Inside Bediam—Scene in Bethlehem Hospital. The London Telegraph describes some of the scenes in the Bethlehem Hospital for the insane, in England: In Bethlehem Hospital every effort is used to make the life of the inmates cheerful. As you walk down the corridors you hear the cooing of the pigeons, and the quick, jubilant notes of singing birds, flitting to and fro in large and well-tended aviaries. Presently you come to an aquarium, anon to a stand of flowers, while there are statuettes and engravings on the walls. Every-where light; everywhere elbow room and wreating space. Hence, as you are led on doors. One indoor meeting, if possible, in from stage to stage you gradually get into a state of mind in which it is not in the least. The former is comparetively and a surprising to you to find your reals. surprising to you to find yourself with some very gentlemanly lunatics playing billiards; nor do you feel at all astonished by and by Bethlehem seem more like a club than a midhouse. Every man is allowed to smoke after the dinner; and it is with a strange feeling of semi-bewilderment that you stroll into a reading room and see a gentleman quietly enjoying his tobacco over a number of the Illustrated News. "Mad!" Certainly; has been mad for years; will be mad for years; but not, for all that, miserable-not, for all that, cut off from the fellowship of his race! It is hardly the sufferers from acute mania, perhaps, that afflict one the you see a shadow pass like a thunder cloud, as the man's hour of torment comes upon him; but in that there is still some courage and manhood left. Yonder, stricken by the worst kind of melancholy, a poor creature, his hair all gray or grizzled, rocks elf incessantly to and fro upon his seat, shrinks from a couch as from fire, and gives no answer to a kindly salutation but a moan. If this be his state at midday, what is it when the night closes in ? Pass on; and now, how old, think you, is the rosy gentleman asleep in a chair by the chimney corner? The rosy gentleman looks up with a surprising amount of briskness as he liears daughters, all grown up, and of these only the question, and answers, "Ninety, sir." the eldest daughter is now living. Four e question, and answers, "Ninety, sir." He is not dreaming, not romancing. He sons died of consumption within a short came to this hospital—think of it—in Jan-period of each other, one daughter of fever, uary, 1827, already forty-eight years old; and the eldest son, who had attained middle and there is still a color in his cheeks. Less cheerful, but robust in his language to a degree, which is almost terrific, is a rold sailor in the neighborhood. Our men swore sailor in the neighborhood. Our men swore terrifly in Flanders, but this grand old wet banks of the Seneca and firmerly locking terribly in Flanders, but this grand old vetwas there an old gentleman so utterly unfit

Here and there, over a fine proud face.

In the female wards, situated in the eastern part of the hospital, we meet with many more cases of chronic and persistent delulady, for instance, whom we accost, des-Majesty Queen Victoria in a slighting tone, and de haut ex bas. A poor unhappy gentlewoman has been here for years: she grown old, and sharp, and wrinkled; her white hair hangs in great tangled heaps about her, and there is a look, like that of hunger, in her eyes as she presses towards the door of her little room, and would fain pass on and bustle by you. Involuntarily, a man shrinks from the touch for just a second; and it is not your first impulse, but a return of your reason, and your reverence where the more hopeful, at any rate the quieter cases, are to be met with.

Decorous as a private drawing room are the patients sit reading, others working, others again, practicing at the piano. A poor girl, who is, in the strict conventional gense, a young lady—eagerly accosts us as we pass. As one might guess, it is the old story of a love that came to nothing. The face is bright still, and pretty, though the fine eyes are troubled, and there is a painful little catch in the voice. Sensibly and quietly, with a kind of subdued eagerness that is wonderfully touching, she pleads for her release; she is quite well; she would be quite safe; she can take care of herself perquite safe; she can take care of herself perfectly. A crucial question is then asked, "Ah! but I shall tell you the truth, or not the truth? When I tell you the truth, you keep me here." "And the truth," God help us, is that she is engaged to a young gentleman, "and that the greater part of Europe belongs to him." The soft but earnest voice—a lady's in every tone rembles down into tears, but the eyes, though suffused, look proud, and have a touch of anger in them, as she says, "You keep me here because I tell the truth." No. quieter voice could you hear, and you must be strangely constituted if you can turn away from such an interview, without pain and sickness at the heart. Average Age of Animals.

The average age of cats is 15 years: of squirrels and hares, 7 or 8 years; of rabbits, 7: a bear rarely exceeds 20 years; a wolf, -20; a fox, 14 to 16, lions are long lived, the one known by the name of Pompey living to the age of 70 years; elephants have been known, it is asserted, to live to the great age of 400 years. When Alexander the Great had conquered Porus, King of India, he took a great elephant which had fought very valiantly for the King, and named him Ajax, dedicated him to the sun, and let him go with this inscription: "Alexander the son of Jupiter, dedicated Ajax to the sun?" The elephant was found with this inscription 350 years after. Pigs have been known to live to the age of 20, and the rhinoceros to 20; a horse has been known to live to the age of 62, but average 25 to 80; camels sometimes live to the age of 100: stags are very long lived; sheep seldom exceed the age of 10; cows live about 15 years, and are then killed for beef. Euvier considers it probable that whales sometimes live 1,000 years, the dolphin and porpoise attain the age of 30; an eagle died at Vienna at the age of 104 years: ravens frequently reach the age of 100; swans have been known to live 300 years. Mr. Malerton has the skeleton of a swan that attained the age of 200 years. Pelicans are long lived. A tortoise has been known to live 107 years.

The Talmud. The publication in Berlin of a faultless stereotype edition of the Talmud, filling 2,118 large double sheets, has recently been announced. It is stated that this voluminous work did not appear in print in a com-plete form until 1520, when an edition was published in Venice. A single copy of this early issue, though full of troographical errors, is worth $700 in gold. The recent edition is sold at a reasonable price. The Talmud is composed of two parts, the Mish-da, or the second law, and the Gemark, that is the supplement, the completion. The Mistina is a digest of Israelitish traditions and a compendium of the whole ritual law reduced to writing in its present form by Rabbi Jehudah the Holy, who lived in the second century before Christ." It is concisely written and requires notes. These are furnished by the commentaries, the Gemars. which are yery commonly meant when the word Talmud is used.

Hints to Politicians Row to Organiz Pelitical Meetings. As the season for political meetings is at and, it is proper to produce the following excellent advice given by Horace Greeley some years ago, which Republicans and Democrats will do well to heed: 1. Do not fix the day for your meeting and then look up your speakers—they will already, perhaps, have been engaged elsewhere for that day—but secure your speakers first. Let them fit the day.

2. Two prominent speakers, with the local aid at your command, are sufficient for any one mass meeting. Let the people un-derstand that these can be relied upon, and do not load your bills with an array of great names only to disappoint your au-

3. Have your meeting, if possible, in The former is comparatively easy, and the latter difficult for a speaker to control. 4. If you must have outdoor gatherings then seek the grove or woods, and fail not to hear a plane in a neighboring room, and to erect a stand for your speakers, and cover recognize a bit of Beethoven. Parts of it with boards, and nothing else. Carvas to erect a stand for your speakers, and cover absorbs and deadens the voice, while with nothing above, the speaker's voice will > he will break down. 5. Always put down upon your platform, whether in or outdoors, a piece of coarse carpet to stand upon. Never cover with il-cloth, unless you expect your speaker to be lifeless and dull.

waste in the air and in five cases out of six

6. Consume as little time as possible with reliminaries, in marching and countermarching. Get your procession upon the ground with dispatch, and proceed at once o the business of the meeting.

7. Remember your speakers, especially the more prominent ones, have families to support. Their time is valuable, and it costs money to travel on railroads, and stop at hotels. "Thou shalt not muzzle the mouth of the ox that treadeth out the corn."

The Family of the Late John C. Calhoun Edward A. Pollard, in a recent article upon the distinguished South Carolinian, states the following facts regarding the family of the deceased

The house and land were not sold, as happily, by a military order of Gen. Canby, there is reserved from execution, to every family in South Carolina, a house and twenty acres of land attached to it. The proceeds of the sale of the library—one of he choicest private collections of books in your reason, and your reverence the South—were pitiful indeed. THE Harrisburg Telegraph of Saturday has the following remarkable and fatal accimany of these apartments, where some of dent: "Last evening about five o'clock, as one of the through freight trains, over the Pennsylvania Railroad, was approaching West Philadelphia, while the fireman of engine No. 378 was in the act of cleaning the smoke stack of his engine, he was struck by a bridge into which the train was entering, and was forced back and into the smoke stack, by a projecting piece of tim-ber, and there lodged, found dead—scalded and suffocated—requiring the aid of eight or ten men to extricate him from the funnel of the smoke stack.

A BRUTE in Kansas, named Robert Beck ley, recently took his little step-son out in the woods and deliberately killed him. The evidence at the inquest revealed the fact that on several occasons he had been seen by different parties whipping or beating the child in a most unmercial manner—such as setting it up on a high stool and knocking it therefrom with his hand; lifting it clear from the floor by the nape of the necl and beating it while there suspended, and otherwise treating it as only a demon would treat a helpless child of two years. There is a hopeful prospect of his speedy execu-

A CIRCULAR, dated July 28, has been distributed in the anthracite coal regions, inviting the working men to require pledge from the candidates for the Legislature that if elected, they will use all honorabl means in their power to pass a bill that all labor done over eight hours shalf be time and one half time; or in other words, that forty minutes shall constitute one hour. The miners and laborers of the anthracite coal district are advised to work as many iours as the law directs and no more, since by so doing, less coal will be shipped and the markets will become exhausted.
