GOODS GREATLY REDUCED!

You sat hy my side that fair morning in June,
When the sunlight came down like a glory;
And dropping your lashes low over your cyes,
You told me a tender love story.
It thrilled me as never mogher could thrill,
(And I've listened perhaps to a dozen.)
And made me remember, who used to forget,
That I, Belic, was only your cousin.

As the vines erept around us that morning in June,
Each cluster an emerald curfain.
To shut in sty Cupid and shut out the world,
To sour love, tielle, tar heart was most certain?

It your love, tielle, tar heart was most certain?

Star, with your soft little hand in my own,
and me your love for another,
I was brave, though my beautiful hopes were all crushed.

And I tried to behave like a brother! Isit in your parlor this morning in June, No pleasanter thing can I do. Belle. While your children are singling in merriest moo. And your imband is chatting with you. Bellet Yet the world never ean seen quite what it was When we sat in the vilke-covered arbor. And watched the white sails through the glistening trees. As the vessels came into the harbor!

1a. &c. Foul Play-Row Between the Authors, Beade and Boucicault. (London Correspondence New York Tribune.)

Two dramatic versions of Foul Play are performing at different theatres, the joint authorship of Charles Reade and Boucicault having ended in a quarrel. The partnership between the two was originally formed for what may be called commercial purposes. take place in Louisville, has been postponed Mr. Reade could command a high price for a novel, and of the novel he was to be the author. Mr. Boucicault could command a high price for a play, and was to dramatize the play when written. The novel appeared new series of that periodical into prosperous seas, and creating an undoubted sensacolebrated the 40th anniversary of his past to Mr. Reade that he wanted to furnish part torate over a parish. His congregation of the text. Mr. Reade assented, Mr. marked the event with a purse of $2.000.

The Batesville (Ark.) Twas reports first had been printed and the second was the caterpillars so numerous in that region week notified Mr. Reade that the centract for a novel was with him, and not Mr. Boucleault; that they expected him, and not Mr. Bouckault to write it; that they should decline to print any more copy supplied by the latter or to pay Mr. Reade, unless Mr. Reade wrote his own novel. Thus less Mr. Reade wrote his own novel. Thus entreated, he resumed his pen, and the whole book is in fact his, a few chapters excepted. Naturally Mr. Boucleault was offended, but chose to be offended with the wrong person, with Mr. Reade instead of with Messrs. Bradbury & Evans, the publishers of Once a Week. He broke off all relations, with Mr. Reade sat himself to relations with Mr. Reade, set, himself to work to dramatize the novel, refused to allow Mr. Reade to see any part of his work. duction at the Holborn Theatre somer than it could be completed in Once a Week.
