HORBACH, THURSDAY, the 24th day of September $10.000 TO LOAN, a page out of one of Fielding's novels: At Tunbridge, in the year 1815, Mr. J. Hedges made a very brilliant appearance; he had been married about two years to a young lady of great beauty and large fortune; they had one child, a boy, on whom they bestowed all that affection which they could spare from each other. He knew nothing of gaming, nor seemed to have the least passion for play; but he was unac-quainted with his own heart: he began by degrees to bet at the table for trifling sums, and his soul took fire at the prospect of immediate gain; he was soon surrounded by sharpers, who with calmness lay in ambush for his fortune, and coolly took advantage of the precipitancy of his passions. His lady perceived the ruin of her family approaching, but, at first, without being able to form any scheme to prevent it. She advised with his brother, who at that time was possessed of a small fellowship at Cam-ind, seemed to be there fixed unalterably; it was determined, therefore, to let him oursue fortune, but previously take measure to prevent the pursuit being fatal. Accordingly, every night, this gentleman was a constant attendant at the hazard tables; he understood neither the arts of sharpers, nor even the allowed strokes of a connoiseur, yet still he played. The conse-

His agony, up)n this occasion was inexpressible he was even mean enough to ask a gentle. man who sat near to lend him a few pieces, in order to turn his fortune, but this prudent gamester, who plainly saw there was no expectations of being repaid, refused to lend a farthing, alleging a former resolution against lending. Hedges was at last furi-ous with the continuance of ill-success, and illing out his watch, asked if any person in the company would set him sixty guineas upon it. The company were silent; he then demanded fifty; still no answer; he sunk to forty, thirty, twenty; finding the company they instantly gathered round, and prevent ed the effects of his passion; and after he again became cool, he was permitted to return home, with sullen disconcent, to his wife. Upon his entering her-apartment, she received him with her usual tenderness and satisfaction; while he answered her caresses with contempt and severity, his disposition being quite altered with his mis-fortunes. "But, my dear Jemmy," says I have to tell; my mamma's old uncle is dead, the messenger is now in the house, and you know his estate is settled upon was, at least you always told me so."
