How Demagogues Talk to Laboring Men. The announcement that Hon. Samuel F. Carey, of Cincinnati, would address the

The meeting organized by calling J. W. Kreps, Esq., to the chair, calling J. W. Kreps, Esq., to the chair, who, in a very neat and dignified speech, introduced to the audience a braggadocia named Richard Travellick, a shipbuilder, of Detroit, Michigan, who proceeded to speak his piece. How any man could talk for two hours on nothing, about nothing, and to no earthly purpose, we never could discover till this bag of wind punctured himself and let flow a torrent of meaningless words strung toa torrent of meaningless words strung to-gether with as much good taste as a child would make its bead and button charm, or a school boy of ten summers put in shape his first composition. Speaking to aid Mr. Burtt, he murdered Burtt's and every its head.

He evidently had ransacked the dictionary for high sounding words, and without discrimination arranged them towithout discr mination arranged them together to/counterfeit and pass off his remarks as the true coin of eloquence on men who, for the sake of their enlightened fellow tollers, we trust, saw through the motives of the fellow, and set him down as an interested politician, who, finding favor in neither great party, has shot out to advocate the rights of the laboring classes. We have heard him once and hope to be spared the torture of hearing him again.

Hon. S. F. Carey, of Cincinnati, was the next speaker introduced, and he acquitted himself but little better. He held in his soft white hand a massive gold headed cane, such as it is fashionable for our laboring men to carry, and sported a heavy gold watch and chain which are so characteristic of our workingmen's extravagant.

he took no stock in either party but loved the mechanic and the laborer. Rich, bloated bondholders of Cincinnati are going to spend half a million of dollars to secure his defeat for Congress, but in spite of all this wealth, and of the opposition of four daily papers, two morning and two evening, he will triumph and again be elected. He wanted somebody with whom he could as-society in Congress, and his choice was wanted somebody with whom he could associate in Congress, and his choice was Burtt, the hard fisted mechanic of Western Pennslyvania. Let him be elected and good times generally will follow throughout the pation. At dso spoke Mr. Carey. His speech had little or no effect on his Democratic audience, who stood as immovable as stone when the stood as immovable as stone when the stood as immovable as stone when the speaker got off some of the same heavy periods which "sparkled" in the speech of the shipbuilder who had preceded him, (for both traveling together, one had stolen the thunder of the other.) The Republicans of the Eleventh (old Seventh) ward will hold an election this afternoon between the hours of five and seven o'clock to nominate one man for Common Council, as there was a tie vote on last Saturday between Hon. On Tuesday Night as some of the Grant and Colfax clubs in Philadelphia were marching home from the great meeting at marching home from the great meeting at the Union League, they were attacked on Race street by a crowd of men hurrahing for Seymour and Blair. Bricks and stones were hurled about and a perfect shower of these missi es rained down on the procession from the roofs and wind ws of the neighboring houses. The members of the Vigilant Engine Company were prominent among the assailant, in hopes of bringing reinforcements, but instead of that, a strong sound of police marched up, who succeeded reinforcements, but instead of that, a strong squad of police marched up, who succeeded in quelling the disturbance and preventing the destruction, by the irate Republicans, of the Vigilant Engine House. Three members of different clubs were severely injured by pistols, knives and bricks, and many other persons were slightly hurt. The same arguments seem thus to be in use in Philadelphia as in Pittsburgh.

Still Another Square Grand.

A magnificent plano was exhibited a few days ago at H. Kleber & Bros. warerooms, and was purchased by one of our prominent and wealthy citizens, Springer Liberty. It is one of those famous Square Grand Steinway Pianos, than which noth-ing exists more truly and mechanically ing exists more truly and mechanically grand. There is a prestige and an artistic atmosphere about a Steinway Piano which is equally irresistible to the taste of refined persons and the discriminative appreciation of professional men. A few years hence and there will hardly be one amongst the thousands of elegant residences springing up everywhere without its Steinway Piano. Indeed, even now, the well furnished dwelling unable to boast of a "Steinway" in its parlors is looked upon as a rather incomplete affair—a body without its head.
