

The Pittsburgh Gazette.

THE MEADOW PATH. It leads, in many a tangled curve, Through freely fern and jutting mosses...

EPHEMERIS. -Gen. Rosecrans is now in New York. -Lagrange is going to Europe next week.

-Sweet potatoes are being planted in Kansas. -We believe there is a revolution in Venezuela.

-Gen. Joe Hooker's physicians think he will recover. -Yale College is 167 years old, and still in its prime.

-De Cordova, the lecturer, is summing at Saratoga. -Cholera is anticipated in some of the eastern towns.

-50,000 Methodist communicants reside in New Jersey. -Madame Scheller has departed from Salt Lake City.

-A fatal disease has broken out in some parts of Maine. -Lamarine is on his last legs—so are we all for that matter.

-Mrs. O'Donovan Rossa and the Sorosis broke fast together. -Phrenologist Phlowler is phrenologizing Connecticut legislators.

-The Boston Post says "The odor ought to have a fragrant memory." -W. B. Dimmore has just paid $181,000 for a house on Fifth avenue.

-30,000 bottles of petroleum champagne were sold for the Derby races. -Max Maretzek is to run the Opera House at Saratoga during the season.

-American men-of-war are hereafter to be painted ordinary war color. -Rowed to ruin—Coulter when he broke his oar.—Philadelphia Bulletin.

-Last winter was passed in Asia by Lady Franklin, the widow of Sir John. -Portland, Maine, has a new hotel, the Falmouth, which has cost $300,000.

-Strawberries sell, eight baskets—four quarts—for a quarter in New York. -Wallace's Lurline is to be Maretzek's next effort at retrieving his fortunes.

-Morgan the organist has transferred his attention from Grace church to St. Anna. -Bateman is to transfer his comic operas to Niblo's where the White Fawn is dying.

-$240,000,000 are invested in spindles in this country, of which there are 6,400,000. -The season of suicides seems like the strawberry season to be now at its height.

-A friend that sticketh closer than a brother—a mosquito.—Cincinnati Commercial. -There is dissatisfaction and jealousy among the higher officers of the French army.

-Baron Gerolt is one of the distinguished expected guests of the New York Schützenfest. -Yachting is the substitute for racing in the list of the amusements of the Marquis of Hastings.

-The Hamburger Nachrichten and the Koiner Zeitung are said to be the best paying papers in Germany. -Dangerous counterfeit $10 notes of the Third National Bank of Philadelphia have made their appearance.

-Henry A. Wise would not object to being the next candidate for President on the Democratic ticket. -Monogram medallion carpets are not common, because of their price, but they are considered very elegant.

-Susan Anthony is very busily engaged at the Herculean labor of trying to make herself still more ridiculous. -206 homicides were done in one half of Texas during the past six months, and very few of the criminals were punished.

-Fifteen tunnels of an aggregate length of 6,268 feet have already been cut on the California end of the Pacific Railroad. -Henry C. Williston, the witty writer of the "Timely Themes" in the New York Commercial Advertiser, died on Thursday.

-An exchange says that if spirits do return to earth A. Johnson will surely come back after death to veto his undertaker's bill. -Dreadful Madame Rumor hints that Prince Humbert and the fair Margherita are not too happy, that, on the contrary, they spat.

-A Boston paper thinks Mr. Bergh should be on the war trail again, as the New York authorities have ordered all stray dogs to be "pounded." -The Central Park Zoological Gardens have received several valuable additions lately, among which are a buffalo and a toucan, a caique and a lepa.

-A couple of Americans have bought a large alum works in Brandenburg, Prussia, and are now manufacturing alum. Their warehouse is in Hamburg. -The Marquis of Hastings says he has retired from the turf. He probably goes on the principal that it never too late to mend, but he has stretched it a good deal.

-Philadelphia is troubled with worms and has not yet found a satisfactory vermifuge, the Berlin has found out that when the worms leave the trees will leave. -Miss Kellogg was willing to go and sing in Berlin, but her terms were altogether too high for the manager, and so Clara Louise is coming home to New York.

-There are eight hundred Protestant Sunday Schools, with forty thousand pupils, in France. The Empress recently presented a banner and a silver medal to the Sunday School Union.

All of the "wheelers," "dumpers" and "trackmen" employed on the Reading Railroad coast wharves at Richmond, Philadelphia, are now on a strike. There are about six hundred of them.

Two Americans had a rough and tumble fight at the principal hotel in Constance, on the lake of Constance, in Switzerland, a short time ago. The subject of dispute was politics, and the Radical was victorious.

Another Ohioan has turned up in the person of Senator Hendricks. We think it about time for Congress to pass a law prohibiting the sons of that State from taking an undue part in the history of the country.

The excessive humidity of the present season will, according to Dr. Harris, of New York, have an important influence on the public health in mid-summer and later, unless cleanliness, drainage and ventilation become the watchword of sanitary security at every household.

Here in Pittsburgh, the home of the Strawberry, the cheapest are fifteen cents per quart, while in Philadelphia, whither tons of strawberries go, they are a drug at eight or ten cents a quart. The mystery is why our fruiters export their produce under existing circumstances.

The Pendleton escort is coming through Pittsburgh. As it is pretty large, it may be persuaded to stop over, there might be enough Democrats in town to get up a good sized meeting, and they have shown that they are as good at kicking up a row as the best convention delegate in the city.

The Baden Baden and Homburg gambling houses have not paid as well as usual this year, principally because so few Russians have gone to them, and the Russians haven't gone because the emancipation proclamation has reduced their incomes, largely derived from the unpaid labor of the serfs.

Considerable displeasure is manifested, in the principal North German cities, at the great inefficiency displayed by the United States Consuls. Most of these gentlemen perform their duties in a very loose and unsatisfactory manner, keeping their offices open only for two or three hours during the day, and often-times absenting themselves for weeks in succession.

On Monday night while the election for Democratic delegates to the New York Convention was going on in Philadelphia a man named Gallen was attacked, stabbed four times and shot at once; he died during the night. Democrats should endeavor to confine these amusements to their conventions, where we expect them, as they are rather startling when they occur out of place.

Mlle Hedwig Raabe, the German actress, who will visit the United States within the next two months, is a beautiful blonde, with large blue eyes and long golden ringlets. She is the pet actress of the Russian Court, and the Czar's second son was at one time so desperately in love with her that he insisted upon marrying her, a project which his parents were hardly able to thwart.

Madame Rattazzi has in press a new novel, which will create a great sensation, inasmuch as it is nothing less than a clever, but malicious, satire on her mortal enemy, the Empress Eugenie. Eugenie once called Madame Rattazzi "an old coquette," and the ex-Princess of Solms is now going to pay her back, principal and compound interest. The title of the novel will be "The Empress Bibi." Bibi is the name of Eugenie's favorite Bologna dog.

The Tomahawk's "Woman's Word-book" continues spicy. It gives: Position—nine points of woman's law; Posterity—a grandson who blushes for the ignorance of his ancestor who slaved to such little effect; Powder—what woman loads herself with to make a ball go off well; Quack—a duck of a doctor; Quarter—what man gets from a better half; Reflection—that for which glasses were invented—woman couldn't really do it for herself.

An association has been formed in Washington to be known as the "Howard Fraternal Union," composed entirely of colored men, whose object is to secure a homestead for General Howard as a testimonial from the colored people of the United States, for the valuable services that he has rendered the race. The scheme is to raise thirty thousand dollars from the colored people alone, no one person to be allowed to contribute more than one cent.

Anna Dickinson's new novel which is so radical in its social tendencies that she has with difficulty found a publisher, is said to be the story of a strong-minded, self-reliant woman, who lives to herself, as Sir Charles Grandison, according to his dotting mamma, did for himself, and from an unaided and wholly unfraternal position rises to success and happiness without marriage. It is supposed to be rather autobiographical as the heroine is thought to be just what Anna thinks she is herself.

With all his faults, the late Mr. Buchanan was a kind-hearted gentleman. An anecdote is told of him which sustains this assertion. He defended and succeeded in clearing a man who was accused of homicide, and then refused to take a fee, saying, "Do you take this money and move away; use it to begin life with again. Stop drinking and go to church; and that is the best way you can pay me." After many years that man came back prosperous and repentant to thank the lawyer for having been the cause of his reformation.

La Follet describes a toilet which it calls beautiful and original: Imagine a round skirt of fougere carnelle, ornamented below with two plaited fougere, which are bordered at the top by a fold of silver-gray silk. The upper skirt of silver-gray silk is looped back at the sides by bunches of carnelle colored ribbons. It is ornamented all round with a narrow fringe of the same shade, with a fold of one centimeter in width at the top. The cascade of carnelle fougere fits tight to the waist, and is looped back on paniers where the upper skirt ends. A long knot behind marks the center of these paniers that are much cupped. The tight-fitting sleeves of the lower waist are made of silver-gray silk.
