Terrible Explosion. An agitating tank belonging to the oil refinery of Messrs. Fulton & Marvin, at Aynold's Station, on the Alleghany Valley Railroad, about a mile and a half on this side of Tarentum, in Westmoreland county, exploded on Monday afternoon. The ty; exploded on Monday afternoon. The explosion was caused by the pressure of air which was being forced into the tank by means of a fan. A cooper named Jataes fregg, employed at the works, was killed by the explosion, and Mr. Williams, Superintendent of the refinery, had his knee cap broken by a pleas of wood which was volently hurled against him. Mr. Gregg resided at Chartlers, Westmoreland country. The damage done to the works was considerable. It is thought that the distinct report of an explosion heard here about the same lime and which so troubled the locals to account for his explanation in this accident.

Attempted Escape of Convicts. The overcrowded condition of the West ern Penitentiary contributes largely towards destroying the active surveillance which formerly marked its management and numerous preconcerted attempts are and numerous preconcerted attempts are made by the prisoners to regain their liberties. The efficient Warden finds his energies constantly taxed to keep down the spirit of insubordination. On Monday night a determined effort was made by three of the prisoners to get clear of the walls which confined them, but the attempt was defeated. The prisoners if appears, occupied adjoining cells in the lower range of Block A; and for several days have exhibited a spirit of insubordination. The Warden obtained information that an attempt to escape would be made by them. The cell instead of the men had refused to join in the movement, and they were removed to other cells, as the turbulent ones exhibited had feelings towards them. The parties were watched closely for several contents of the men and they were removed to other cells, as the turbulent ones exhibited had feelings towards them. ones exhibited had feelings towards them. The parties were watched closely for several days, but they refrained from putting their designs into execution. On Monday night the watchman on duty heard sounds in the cells occupied by the parties, and not knowing frow many of the prisoners might be engaged in the movement, he called assistance, and several of the Allegheny night police were also called in. The cells were then opened, and after the prisoners had been secured an examination of the cells were made. A large hole had been cut were made. A large hole had been out through the partition walls between two of the cells, thus establishing communication, and considerable progress had been me in cutting through into the third cells was the evalent intention of the three to get into one call and make a combined effort to get through the outside wall. As we have stated the design was frustrated, and the parties will, be little inclined to make another attempt.
