Commendable. Persons who attend the market have doubtless observed a marked change in the manner of conducting the market within the past few months. The market house is kept in better order than ever before and the filthy, we might say disgusting, practice into which the butchers had fallen of bringing with them to the market house the hides of slaughtered animals, which some times remained there throughout the day has best stopped. This was one of the greatest annoyances to which persons attending market were subjected, as the stench of the hides, at no time agreeable, became almost unbearable in warm weether stend of the finites, at no time agreeable, became a finest imbearable in warm weather. Officer Rigby and Dressler, market constables, have done much to promote the new order of things as extablished at the market house, and deserve credit for it.

Resigned. Officer James Scott, one of the mos efficient policemen in the city, resigned his position on the force yesterday, and Lieut A. J. Moon has taken his place in the office. A. J. Agon has cased, was one of the best officers in the city. He possessed caution and discretion; faculties highly essential in detections, to a very great degree. He served in the capacity of Chief of Police during the administration of Mayor Mo-Carthy, and rendered very general satisfaction to the citizens as well as to the authorities. We regret to loose the scrytess of so valuable air officer; but with him success in whatever business he may empark. of so valuational officers out white in the suc-cess in whatever business he may embark. His successor, Mr. Moon, was on the day force during the last administration, and is an excellent officer.

Bridget McKinnis has become a regular customer at the tombs. Scarcely a week passes that Bridget's name does not appear on the books at the watch house, invariably followed by the words "drunk and disorderly." She is such a hardened old sinorderly." She is such a hiardened old sminer that she has become constitutionally disorderly and nover draws solver breath if it is possible for her to get liquor. Time after time has she been committed to jail for ten, twenty and thirty days, and if discharged from prison in the morning, after having served a term of thirty days, she is almost sure to go to the lock-up the following night. She was released from jail yesterday and was again arrested for drankness last night. She will probably get thirty days more at the hearing this morning.
