Notwithstanding the inclemency of the weather, the patriotic Republican citizens of the Third ward, Allegheny, turned out n masse on Saturday evening in front of Col. At the conclusion of his remarks, the band played an enlivening air, after which Jacob H. Miller, Esq., took the stand and made an interesting and forcible address. Mr. Miller commenced by saying that he was glad to see so many of his friends and acquaintances of Allegheny gathered in council on such an occasion and at such a time. party is one of which any party might be proud. To the country they have given a lorious peace and an unbounded prosperity. Taking hold of the government when it was tottering to its fall, they have elevated it to a position which it has never before occupied and to-day is an honored, influential and powerful nation Republicans can rejoice and exult in the success which has attended the work of their hands.

Some persons have asked, will General Gaznt be elected? Who would not vote for Grant? Where is the man who, in the light of the last four years, with a country just emerged from the throes of a foul rebellion, and enjoying peace and unparalled pros-perity, would be so craven, so ungrateful as to cast his vote against bim by whom all these results were obtained. People of a grateful republic do as their honor and Republican governments, their Republics are ungrateful. The next subject which claimed the sceaker's attention was the enthusiasm manife-ted at this meeting Milivale can be expected to do her full share of work at the approaching elections.

Some time during Friday night or early Saturday morning, the shoe store of Mry John Campbell, on Smithfield street, near meeting but stand by the Republican party and its principles, these necarious designs will all be frustrated, the power of the Government to conquor and keep down rebellion be exemplified, and peace, prosperity and happiness reign throughout the land. the history of the nation from the time Charles Sumner, in our legislative half, was stricken down by the bludgeon of a Southern fire-eater for expressing his sentiments, showing the bondage in which were then held and which continued until the breaking out of the war. From this and similar causes the organization of the Republican party became a necessity for the preservation of our liberties. The promulgation of the principles of universal promulgation of the principles of universal contents. It don't compel a man to infreedom of speech throughout the land eventually brought on the conflict from which we have just emerged. All through that stormy time this principle and idea was firmly and tenaciously adhered to by the Republican party, and when the clouds of war rolled away yictory perched upon their banner, and free speech was guarantacid to all throughout the their banner, and free speech was guaranteed to all throughout the length and breadth of the land. And this is the real issue which divides our country to-day; it is not bonds, it is not taxes, it is not any of these specious questiens by which the Democratic party seek to blind the eyes of the people. It is a question whether was the people at the special special whether was the people at the special special special down trouden African rising from under the blightening influence of oppression and slavery, possessed of no advantages of social intercourse or education, disregarded, degraded, can it be that he shall surpass his oppressors in the race of life? Democratic party seek to blind the eyes of the people. It is a question whether we are to enjoy the freedom of which we boast. Let us then, with this issue clearly before us, go forward earnestly in the work and see that our principles conquer. We have fought for them, nobly and valiantly in the field. Let us fight as pobly and valiantly in the field. Let them, nobly and valiantly in the field. Let us fight as nobly and valiantly at the ballot-bex, and when the third day of next November is over and victory remains with hopes and aspirations, he will sing to him to a not as not yand valuatity at the bal-lot-box, and when the third day of next No-vember is over and victory remains with us, a shout of joyous triumph from mill-ions of freemen will proclaim to the world the goal, as we sometimes singthat this land is indeed the land of the FREE, who have secured their freedom for-After Mr. Slagle's speech, the band discoursed several patriotic airs, and Hon.

Jas. L. Graham was introduced, who entertained the audience for nearly an hour, in a speech remarkable for logical power and eloquence. He said they met to-day on the eve of one of the most important elections which had ever taken place in the our pleasure to attend since the opening of the campaign. It is the duty seven o'clock with the following list of our man, as a lover of his country, officers:

**President—James McBriar.**

The meeting came to order at man-past times of our government. The meeting came to represent the country, of our man, as a lover of his country, to lay aside all party prejudice and all party traditions, and to look squarely at the ty traditions, and to look squarely at the question and conscientiously and honestly ask himself what is my duty to myself, to my country, to humanity, and then having once decided, regardless of partizanship, go forward in the every discharge of that duty without fear or favor. Examining then the question in this light, there appears to be two leading or central ideas or principles. two leading or central ideas or principles. which present themselves for considera-tion. The exponents of one of these ideas are the nominees of the Republican party under the Constitution forms the government, and that any departure or drawal from this government is a crime punishable with the severe penalties no-corded to traitors and rebels. The Democrstic idea is that the Union depends on the consent of each individual State, and as long as this consent is accorded the compact remains unbroken, but when a State wishes to withdraw, it can do so and tho on the vast assemblage, if there had ever been a similar gathering under such circumstances in the world, and as he referred to the history of the past he was compelled which brought on the war, and it is this will have to be sattled finally, as we government can't prevent it. There is really the underlying cause of the present contest. It was this difference of opinion to say that only in America had its coun- which will have to be settled finally, as we rpart ever been seen.

The people of this country are, as they lot. These side issues of bonds, greenbacks should be, practically the government and as they assemble in council together to consider and decide who shall execute their not the real questions, but are only thrown wishes in the future they well know and day. The gentleman developed this line of argument at considerable length, and in an able manner, which seemed to carry convic-tion with it. He next took up the two candidates Grant and Seymour. Grant he characterized as a man born in humble circumstances, educated at the Government expense, a modest, quiet, unassuming man, of few words but migaty, noble deeds, one who when all others had failed led our armies of gallant soldiers to glorious victory. This is the man whom the Republican party have chosen as their stands d bearer and for whom they ask the votes of the people. On the other hand, we have Seymour, the cunning, crafty, calculating politician, a man skilled in all the political chicanery of the New York school of politics, a man who when General Grant was marching under the summer sun at the head of our grateful republic do as their honor and better feelings demand, outside of party prejudice. The man who preserved to them their liberties and existence, will be placed in their Chief Magistrate's chair, by a majority which will completely overwhelm all partizanship, and be a standing rebuke to the enemies of Republican governments, their Republican was cajoling and caressing in New York a mobofred-handed, or phase asylum burners, and murderers and calling them his friends. He afterwards successes promised us, and where were they? He was unaware that at that time our noble boys in blue, under the leadership of Grant, had taken the rebel stronghold of Republican governments, their Republican was cajoling and caressing in New York a Grant, had taken the rebei stronghold of Vicksburg, and the rebei Gen. Pemberton had delivered up his sword with thirty-four thousand prisoners of war; that the gallant General Meade was driving the rebei hordes from the soil of Pennsylvania, and from all along our borders the shouts of victory from our victorious legions made the welkin ring. (Cheers.) Mr. Wallace, the Chairman of the Democratic State Central Committee, says that Seymour is a statesman and that Grant is not. What does Frank Blair think on this point? He thinks, according to his published letters, that Gen. Grant has not only intellect enough to fill the position of President, but that if elected he will, by the power and force of that intellect, make himself dictator, and therefore it is dangerous to elect him. But conceding that Gen. Grant has never mixed in the political whirlpool, that he is but a civilian, a man of the people, unaccustomed to public life, is not the education of the last eight years sufficient? His experience in that Union has made him so acquainted with the wants of his countrymen, and so edu-eate him that if elected he will develop that kind of statesmanship which the peo-ple so much desire in their servants, and which will lead us from the commotion of civil strife into a condition of peace and abundant prospority. Hardly more than a year ago this was the lauguage and sentiment expressed by the Democratic party. But now a change has come over the spirit of their dreams. Now the man whom they delighted to honor has become the butt of all their rage and sarcasm. But their efforts are in vann. The record of Gen. Grant is written in imperishable characters in his country's history, and no which will lead us from the commotion o would give to its lowest or its nignest citizen. It don't compel a man to invite a negro to his table, or to associate with him in his daily intercourse if he prefers not to, and can it be that the Democrats are afraid that this negro will surpass them in intellect and so must be them in intellect, and so must be kept down. Can it be that the poor down trodden African rising from under eed you, and if rising higher and higher she passes through the clouds towards

"If you get there before I do, Lookout for me, I'm coming too." (Loud and prolonged cheers.)
The gentleman continued at some length to argue the justice and equity of the re-construction policy of Congress as laid down in the 14th article of amendment to the Constitution, which was frequently interrupted with applause, and which we regret space will not allow us to report fur-

In closing, he said the present was simply a contest between loyalty and disloyalty. Shall the liberties, and all that is noble and shart the liberties, and all that is noble and true in our Government, be sacrificed before the grass has withered over the graves of those who had laid down their lives to preserve it for us? I think not—it cannot be. There is a spirit of loyalty and national love in the hearts of the American people which will not permit them to do the people which will not permit them to doth a.

solder, the prolound statesman, the incor-ruptible patriot, Ulysses S. Grant. [Loud and prolonged cheering]. After the applause which followed Mr. Graham's speech had subsided, the chair-man announced another gathering in the Allegheny Diamond on Monday evening and proposed three cheers for Grant and Colfax, which were given with a will and Colfax, which were given with a will and the meeting then adjourned.

How any man could be nounced that Col. C. S. Poorman of Ohio. nounced that Col. C. S. Poorman, of Ohic, would deliver an address on the issues involved in the present political campaign. A band had been employed and excellent music was discoursed from the stand, in the Market square, opposite Shaeffer's hotel. By half past seven o'clock, a very large crowd had assembled and the appearance of the speaker of the evening was anxiously awaited. John Able Jones was present with his glee club and the audience was favored with several campaign songs, ren-dered in most excellent style.

The meeting was called to order by Mr.

D. C. Ripley, who announced the following officers: President—M. B. Hartzell; Vice Presidents—John Redman, George Duncan, John Phillips, James Mc Donald, Chas. Evans; Seeretaries—David A. The Colonel reviewed the reconstruction policy of Congress, the bond question, and the position of the Democratio party in a most able manner. A considerable portion of his remarks were addressed to the workingmen, and he demonstrated very clearly that the interests of the laboring class had been best subserved by the ing class had been best subserved by the Republican party.

Gen. Negley, candidate for Congress, followed in a brief but eloquent address, excusing himself from talking longer, owing to the lateness of the hour. His remarks were well received.

Major E. A. Montooth was called for and responded briefly, contining himself main-ly to the "record" of the Presidential can-didates. He closed amid cries of "go on,"

"go on."
Prof. Jones favored the audience with another song, and after music by the band the meeting adjourned with three cheers for Grant and Colfax. The meeting was decidedly one of the best held in the borough thus far in the campaign, and from the manifestations it was plainly to be seen that the Republicans of Birmingham are united and wide awake, and will give a good account of themselves in October and November.

A Strange Story.

Shortly after eleven o'clock on Friday evening a man approached officers Wilson and Johnson, at the Union Depot, and stated that he had been made the victim of a confilence game under the following circumstances: He said he belonged to Illinois and was waiting to make connection with the Western train, having just arrived from the East. While he was waiting in the depot a well dressed, gentlemanly looking individual came in and entered into conversation with him. After conversing a short time, his new friend invited him to take a drink, and they left the depot for that purpose. As they were about entering the hotel stranger No. 2 steps up and told stranger No. 1 "that he had shipped that freight, and must have fifty dollars to pay the charges." No. I had nothing but a five hundred dollar bill, and saked greeney to lend him fifty dollars till asked greeney to lend him fifty dollars till tered into conversation with him. After asked greeney to lend him fifty dollars till he got change, which was done, and the last seen of the strange gentlemen they were hastening down Canal street toward Penn. The Illinoisman returned to the derot, and about half an hour after the oc-currence related the above story to the currence related the above story to the officers. He said he thought they would come back and return him the money, which was the reason why he delayed informing the officers. He staid at the depot until the next morning, when he endeavored to get a pass over the Fort Wayne road by relating his story. He was afterwards seen talking to a man who soon after came to the office and corroborated his story. The pass, however was not his story. The pass, however, was not forthcoming, and the tale is so fishy that a beyond comprehension. If it be true the individual is a little greener than we had supposed a mortal could be and live However, truth is stranger than fiction, which is an argument in its favor.

Another Outrage—A Young Girl the Victim.

On Saturday evening a young and respectable German girl who resides in the Fifth ward was the victim of a brutal outrage of a party of fiends in human form, for whom no punishment is too severe. It seems that the young lady in company with a male friend was quietly walking along Penn street, about nine o'clock in the evening. Turning from Penn they passed toward the riyer, down Canal street. As they were walking along Canal street they were accosted by three men, who entered into conversation with them. As the parties seemed respectable them. As the parties seemed respectable and quiet, nothing was thought of the oc-currence until they arrived at the bank of the river, where the men knocked the young man down with a handy billy, rendering him senseless, and seized hold of the girl. She endeavored to create an a arm, when one of the men placing his hand over her mouth grasped her in his arm and carried her under the railroad bridge where the three villains succeeded in their design. In the meantime the young man recovering procured an officer and went back to the bridge where they discovered the unfortunate girl. She was taken home and search was ma te for her assailants. A man who was na:e for her assailants. A man who was noticed hurrying from the bridge was arrested and taken to the lock-up, where he refused to give his name, He is supposed to be one of the guilty parties. The police are endeavoring to ferret the villians out, but so far have not succeeded

Railroad Accident--Man Killed,

On Saturday evening, shortly before dark, John Flinn, an employe of the Pitts burgh, Fort Wayne & Chicago Railroad Company, was run over by a train on the road and instantly killed. It seems he was walking along the track near the outer depot, in the Second ward, when stepping off on a track to get out of the way of an approaching train, he was struck by a train coming in the opposite direction with the result as stated. The deceased was about forty-five years of age, and resided at Wood's Run, whither he was going at the time of his death. Coroner Clawson has been notified, and will hold an inquest this morning.

Ford made information before Alderman M'Masters on Saturday against James Battle and William White against James Battle and William White for assault and hattery and robbery. Ford alleges that while he was in attendance at the Fenian picule on Friday the accused entered into convarsation with him, and after a short time they entired him away from the company to a stired ent where from the company to a retired spot, where they knocked him down and robbed him the old Kaystone Size. A Philanthropic Act.

On Friday afternoon about three c'clock three small boys were playing with a skiff moored at the Allegheny wharf, near the Hand street bridge, when the boat broke from its fastenings and floated away from the shore. In the fright occasioned by the occurrence one of the boys, named McMahon, fell into the water and narrowly escaped a watery grave. He had gone down the third time, when a young man named Hutchison plunged into the river and with considerable difficulty brought him to the chora. He was inspecially but him to the shore. He was insensible but revived soon after. This is said to be the third time Mr. Hutchinson has acted in a similar manner, and he certainly deserves the highest praise for his philanthropic
