LANCASTER, PA., Aug. 17, 1868.

During Saturday the remains of Thaddeus Stevens lay in state in the parlor of his late residence, and were visited by many hundreds of his friends and constituents. The street was crowded during the whole time the doors were open and up to a late hour in the evening, after - which many were cent away disappointed. On Sunday, contrary to the intention, the immense press of visitors, persistent, though respectful, caused the relatives to admit many to see the remains." Early this morning the coffin was again opened and the crowd again commenced passing through the rooms. The coffin was decorated with wreathes and a cross of evergreens and white lilies. The face was becoming some what discolored, but the expression was the Previous to the arrival of the trains the people of the vicinity began to come in by hundreds, the vehicles lining the streets and the people the sidewalks. The first train brought from Harrisburg Governor Geary, Senator Cameron, General Heintzelin reaching the door on account of the crowd even at that early hour. Still they came, filling the streets, the scene exceed-ing anything witnessed here for years; but there was no confusion or disorder. The trains westward next arrived, the regular one bringing large organized delegations from various points along the route, one of which came from West Chester.

The special train from Philadelphia brought the Mayor and Councils of that brought the Mayor and Councils of that city, delegations from the Invincibles and the Union League, the latter carrying a splendid banner draped in mourning, also a representation from the colored citizens of Philadelphia, including a committee from Banneker Literary Institute. Attorney General Evarts has given an opinion that the office of Collector at New Orleans is now vacant, becoming so by his resignation and complete institution as a member of the Senate. The Constitution says the President shall have power to fill up all vacancies that may happen during the recess of the Senate, by granting commissions that shall expire at the end of their next session. The only doubt ever suggested on the construction of this clause of the Constitution has been in relation to the true interpretation of the phrase, "that may happen during the recess of the Sen-ate." The subject was fully discussed by Mr. Wirt, in the year 1823, and no view or argument that could shed light upon a correct decision was omitted from his consideration of it. He arrived at the conclusion that a vacancy in office which conclusion that a vacancy in office, which might be filled by the President under this clause of the Constitution, was not confined to vacancies originating to exist dur-ing the recess of the Senate, but embraces all vacancies that from any casualty happen to exist at a time when the Senate cannot to exist at a time when the Senate cannot be consulted as to filling them. Mr. Evarts then proceeds to examine the tenure-of-office act, the third sec-tion of which alone bears on the subject, and concludes that upon the well consid-ered and long continued interpretation of this clause of the Constitution the Presi-dent has power to fill the vacancy in the office of Collector at New Orleans by grant-ing a commission that shall expire at the end of the next session of the Senate, and a commission that snan expire at the end of the next session of the Senate, and that ithe tenure, of civil office act does not in terms, nor in intent, or in legislative construction of this clause of the Constitution, affect this power of the President in the case submitted for my opinion.

The day opened early, as it is customary every day while the meeting lasts, with prayer and praise in the different tents, through-out the encampment. The utterance of so many prayers, and the melody of so many songs, ascending just as the King of Day appears in his grandeur in the East, must surely be an incense offering well pleasing to God. Breakfast is then partaken and the people quickly prepare for the call to wor-ship at the public stand." Public services was opened at eight o'clock, with a sermon by Rev. Noble G. Miller, of Irwin's Station, who preached a short discourse in an interesting manner. The morning train, and the influx of resi-

After a recess of about two hours the peo-ble were called at two o'clock to hear Rev. Charles W. Smith discuss the undesirable-ness of the Mammon of unrighteousness compared with the Wisdom from above. The subject was well handled and reflected, much credit on this young talented minis-ter. A brief recess and public services were resumed—Rev. H. L. Chapman, of East Liberty occupying the stand. He presented in eloquent words the benefits derived by the Gospel of Christ. course, timely illustrations were adduced, which gave edge to the points discussed. Notwithstanding a large body of people left the ground in the evening, an immense concurse assembled at night to hear the Rev. T. McCleary, of McKeesport, discourse on the unbelief of people in regard to the provis-ion made for their salvation as revealed in the Word of God. The fearful truths bear-ing upon those who "neglect the great sal-vation" were presented in a clear and for-cible style. At the close of the sermon quite a number presented themselves at the altar for religious instruction and prayer.
