THE SENATE, by the close vote of 22 to 21, adopts the Wilson amendment to the Omnibus bill, including Alabama in its provisions. This, however, does not ensure its final passage in that shape by the Senate. Nor is the House likely to concur in it. The amendment was actively opposed by Mr. Trumbull and others, whose votes may yet be necessary to protect the bill from the President's veto.

WOOLLEY, the very emi nent but stubborn Democrat, whom the House has held for a few days in its tender keeping, on the suspicion that he is privy to certain discreditable facts connected with the President's acquittal, has finally submitted to the wholesome coercion, and is ready to tell all he knows. He says he was only a member of the Whisky Ring, and had no concern in any other dirty business whatever. Some other awkward points he slides over by a misty reference to the convivialities of a dinner party. The enquiry is to be pursued by the Committee, who retain the President's friend in custody.

WE are friendly to the cause of temperance, but we must deprecate the personal attack made last evening at the Allegheny Temperance League meeting on gentlemen whom we have ever regarded as faithful public servants, actuated in their official and private deeds by honor and honesty. If the good friends of temperance would entirely ignore politics they would succeed just as well, if not better, in the accomplishment of the laudable ends for which they so zealously labor. The County Commissioners are above reproach, and the League should/bear in mind that they are sworn to do their duty to all men alike. If laws are odious they are not to be held responsible for executing and meeting their requirements. The proper channel for reform is through the Legislature, but no good can result from an unjust onslaught on worthy and conscientious county officials.

THE course pursued by Gen. Buchanan, commanding the Louisiana Military District, in postponing the organization of the State government recently, elected, until a late period of the autumn, has brought him into collision at once with the Registration Board upon which the duty of summoning the officers elect was devolved by the Constitutional Convention. This Board lost no time in following the General's order by warning the people of its illegality, for which they were put under arrest, and will be tried by a Military Commission, "unless Congress legislates for the admission of the State." It is to be observed that the instructions to the General emanate from the White House, and that Mr. Jourson will ever. If the restoration of the State can be accomplished under the pending bill, notwithstanding his opposition, he will be getic, persevering and industrious, or more deeply impressed with the importance of the battles to be fought in October and November

ROLLINS AND THE WHISKY RING.

The resignation of Commissioner Rol-LINS, of the Internal Revenue Bureau, will be attributed in some quarters to the action of the House in refusing to approve the proposition which was embodied in the new tax bill, for a thorough reorganization of months that the policy which Mr. ROLLINS would have enforced upon his subordinates has not received a hearty support from the President, and that the latter has frequently ntimated his intention to remove the Commissioner. The public rumors which have so freely connected Mr. Johnson with the operations of the powerful combination known at the Capital as the "whisky ring." have never, to the slightest extent included the Commissioner in their discreditable imputations. His official record has been accepted as entirely clear, both by Connone of the responsibility for the shameful is to be deplored, and, if it could have been Congress, is to be regarded rather as a published Western powers will become entangled lic calamity.

The proposition of Mr. Schenck, to which we have alluded, embodied the very strong conviction of many members that no honest and effective collection of the internal revenue could be ensured until the personnel of the Bureau were radically and entirely revised, and that no efforts of Congress to this end stand any chance of success so long as the power of appointment and removal remains within the arbitrary pleasure of the Executive. It was, therefore, contemplated to erect the Bureau into an independent department, reserving to Congress the power to retain its head and to this head the appointing power to be exclusively committed. This, it was naturally supposed, would cut off the subterranean; pipe which, according to universal public belief, connects the worm of this Whiskyring with (not to strain the metaphor too much) the still at the White House, and would restore, under the energetic and faithful control of incorruptible officers, sociated mandarians in the longitude or an honest and successful collection of the plaiting of his queue, but his speech was large revenue justly due to the Treasury. fully up to the most ornate style in vogue at But the idea has been found impracticable. the country of Pekin, or even on the floor A very grave doubt exists as to the power of the House to interfere so directly with the payments made for interest. He retires, leaving the President at liberty to replace him with some more supple and accommodating supporter of his own peculiar policy. This retirement is, nevertheless, to be highly regretted, since the official integrity, which Mr. RoL-LINS has faithfully illustrated, was already quite too rare at Washington, and will be still more rare hereafter.

THE COUNTY EXECUTIVE COM-MITTEE.

The Union Republican Executive Committee for Allegheny county, to serve during the ensuing year, is announced in another column. It will be observed that it embraces many of the leading and representative members of the party, a fact which goes to show how much care was taken in its formation by the gentlemen having the matter in charge. This auxiliary to the party has too frequently been used to glorify individuals, giving them honor and prominence and exacting no corresponding labor from them, but, in the present instance, those accepting the position are expected to do earnest, zealous work, and to at once enter into the drudgery of the campaign with a will and determination to accomplish great results through their personal efforts and endeavors. Let no laggard accept the place on the Committee, nor should any member believe that the appointment is made simply to do him honor. He is expected to work from first to last. The campaign into which we have entered requires unusual industry, tact and energy on the part of the County Executive Committee, and from our, personal knowledge of a majority of the members constituting it, we prevent that legislation if his veto has any can safely promise that its work will be virtue. His policy is purely one of well and faithfully discharged. WHO IS HE! It was stated in debate, on Monday, on the floor of the House, that proof existed to show that a Judge in a Federal Court had united with his District Attorney to levy black-mail upon some sixty persons arraigned for offenses against the revenue laws, the Judge and Attorney letting them off easy and dividing the profits. When Gen. SCHENCE added, to this statement, an expression of his hope that the Judge might yet be impeached, he exhibited a degree of abiding confidence in the Senate which is really refreshing. Certainly, impeach that Judge, by all means, and see what will come of it. His name will speedily transpire, for Gen. Schenck would not make this extraordinary statement without due authority, and the corruption which he has charged is too flagrant in its nature to pass without an investigation. When this unknown Judge shall be exposed and arraigned for trial, it may help his case if he pleads that all Judges are but human, and that a still higher functionary has perverted justice for a consideration. But these fears are not wholly justified. The omnibus bill will hang in the Senate and between the two Houses until next week, when the Arkansas Senators will come in, and Colorado will follow as soon as the necessary bill can go through the forms of legislation. Even without the aid of these new Senators, it is believed that the present bills will become law, but, with the four Senators from the States specified, their ultimate enactment is certain. A New York journal prints a "private" letter from Chief Justice CHASE, in which, disclaiming as usual any personal ambition, he expresses the gratification which he will feel in the success of the present attempt to commit the Democracy to the principle of universal suffrage. He also reiterates his devotion to his old creed of equal rights. The letter adds nothing to his strength as a candidate for the Democratic nomination, being little more than a repetition of the opinions heretofore known to be held by him on that particular question. His reference, however, to that principle which is "established in eight, and to be established in all of the Southern Constitutions," is a significient admonition to the Democracy, of the partizan benefits to accrue to them by accepting it and endorsing it at New York. The Chief Justice is beginning to be understood as an original and consistent Democrat, on all points excepting that of the suffrage, and upon this the party is in a fair way of coming up to his ground. Black suffrage has been a monster most formidable to them, but current events, and the developments of three weeks more, will lubricate it so well that it will slip down the Democratic gullet with scarcely a gulp.

The Secretary, at the request of the Chairman, stated the object of the meeting. as follows: A member of the School Board of the Seventh ward had served upon him an official order from the Court of Quarter Sessions of Allegheny county, setting forth that the Seventh ward, Aliegheny and Reserve township had been constituted an in-dependent School district, and he deemed t advisable that a meeting be held to have an expression relative to the matter.

Mr. Alex. Young wished to know by what authority the Courts interfered in the matter, and was of the opinion that there was no law authorizing it. The President said he supposed the "Court knew herself," and as the order had been knew herself," and as the order had been made, he supposed there was law for it.

Mr. Kollock referred to the school law, and read a section which provides for the establishment of independent districts.
