THE PHILO SOCIETY. The Philo Reunion was a highly inter-esting affair and considerably more en-thusiastic than the Franklin's. The meeting was called to order by the election of Rev. Mr. Donaldson, of Elder's Ridge, as Chairman, and appointing Mr. Collier Sec-retary. Like the former, the exercises were informal, and consisted in remarks from various members of the Societ were informal, and consisted in remarks from various members of the Society as called upon. Many good things were said, and quite a number of amusing incidents connected with the College experience of the different speakers related in a very interesting manner. The meeting, like that of the Franklin's, was a highly interesting one and will be remembered resting one, and will be remembered with pleasure by all.

MEETING OF THE ALUMNI.

One of the many interesting entertainments during the anniversary was the meeting of the Alumni, which took place meeting of the Alumni, which took place at 11 o'clock A. M. Thursday, in Senior Hall. The ladies, who by the way were the most interesting and attentive to the task they had undertaken, busied themselves in distributing the rich viands among the hungry crowd. When all had been served, still leaving provision for a multitude, the meeting was called to order.

Thursday-Commencement Exercises. Commencement day at Canonsburg brings with it an interest and excitement consequent upon no other occasion. There is no place in the Union, perhaps, where College exercises of this character are so largely attended or so much interest taken in them by the surrounding community, the citizens of the pleasant little town, who have an inherent love for the College, which enjoys a world-wide reputation, are the most hospitable and liberal people we the most hospitable and liberal people we have ever met with. From the beginning to the close of the anniversary exercises their doors are thrown open, or, in other, words, the "latch string is out" at every house in the village, and no matter how large the crowd all are entertained and kindly cared for. At an early hour in the morning guests began to arrive, and by eight o'clock, there being a large number of visitors from a distance who arrived on Wednesday, the town was literally filled with people, yet all were provided for. At half-past eight o'clock a procession,

At half-past eight, o'clock a procession, consisting of several classes of the College, the Alumni and the Faculty, formed in front of the College, and headed by an excellent band of music, marched through some of the principal streets and thence to Provi-dence Hall, in the College building, where the Commencement exercises were held. The hall, which will comfortably seat about two thousand nearons way literally about two thousand persons, was literally jammed and looked like a vast sea of human beings, yet not one-half the crowd could be accommodated. It commanded the most profound attention of the entire audience throughout. We re-gret exceedingly that the length of our re-port prevents us from giving even a synop-sis of his remarks. At the close of the address the choir sang the long meter doxology, after which the audience was dismissed.

THE PRESIDENT'S RECEPTION. At six o'clock P. M., Wednesday, the re-gption of the President, Rev. Dr. Jonathan Edwards, took place at his beautiful resi-dence. The affair was participated in by most of the Alumni, the Trustees, the stu-dents and many of the friends of the In-stitution, and it will be foremost among the pleasant recollections of their lives. At six o'clock P. M., Wednesday, the re-

[Correspondence of the Pittsburgh Gazette.]. CANONSBURG, August 5, 1868. This usually retired village has assumed to-day an aspect quite city like. The streets are filled with strangers, and the houses of the citizens are open for the entertainment of those attracted by the exercises of the literary anniversary. At nine o'clock the Philo and Franklin Societies met in their Philo and Franklin Societies met in ineir halls, when the Alumni, formerly in con-nection with them, enjoyed an opportunity of reviving old recollections. Among the memories of college life none are cherished more than those connected with the literary positive. The Alumni held their annual societies. The Alumni held their annual meeting, at which Dr. Donaldson presided, and Rev. James Allison acted as Secretary. and Hey. James Allison acted as Secretary. Numerous addresses were made by gradu-ates of both the old colleges, which have been merged in the united institution. An ardont attachment to their Alma Mater was expressed by all the speakers, and sug-gestions without number were offered as to what course the Board of Trustees ought to number. A series of resclutions were of pursue. A series of resolutions were at length reported by a Committee appointed for that purpose, urging immediate consolfor that purpose, urging immediate consol-idation as necessary to success, and pledg-ing the acquiescence of the Alumni in whatever decision the Board might reach touching the location of the consolidated nstitutio nstitution. The address of Dr. Hall, late of Dublin r. M. His theme was a Chapter of Modern Church History. The period passed under review was the eighteenth century, and his review was the eighteenth century, and his object was to portray the religious move-ment, for which it is memorable. He gave an exceedingly graphic sketch of the state of religion in the United Kingdom at the beginning of the century, and of the character and labors of Wesley, Whitfield and their co-workers, from which he de-ducted several important lessons, and inducted several important lessons, and in-centives to duty, which he enforced upon the young men with great power. His manner is very engaging, and his style is remarkable for simplicity, directness and elegance. Long will the earnest words of the distinguished speaker ring in the ears of those who heard him with such delight this afternoon. this afternoon.

this afternoon. The address before the Literary Societies was delivered at 71/2 P. M. by Dr. Charles Elliott, of the Northwestern Theological Seminary at Chicago. He announced as ANNIVERSARY ADDRESS. At half past soven o'clock r. M., a large sudience assembled in Providence Hall to hear the anniversary address before the Philo and Franklin: Literary Societies, which was delivered by Rev. Charles [Elliott, D. D., of Chicago. A brass band from the city was in at-tendance and enlivened the occasion, with excellent music, after which a fervent Dr. Edwardsthein introduced the speaker to the audience, who were highly enter-to the audience, who were highly enter-to the audience, who were highly enter-to the audience half in the descasion of the sub-ter the audience, who were highly enter-to the audience half in the descasion of the sub-ter the audience, who were highly enter-to the audience half in the descasion of the sub-ter the audience, who were highly enter-to the audience half in the descasion of the sub-ter the audience, who were highly enter-to the audience half in the descasion of the college halfs.
