

The Pittsburgh Gazette.

DOUBTING.

"I will not ask to press that check,"
Without a guarantee.
That Nature's word the pearl and red
Which they always see.
Those intricate lips I will not touch.
That their bright line is fast and true.
And will not wash away.
Those radiant eyes may owe their charm
To belladonna's use.
Completion time, I've heard dark hints.
Are cleared by valiant jest.
And if I ask the dearest gift.
For whom alone I live.
For one long kiss to him and bleed.
It may be to die to give.
The pearly brow, the raven lash.
Are open to a doubt.
And while I wait, they're unjust.
So in this dubious state of things.
And as the weather's warm.
I will not seek to press that check.
Or ask to clear that form.

EPHEMERIS.

—Philadelphia has a Tobacco Board of Trade.
—Green corn is a drug in the New Orleans market.
—La Belle Helene made her debut in Boston on Monday.
—Street cars are run by tread-mill power in Houston, Texas.
—The wheat crop is doing very finely in Southwestern Georgia.
—Searching for gold is at present a Chester county amusement.
—Wendell Phillips is called "Snarleyow" by the Chicago Tribune.
—The most completely ruined man in England is Lord Hastings.
—Mrs. H. B. Stowe is about to establish a school for mulatto children at Aiken, Ga.
—Havana tobacco for cigars is being extensively cultivated in Mississippi this year.
—Grace Greenwood has moved to Washington where she will reside for a year or two.
—A new 250 barrel well was struck on the Woods farm last Friday, says the Titusville Herald.
—New Haven is the only city of importance in the North that did not keep Decoration day.
—The Elgin, Ill., Watch Company are going to start a huge branch manufactory in California.
—Cigarettes for ladies after desert in Paris are as common as oysters before soup at a New York table.
—The tax of one cent per box on matches netted the Government a million and a half dollars last year.
—Sun light is so rare an article in London that photographers find it cheaper to use the electric light in their business.
—One of the most elegant mansions on Beacon street, Boston, is to be fitted up as a ladies' club house and restaurant.
—General Joe Hooker and Mrs. Hooker, are at the Brevoort House New York. They are both suffering from want of health.
—The Chickering is about to put up an elegant music-hall in New York, which will rival Steubenville Hall quite into the shade.
—Fernesque is a new word coined by an arm critic to assist him in describing my Fern's new book, "Folly as it flies."
—The Philadelphia Age has Asa Packer for President. The chances of the Hon. Asa are not brilliant—certainly not rose-cut.
—Fifty tons of rhubarb are sold daily in Boston, and it retails at two cents per pound, which amounts to over $2,000 per day.
—Bonquets are worn immensely large in New York. Pointed nosegays a foot in diameter and a foot in height are very fashionable.
—"The finest poem of the current decade" is what most of the critics say of George Eliot's new poem, "The Spanish Gypsy."
—The Mayor of Titusville fined a party five dollars the other day for indulging in a free fight, and then lent him the money to pay the fine with.
—A young couple were divorced in Chicago last week, who had been married five years and yet are only twenty-one and twenty years old respectively.
—St. Leger Grenfell, the man who escaped not very long ago from the Dry Tortugas in a small boat, is now enjoying the pleasures of Havana and freedom.
—Gough has promised to retire forever from the lecturing field this season. What then are we to do for bad grammar, buffoonery and superlative eloquence?
—The Chicago Times hopes that Mr. Chase's vote and influence will be used to aid Mr. Pendleton. The Times is a fine example of hopefulness under difficulties.
—Plain white French china with a handsome monogram in the center of each piece is considered the acme of agony in ultra fashionable New York dinner services.
—The freight charges on petroleum in bulk have been reduced ninety cents per barrel by the Empire line from all points on Oil Creek to New York or Philadelphia.
—York, Maine, was the first city in America. It was founded by Sir Ferdinando Gorges, who rose and fell twenty years before Boston was the home of white men.
—The coast fisheries of our Northern neighbors have been unusually productive this year, and in some localities five times as many have been caught this as last year.
—Most of those Southerners who went off to live in South America have come back poorer than ever, and are profoundly conscious of the foolishness of their own personalities.
—The National Intelligencer has discovered that the people yearn for Mr. Chase for President. Mr. Chase also yearns the same way, which of course shows that he is "one of the people."
—Robert Heller has taken the benefit of the bankrupt law. His receipts derived from his profession as a magician have been very large, but the green table has swallowed them all up.
—The St. James Hotel in Boston is said to be the most elegantly managed caravanary in the country. Among other novelties a band of music dispenses sweet music during the dinner hours.
—A man named Anglosky, had been arrested in New York as one of the Hennessy robbers. He was working at $3 a day wages, and looks like an honest man, yet the detectives spotted him.

—The grasshoppers have almost entirely disappeared from Texas as suddenly as they came, and the corn and cotton crops are doing finely, but the wheat prospect is anything but flattering.
—A collection of all of Gustave Doré's best pictures will be on exhibition in New York in September. Of course these original drawings are of infinitely more interest than copies or engravings.
—Excursion tickets are sold for five dollars in Cincinnati for the round trip to Chicago and return. For a single trip one way the fare is $11.00; but competition shows its influence in the excursion form.
—One of the members of the Celestial embassy is writing a book of travels. It is hinted that an enterprising New York publisher is already looking out for competent person to translate it into English.
—Some complaints have been urged against Messrs. Ticknor and Fields, and Mr. Scribner because they had no representatives present to kiss Timothy Titcomb good-bye when he went to Europe.
—Mr. Pendleton has engaged a very efficient body of claquers for the New York Convention, where we may look for even more free fights and rough-and-tumble than are usual in Democratic Conventions.
—Five thousand one hundred and twenty dozen pigeons were shipped from Olean station to New York city last week. It is hardly necessary to state that pigeons were plenty in that neighborhood about that time.
—The wheat crop at present seems to be so promising all over the world, that it can be kept out of the hands of speculators and "corner" makers, we may look with some certainty towards having bread at pleasanter prices soon.
—The Bishop of London, whose diocese includes all of the English Chapels on the continent, has ordered that in all of those chapels, the President and Congress of the United States shall be prayed for just as the Queen and parliament are.
—A generous man in Hartford, Conn., has sent $100 to Washington to help pay off the National debt. It won't go very far towards the desired end, but if every man should do as much, taxes and prices might be very pleasantly reduced.
—The promised Fenian raid may be a mere canard, lighter than air, but there is no doubt about the reality of the scare in the Dominion. A Fenian, if caught there now, would have but little life left in his corpse by the time it reached the goal.
—The French government looks with longing eyes on Australia, the annual wool-produce of which is valued at $250,000,000 per annum. Algeria is said to be as good a country for sheep as any other, and the French are about to try to introduce a few merinos there.
—An abominable story has been going the rounds, which asserts that Boston ladies consume immense quantities of absinthe, and of course the milliner story was hatched on. Statistics however show that but ten gallons of absinthe were consumed in Massachusetts last year.
—Young girls are attempting, and some times succeeding, to commit suicide all over the country, often for the most trivial reasons. They read of similar instances in the newspapers, find it heroic in the girl, and something like fame to be so mentioned in the newspapers, imagine themselves unhappy, and forget that they will not be alive here after they are dead. It is proper that the local papers should mention cases of this kind, but it is not proper to make sensation items out of them. If the simple facts were related, many a foolish girl would not have her morbid imagination heated up, and many of these fearful crimes might remain uncommitted.
—An interesting incident took place at Springfield, Illinois, last week, when a party of emigrants from Indiana arrived in the city. They were on their way to Missouri, but on reaching Springfield they paused and turned aside to visit the tomb of Abraham Lincoln, the Martyr President. Over one hundred men, women and children passed by the last resting place of the great man who had won their love and admiration, in solemn silence and with heads tributed. The emigrants thus paying tribute to the memory of Mr. Lincoln were of the most intelligent class of artisans and farmers from the Hoosier State, and to those who met them on the way, they stated that they could not pass through Springfield without pausing to visit and pay homage to the memory of the man who had preserved our free institutions, and proclaimed liberty to all throughout the land. Thus it is that the "hone and snow"—the reliable men of the Republic—do honor to the memory of the nation's second Washington.
