The Nittsburnh Gazette.

How it Feels to be Blown Up-A Michigan Local Editor's Experience. Most of our readers will doubtle as remember the explosion of the steamer Magnolia on the Ohio river, some ten miles above Cincinnati, in March last. Mention was made at the time of the supposed fatal injuries received by Charles B. Lewis, ("Em Quad"), ex-local editor of the Lansing Democrat, who was on his way to accept a situation on the Maysville, (Ky.) Bulletin. Being now, after a lapse of more than three months, partially able to resume his duties, he thus writes up an account of his accident for the Jacksonian: When I bought my ticket I asked the clerk if the Magnolia was considered a safe boat. He looked at me with a half-sneering, half-pltying expression, and replied by in-quiring if I had ever traveled much. Well, no-not above the average. "Then you'll learn something by and-

I did. Was seated in the cabin, between an ex-Colonel of a Georgia regiment and a Cincinnati pork dealer, and we were all talking over the impeachment matter. My fellow passengers soon became heated and angry. They were cursing Congress and the President across my head—each one as he felt—and I was looking for a muss. Their angry talk soon collected a crowd. I had just got up from my chair to keep clear of the coming fracas, when I heard a yell of agony, and before you could have counted up through the cabin, and almost under our feet, came a huge, jagged mass of

"For an instant thereafter I was conscious of everything going on. I saw the cabing roof lifted up, heard the angry hiss of steam, the crashing of timbers, and a cry from the injured and frightened passengers that will never be forgotten. Then I was lifted from my feet. I felt an intense pain in the back of my head, and a biting, stinging sensation over my entire body. Sixteen days afterwards I awoke in the Commercial hospitals of the control of the commercial hospitals of the com tal at Cincinnati. I knew that I was badly hurt, but could not remember how or when I was injured.

"As afterwards ascertained, I was blown out of the cabin into the river. When the explosion occurred, the steamer was just rounding the bend above California, hugging pretty close the Ohio shore to avoid the heavy current. I must have taken a iump of at least two hundred feet, as I was picked up close to the shore. The surviv. ors were conveyed down to the city on a tug, and here comes the only joke I can discover in the whole affair.

From some cause or other, my face was turned to as deep a black as negro ever wore, and I was accordingly treated as one. A dead cart was sent down from the hospital, and side by side with two wounded darkeys, lying on a mattress, I was carried up. The mistake was not discovered until the surgeons commenced shaving the hair off to get at my broken skull. I was supposed, for the first two days, to be a deck hand, but the telegram from my wife to the editor of the Enquirer, who came and hunted me up, soon set the matter right.

"On awakening in the hospital, I inquired how badly I washurt. The only answer I received was to 'keep still.' Considering that I could move neither hand nor foot, I fogarded this advice as entirely thrown away. But it did not take me long to find out that, first, there was an uncomfortble 'air-hole' in the back of my head; second' the sight entirely gone from the left optic and the skin peeled off my face and ears; third that I had been 'steamed,' or rather cooked, from head to heels, including both arms; and lastly that the doctors had just pulled me through a severe attack of pneumonia. Remained in the hospital twentynine days, and then concluded to go home. Had not yet been able to leave my bed, but, accompanied by my brother-in-law, C. H.

This, of course, had to be burned out, driving me crazy for a night and a day, and compelling me to use a solution of blue vitriol twice a day for forty days. So you can form a slight idea of the pain and suffering, and how much 'ye local' can endure with-out becoming 'dead matter.'

"Now, after a lapse of almost one hun-dred days, I find myself once more about, but condemned to wear the savage marks of the steam-fiend to my grave. A bald spot where the iron missile crushed my skull, a 'piebald' eye, a face that resembles a beet, and over my arms, body and limbs are scars that resemble great slices of fresh beef laid upon the skin. But after all, I am yet alive and getting ready to once more pur-sue the 'itemizing business,' which you know is vastly better than being fished out of the Ohio some torpid day, with no Coroner handy for an inquest."

Fruit. We give the following extracts from an article about fruit in a recent number of Chamber's Journal I am not quite sure whether fruit is always brought to us as it should be. Pears and apples no doubt bear careful carriage, and, however suddenly they may ripen at last, are often a long time reaching the perfection of maturity, even after they have been gathered; but there is an essence which belongs to most fruit, and which begins to vanish the moment it is plucked. Even the short transfer from the garden wall to the dish at dessert cannot be made without the loss of some of that subtle flavor which is conveyed by the living stalk from the sun-fed tree. Fruit should be eaten alive, like oysters. There is an edge to the taste of a fresh-opened oyster, which comes, I suppose, from the surprise he feels at being suddenly scooped out of his shell. In a few minutes this gives place to a feeling of alarm, and then, in an hour or two, to one of despair. then, in an hour or two, to one of despair.

When he is laid out with his brethren in a This splended Water Dream the world dish, the whole fruit is hopeless and sad. They may still taste of life, but it is of life disappointed. But the fresh opened oyster has no time to grow feverish or melancholy.

While a plumb, for example, hangs upon its stalk, it is in some kind of magnetic correspondence with all the powers of nature. Cut it off, and in time it dies, current, unwholesome; and every movement in its progress from life to death is marked by a deadence of that essence which makes fruit delicious. Therefore, supposing that you pluck it ripe, the sooner a plum is eaten the better for you. This of course applies most to tender, thin-skinned fruit. A firm apple dies slowly. A nut holds out long against the debasing influence of separation from its source of life. But plumbs, figs, peaches, apricots, and strawberries begin to suffer directly after they are gathered. This is the case even with pines, which are susceptible of bruises, but they contain such an apparent surplusage of flavor that the first stages of their flecay are not perceived except by a cunning palate. I think the morning is the best time for fruit; I am not quite sure, though. The afternoon is good. But I don't recommend fruit with the dew on it. Let the fruit get its own breakfast before you eat it yourself. It breakfasts on early suishine and dew. It takes these things in, and smiles upon itself and the world, just as you do just half an its own that it is not the same and effects of nervous cities with the dew on it. The Little Woman,

As a rule, the little women are brave. When the lymphatic giantess falls into a faint, or goes off into hysterics, she storms, or bustles about, or holds on like a game terrier, according to the work on hand. She will fly at any man who annoys her, and bears herself as equal to the biggest and strongest fellow of her acquaintance. In general she does it all by sheer pluck, and is not notorious for subtlety or craft. Had Delilah been a little woman, she would nevr have undertaken to shear Samson's locks. She would have defied him with all his strength untouched on his head; and would have overcome him, too. Judith and Jael were both probably large women. The work they went about demanded a certain strength of muscle and toughness of sinew; but who can say that Jezebel was not a small, freckled, auburn haired Lady Audley of her time, full of the consecrated fire, the electric force, the passionate recklessness of her type? Regan and Goneril might have been beautiful demons of the same pattern; we have the example of the Marchioness de Brinvillers as to what amount of spiritual deviltry can exist with the face and manner of an angel direct from heaven; and per-haps Cordelia was a tall, dark haired girl, with a pair of brown eyes, and a long nose sloping downward. On the whole, then, the little women have the best of it. More petted than their igger sisters, and infinitely more powerful, they have their own way, in part, be cause it really does not seem worth while to contest a point with such little creatures. There is nothing that wounds a man's selfrespect in any victory they may get or claim. Where there is absolute inequality of strength, there can be no hu-miliation in the self-imposed defeat it is always of the stronger; and as more pleasant to have peace than war, and as big men for the most part rather like than not to put their necks under the tread of tiny feet, the little woman goes on her way triumphant to the end, breaking all the laws she does not like, and throwing down all the barriers that impede her progress, perfectly irresistible and irrepressible in all cir cumstances and under any conditions.-Saturday Review.

Willow Ware.

It is a surprising fact that upward of five thousand different articles in common use are manufactured of the ordinary willow. The American willow is probably as good as the German and French varieties for all practical purposes, but an insufficient quantity of it is grown, and hence we chiefly on the foreign supply. The French are famous for the production of "fancy" articles in willow ware, but the Germans, and especially the Bavarians, excel in the general excellence of the work of this kind. They devise all sorts of useful contrivances and display much ingenuity in inventing curious articles which are of no particular utility, but serve to adorn spare corners of apartments, or to pique curiosity as to the purposes for which they are intended. In Bayaría, fathers hand down their know-

Willow working is a family affair, and long practice makes perfect. Expert and nimble fingers are required, to split and weave the little willow wands into so many shapes as these facile people produce. From the tiny toy basket, scarcely bigger than a lady's thimble, but complete in all its parts, which is to go to the child's nursury, up to the ponderous hamper with the capacity of bushels there is a wide leap—but the Bavarian worker knows how and when and where to stick his awl, and thread in the willow be received in Pittsburgh by derous hamper with the capacity of bushels there is a wide leap—but the Bayarian Rulisoh, Esq., who had nursed me from the third day, I made the journey.

640 MILES OF THE

UNION PACIFIC RAILROAD

Are now finished and in operation. Sixty miles of track have been laid this spring, and the work along the whole line between the Atlantic and Pacific States is being pushed forward more rapidly than ever before. More than twenty thousand men are employed, and it is not impossible that the entire track, from Omaha to Sacramento, will be finished in 1869 instead of 1879. The means provided are ample, and all that energy, men and money can do to secure the completion of this

The Government takes a second mort-gage as security, and it is expected that not only the interest, but the principal amount may be paid in services rendered by the Company in transporting troops, mails, &c. The interest is now much more than paid in this way, besides securing a great saving in time and money to the V.-A GOVERNMENT GRANT of the right to issue its own FIRST MORTGAGE BONDS, to aid in building the road, to the same amount as the U. S. Bonds, issued for the same purpose, and no more. The Government permits the Trustees for the First Mortgage Bondholders to
