The New Methodist Church-Allegheny Coffege Commencement, &c., &c.

MRADVILLE, PA., June 24, 1868. Editors Gazette-This young city is a spring of beauty," and one feels like wishing it may be a joy forever." It is growing rapidly. Quite a number of buildings are in progress of erection, among others a new court House. This is intended to rival anything of the kind in the State. The Methodist Episcopal Church is well nigh completed. It is a credit to planned, and finely finished. It is to be of this city, of the steamboat Great Repubdedicated on the 29th of next month. The lic, at the port of St. Louis. Celebrated Wesleyan orator, Rev. Morley

This is commencement week in Allegheny College. The regular examination of classes began on last Wednesday, and was completed yesterday—a long and thorough examination, and withal very satisfactors.

Of the Faculty of Allegheny College we can speak most confidently. They are very competent men. They do thorough work. They not only train the intellect, but cultivate the heart. Students are safe in their hands—as safe, at least, as they can be at any literary institution. any literary institution. The Baccalaurcate seri

While on her way from New Orleans to St. Louis one of the cabin boys, or rather the texas tender, who was detailed by the Steward to attend to the texas, named Lawrence Gloyer, refused to scrub, for reasons of his own, which the Steward considered not good, and he was therefore hand-cuffed and placed in, the baggage-room. Henry Anderson, another cabin-boy, was incensed at the usage of Glover, made remarks to the effect that the crew ought to quit if the boy was not released, and spoke quit if the boy was not released, and spoke to the Captain about it, who refused to act in the matter, and some of the cabin crew went to the baggage-room and took the prisoner out, but no violence was used. Afterwards both Anderson and Glover were placed in irons and confined in the baggage-room where they were on the arrival of the Great Republic at the St. Louis landing. Great Republic at the St. Louis landing: After her arrival, between the hours stated, Anderson was shot through the forehead and killed. It would appear from the evidence that Captain Donaldson, the porter, and the boy, Lawrence Glover, were in the baggage-room at the time of the killing. Captain Barr, one of the clorks, was either inside or just outside the baggage-room—the evidence differs as to his exact locality. Glover escaped and told his story at the police station, and officers were sent to arrest lice station, and officers were sent to arrest the Captain, who, upon their arrival, was not on board, he having gone up into the city. Search was made, and about nine o'clock yesterday morning officers Goodky and Darlington met and arrested him on Cherry street, coming to the boat. Captain D. denied all knowledge of the killing. These are the circumstances in brief. A terrible murder has been committed by lice station, and officers were sent to arrest errible murder has been committed, but is not our province to prejudge the case by indulging in personal comments.
