CHARGE OF THE DRESS BRIGADE. Half a league, half a league, half a league rear

Right through the mire and dirt, Much to its beauty's hurt. Dragg'd the rich diken skirt, lasts league rearward.

Haif a peck, half a peck, half a peck fully—
Hiroute and woolly,
Right into the liquid air—
Rose, up the pile of hair.
From other heads sundered.
Nobly astraddie on it.
Rode the brave bonnet— Rode, though it wondered. Ouris to the right of it, Curls to the left of it, Curls to the rear of it, Curls that were plundered.

What though men shout "Oh! fie!"
"Fortunes you have squandered;"
Their's not to make reply,
Their's not to reason why.
Their's but to dress ordie—
"Charge!" to the clerks they cry—
"Charge by the hundred."

The Planchette.

"Planchette" is a mystery, not in its make, but in its actions. A small board (heart shaped) with two pentagraph wheels affixed to the under side, and a hole at the point through which a pencil is run, and which does the double duty of a third leg and that of an amanuensis, this constitutes "Planchette." By placing your hand with that of another person upon the board, this wonderful little instrument begins to move in all directions, and will, if bidden, write what you desire.

It will also answer the questions you ask A new organ in London is said to be it. Ladies, or one lady and a gentleman, can work it better than two gentlemen, and if the parties placing their hands upon fact to Boston. -An armless violinist who plays with his so much the better. Some persons, however, who are strong magnetizers, can work "Planchette" alone. This little instrument is sometimes very contrary, and will insist on having its own way. For instance, we asked it to write our name, when it wrote that of a gentleman standing near, and positively refused to write any other. It, however, condescended to answer a question in regard to the weather, and stated that it would not clear off yesterday. "Planchette" is certainly afraid of skeptical persons, and will not move for them, while for others it works

This little instrument is fast becoming a parlor friend, and with persons who ar able to work it any amount of fun and amusement can be had, and possibly much instruction can be afforded.

A Short Petticoat Ball.

We have had the short petticoat ball, such an exceptional ball; all married ladies, not a maiden blush present. The skirts had prescribed limits. They were not to come a thread lower behind than the top of the heel of the back of the satin shoe, and not a line shorter in front than the bone of that part of the side of the foot called an ankle. Geometrical shoemakers have knelt and measured the prettiest feet in Paris for that ball. It was given by Mme. de Pourtales, and her sumptuous apartments were on glare of light on dazzling white. It was a Godsend to gentlemen; how they kicked about; how firmly they put their feet nowhere excepting in places fit for human feet, how they applauded the waltz a deuz temps; what a queen they made of Mme. de Pourtales. But alas! how many flat feet came to wax light, and oar-like, paddling feet, and safe boat feet, and slender feet, no one who has never been to a petticoat ball can know .- Paris Cor. N. Y. Herald.

A Matrimonial Novelty. The New York correspondent of the Louisville Democrat writes: A fashionable wedding, on a new plan, came off at Zion church, in the Fifth avenue, this morning. The bride is the daughter of a wealthy and well known from founder, who returns an income of $200,000 per annum, and the bridegroom, the son of an Exchange Place broker, wealthy also. The services were entirely choral. Bishop Southgate intoned the prayers, and even the question, "Wilt thou take the woman," etc., etc., was drawled out in the same monotone. The effect was ludicrous, rather than solemn, and one or two of the gush-ing bridesmaids could not restrain from laughing right out at it. The choir got up, gorgeous "processional" and "recessional" for the occasion, and, for the delectation of the happy pair, and the lookers on, threw in all the fancy music, from Mendelssohn down to Offenbach. "No, THE NEW PARTY CAN'T SUCCEED no more than our last vencher did. It ain't made up, uv the rite material. There's more intelleck than sole in it—more bowels than heart. There's Chase, Fessenden, Trimbull, and Grimes. Chase hez; ambition, Grimes hate, and Trumbull and Fessenden' dyspepsia, making the ingregencies in the new organization half ambition and hate and half dyspepsia. Never trust a man whose stophick is out uv order—take not stock in him whose bowels is unsound. no stack in him whose bowels is unsound. Intelleck is nothin, heart is nothin, unless there's a stumick under them on wich to build. Chase hez no conshence, Trumbull
