GRANT'S THE MAN!

BY P. P. BLISS.

Hear the mighty shout arise, "Grant's the man,
Grant's the man!"
East and West, th watchword flies,
"Grant's the very man!"
Freedom's cause must ever stand.
Right, triumphant, rule the land.
Who will take the ta k in hand?
Grant's the very man!

CHORUS—
Then rally for your leader, boys, rally for the right
Rally for the flag, boys, rally in your might,
Buckle on your aprons, we've a few more hides to tan,
Rally for your leader, boys,
Grant's the very man!

Who withstood the Vicksburg hail? Grant's the man,
Grant's the man.
Who at Richmond did prevail?
Grant's the very man!
Who, when older ones looked blue,
Vowed he'd put the matter through?
Who made every word come true?
Grant's the very man!

CHORUS—
Who will to the White House go? Grant's the man,
Grant's the man!
Who rebellious schemes o'erthrow?
Grant's the very man!
Who will tan the K. K. K.'s?
Who Columbia's banner raise?
Who receive the nation's praise?
Grant's the very man!

LETTERS FROM EUROPE.—NO. 10.

A Visit to the Tomb of Napoleon the First.

[Correspondence of the Pittsburgh Gazette.]

SEPTEMBER 4, 1868.

Among all the varied and interesting things that are to be seen in Paris, the Tomb of Napoleon the First is, in our judgment, the finest. It cannot but excite the wonder and admiration of every beholder, no matter what may be his feelings and views concerning him whose mortal remains are enclosed therein. On Thursday, the 20th of July, we made a visit to the tomb, and shall never forget the impression it made upon us. It is open to the public only on Mondays and Thursdays of each week from twelve to three o'clock, when there is free admission, and every one, of every nationality, who chooses, can go and see the spot where lies the dust of one of the greatest military chieftains the world has ever seen. It is interesting not only to see the place itself and its surroundings, but also to look upon the stream of people, the tide of humanity, that flows thither twice each week to see where lie the remains of the great dead. Men of every nationality, of every tongue, of every calling and rank in life are to be seen passing in and out. The American, the Englishman, the German, the French, the Italian, soldiers and civilians, priests and laymen, men and women, young and old, rich and poor, the lady dressed in finest satins and most expensive silks, and the coarsely apparelled mother with child in her arms—all, and at the same time, are around and by the tomb of Napoleon. The crowd of visitors is so great that it is necessary to observe the strictest order in their passage to and from the tomb. Two men in uniform, officials in charge, stand at the head of the stairway to direct the people to go down on the left, pass around and come up on the right.

Remusat said: "Napoleon must have a monument as lasting as his memory." And in his last will and testament Napoleon himself wrote, it is said, these words: "I desire that my ashes may rest on the banks of the Seine, among that French nation that I loved so much." He has, indeed, a lasting monument—one that will endure for centuries; and the request made in his will has been carried out. His ashes repose on the banks of the Seine. Napoleon the First, as is known to all who are in any degree familiar with his history, died in exile at St. Helena, in 1821. In 1842 a movement was inaugurated by Louis Philippe—and at the time it was considered a very generous and liberal movement on his part—by which the remains of Napoleon were brought to Paris, and at enormous expense—an expense borne by the government—a place was fitted and a tomb prepared for them. On the South bank of the Seine, in an open and beautifully shaded spot, there is a large building with open courts, which gives shelter and a home to about 2,000 maimed, old and wounded soldiers. In the rear of this is the Church of St. Louis, the dome of which, built at the commencement of the 17th century, and forming its southern extremity, has been appropriated as a resting place for the "ashes" of Napoleon I.

You pass through a gate in a very high iron fence, and passing along a finely gravelled walk of about one hundred yards in length, with flowers and green award on each side, you ascend the steps which lead to the dome. As you enter the door, you are struck with the beauty and magnificence of the place. The whole is exquisite in design and grand in execution. It seems to me that nothing could excel it; and one has mingled feelings of solemnity and admiration. You walk on finely wrought mosaic pavement of the time of Louis XIV. The dome above is gorgeously gilded and adorned with splendid paintings. In the dome, (the whole building is called by the French, the Dome,) there are several chapels. Passing in at the main entrance, on your left, is the chapel of Saint Jerome, which contains the tomb of Prince Jerome Bonaparte, composed of a sarcophagus in black marble, supported by bronze "griffinlions;" and on the walls around are six magnificent paintings. In the chapel on the right, in an immense black and white marble tomb, highly polished, are the remains of Joseph Bonaparte. Passing onwards a few paces, you come to a circular marble balustrade immediately beneath the dome proper. It is 18 yards in diameter, and looking over it, and down 12 feet into the crypt your eye rests on the tomb, where lies all that is mortal of the great Napoleon. You are at once impressed with its beauty and collossal proportions. The tomb itself is upwards of of 12 feet long, 6 wide, and 14 feet high, and stands on a green granite base which was brought from the Vosges. It is of red granite from Finland, and was presented by the Emperor Nicholas; it is an "immense monolith" (single stone) "weighing 135,000 pounds, and was polished by a powerful steam engine." The polish is so high that it really glistens. Around the tomb are twelve colossal figures, in marble, equi-distant from each other, representing the Emperor's twelve principal victories, six stands each containing a dozen or more of flags which he took in his battles. Some of these are nearly whole, others are in shreds. The light from the dome above serves in rendering the whole distinctly visible. In the northern extremity of the building is a high altar, and a cross bearing the image of the Savior, before which devout Catholics may be seen kneeling, repeating their prayers and counting their beads. From the four corners of the altar there rise four twisted columns, perhaps twenty inches or two feet in diameter, of black and white marble, the summits of which are connected with a roof like structure, highly finished and richly gilded. The rays of the sun passing through amber glass in the windows, and falling on the gilding, produce a most solemn and sududing effect. There is an under passage that lead from behind the high altar to the crypt, in which is the tomb, but the great brazen door is locked and the present Emperor keeps the key in his own possession. After having given the tomb, and all in the beautiful building that contains it, a careful inspection, your retrace you steps feeling that you have been amply paid for your visit, and conscious that you have seen the grandest and most beautiful tomb in the world.

Catholics on Color.

The Catholics are laboring among the freedmen in Baltimore. In their schools and churches white and black sit together. The priests openly declare the doctrine that "God makes no distinction, and the Church cannot."

Commenting upon the above paragraph, the Cincinnati Catholic Telegraph, the leading organ of the Catholic Church in the West, which is edited by Very Rev. Edward Purcell, a brother of the most Rev. Archbishop Purcell, says:

The above is from the last number of the Presbyterian Witness. When was the writer of that item born—where has he lived? He must have been taking a Rip Van Winkle snooze for some eighteen hundred years. The Catholic Church has always done this. Blacks and whites study and recite and eat side by side at the College of the Propaganda, Rome. There are now seventeen negroes being educated for priests in one institution in Naples. Last year a negro student carried off the highest prize at the Propaganda, Rome. The same equality prevails in her churches throughout the world.

THE American flag which used to be displayed on the steamer that was Gen. Grant's headquarters on the James river, while besieging Richmond, is hoisted on the top of one of the New York hotels, and there, we are told, it is to be kept flying until after the Presidential election.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

THE APPETITE FOR Tobacco Destroyed!
Leave off Chewing and Smoking the Poisonous Weed, Tobacco.

One box of ORTON'S PREPARATION IS WARRANTED to destroy the appetite for tobacco in any person, no matter how strong the habit may be. IF IT FAILS IN ANY CASE THE MONEY WILL BE REFUNDED. It is almost impossible to break off from the use of tobacco by the mere exercise of the will. Something is needed to assist nature in overcoming a habit so firmly rooted; with the help of the preparation there is not the least trouble. Hundreds have used it who are willing to bear witness to the fact that ORTON'S PREPARATION completely destroys the appetite for tobacco and leaves the person as free from any desire for it as before he commenced its use. It is perfectly safe and harmless in all cases. The Preparation acts directly upon the same glands and secretions affected by tobacco, and through these upon the blood, thoroughly cleansing the poison of tobacco from the system, and thus allaying the unnatural cravings of tobacco.

NO MORE HANKERING FOR TOBACCO AFTER USING ORTON'S PREPARATION! RECOLLECT IT IS WARRANTED. BEWARE OF COUNTERFEITS!

RECOMMENDATIONS.

The following are a few selected from the multitude of recommendations in our possession:

[From W. P. Heald, Esq., Bangor, Me.]

BANGOR, Me., April 24, 1868.

I hereby certify that I have used tobacco for thirty years past, and for the last fifteen years I have used two pounds per month. I have made attempts to leave off at different times. I have left off one year at a time, but always continued to hanker for it until I used Orton's Preparation, which will completely cured me of the appetite for tobacco. I would recommend all who are affected with this terrible habit to try the preparation, which will certainly cure it if the directions are followed.

W. P. HEALD.

[From E. W. Adkins, Knoxville, Tenn.]

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., August 5, 1867.

This is to certify that I had used tobacco to such an extent that my health had become greatly impaired, and my whole system deranged and broken down. In June, 1867, I purchased one box of Orton's Preparation, and after using it I found that I was completely cured. I have not had any hankering or desire for tobacco since using the preparation. I believe it to be all that it is recommended, and I would advise all who wish to quit the use of tobacco to try one box of Orton's Preparation.

E. W. ADKINS.

[From John Morrill, Bangor, Me.]

BANGOR, Me., March 24, 1868.

This is to certify that I have used tobacco for eighteen years; have tried many times to leave off, but have suffered very much from a sinkiness in my head and gnawing at my stomach, that I have soon given up the trial. A short time since a friend induced me to try Orton's Preparation (sold by you.) I have done so, and am completely cured. I did not in the least hanker after tobacco, either to smoke or chew, after I began to use the Preparation.
