentlemanly aids will be duly remembered for he courtesies shown the excursionists. The managers, a gentlemanly quartette, intend giving another exoursion at an early day at hich we hope to be present.

Grand Concert For next Thursday evening there promised a grand vocal concert in the Fifth Infled Presbyterian Church, corner of Webster and Wylie streets, by and under the auspices of the Allegheny Quartette Association. There appeared in our commercial columns yesterday, a communication over the signature of "S. S." which was not previrejoinder, claiming for it a careful perusal, and trusting that it will close the controversy so unwittingly opened in yesterday's GAZETTE: :

EDITORS GAZETTE: Your correspondent "S. S.," which I presume means "Sold Short," charges "a certain Refining Co., with conspiring with certain parties to squeeze the Refiners, by some contemptible hárp practices.

I understand that it is generally understood in the Trade, that it is the Company which I represent, that is thus referred to; if so, it is false in every particular.

He/charges, that those parties have conspired to buy oil, and calf for it in a sindden and unexpected, manney contrary spired to buy oit, and call for it in a sudden and unexpected manner, contrary to the usual custom, which, he says, is to deliver on the last day of the month. Now this is known by the entire Trade to be false. Oil that could be called for in this way, that is, sold on contract at buyer's option, which means, the buyercan call for it when he wants it, and the seller is bound to furnish it.—oil sold in this manner commendators.

it,—oil sold in this manner commands on an average, one cent per gallon more than oil on the spot, or seller's option. The buyer thus pays for this privilege, which enables him to call for it whenever he wants 'it, or him to call for it whenever he wants it, or when in his judgment he can make the most money out of it.

The company that I represent has a large capital invested and are engaged buying, selling and refining oil. During the last four months it has been impossible to buy crude, manufacture and sell, without losing money. This has been caused by short sellers like "S. S." men without a dollar or a barrel of oil, who enter the field and sell thousands of barrels at a less price than any honest manufacturer can make it, and thus by brazen impudence break down the price, expecting when, the panio ensues, to thus by brazen impudence break down the price, expecting when the panic ensues, to cover up their contracts at a profit.

This Company finding it impossible to compete with such operators, have exercised their own judgment, used their own capital, have entered the field, and I am not ashamed to say, have bought largely from these cheap sellers, and using the right which they have agreed to pay for, and which the seller has sold them, have called for their oil when in their nagment they can make the most money put of it and they can make the most money but of it, and they will be prepared to take and pay for every barrel of oil they have purchased when the time comes, and fulfill their part of the contract, and we expect the short calling templars to do the comp selling gamblers to do the same.

It will be plain to every man of common

It will be plain to every man or common sense, that a person who has sold an article that he has not got, and cannot furnish, is alone the gambler. The person who buys, takes the goods, and pays for them, is a legitimate operator.
This is precisely what this Company has and expect to do. They have exercised their own rights under their contracts, and have called for their ioil separate and distinct from everybody, which is proved by the fact that our calls are one day in advance of all others.

Seeing that the stock was exhausted, that a large, number of vessels were on "demurrage," and an urgent demand for oil, we have called and done our best to make all we can out of our purchases and make all we can out of our purchases, and are not ashamed to tell it. The idea that because others have seen the same state of facts and have followed suit, constitutes a conspiracy, is simply ridiculous. I join with "Short Seller" in hoping that I join with "Short Seller" in hoping that the time for "this pernicious system of corner is past," but it will not be so until refiners stop gambling, which selling their goods in advance is. This, I think, is only to be accomplished by a few more 'squeezes' like the present, which I hope will bring them to reason, and make our business what it should be 'legitimate manufacture."
