Gen. Sherman's report of affairs in the Middle Division of the Missouri has just been received at the War Department. with those of Gens. Sheridan, An gur and Terry. Gen. Sherman says that these reports show that while the country generally has been at peace, the people on the plains and the from a or his command have been constantly at war. He says he has studied to find some lasting remedy for this war, but without success. Our people will settle on the frontler and travel withwill settle on the frontier and travel without precaution, and run after wild posts of gold discoveries, and thus come in contact with heatile Indians. Surveys of public lands continue to be extended and patents grapted to occupants to build railroads and establish mail routes as though all was peaceful. Over all fiese matters the milltary authorities have, no control; yet they are called upon for protection and subjected to all the kicks and cuffs without the privilege of advising or being consulted.

He had been directed by the President to subordinate the acts of all the troops to whatever plan of action the late Peace commission might adopt. This Commission unanimously agreed that all the Indians east of the Rocky Mountains should, as acon as possible, he collected on reservations as far as possible from white settlements and limits of travel, and be maintained by the United States till they can provide for the United States till they can provide to the United States till they can provide the United States till the United States Peace Commissioners with all, or nearly all, of the tribes, and formal written treaties were made and nearly all confirmed by the Senate, But for some research Confront and not take action on the chief proposition of the Commission, which telegad to setting apart the

It is always difficult to learn the cause of war on the part of the Indians, as they never give notice beforehand of hostile intentions. The General gives, as hostile intentions. The General gives, as near as he can learn, the reasons for the war-in-General Sharidan's Department.

however, August before the posts could be withdrawn, and the Indians followed up the parties having the stores in charae, and made raids upon them. They thought the action of the Government was inspired by fear, and they so informed other tribes, urging them to become hostile and they would drive the troops out of the other posts, and force the abandonment of the Smoky Hill life, which runs through the best buffale hunting grounds in America. The General their proceeds to recite in detail the hostilities of the Indians, which have already been published, to show that the government agents gave them only the kindest treatment, with one exception, that of the agent at Leavenworth. The soldiers knowing an Indian war all work and no glory, submitted to many indignities, hoping that the Peace Commission would secure the withdrawal of the Indians. Gen. Sherman found, on investigation, that the attacks on the Saline, Solomon and Republican were without provocation, yet he delayed striking their camps until he had demanded the actual perpetrators of the acts. This demand falled of success, as the demandage and failed of success, as the cold chiefs could not give up so many of their young warriors. War was then commenced along Smoky Hill and Arkaness roads by the Indians stacking all the white people; who knew nothing of the renewed people; who knew nothing of the renewed hostilities. General Sheridan, seeing war with the Cheyennes inevitable, endeavored to keep the Arapahoes out of it. In a council with the Arapahoes out of it. In a council with them they agreed to keep out of the war and go to the reservation. Instead, however, at the time they agreed to move they were in the war. Railroad Accident. The World to day, alluding to the proposition to nominate Attendorfer, of the Staats Zeitsry, for Mayor says an editor may, indeed have made Mayors elected Governors, and invented Presidents; but is this such a hoinous business that he should undergo the transmigration therefore. It is time enough when he is dead for express train, yesterday morning, left on time from Lawrenceville, the passengers being transported to that station in omni-busses of the Excelsion Line. At last ac-counts the track had not been cleared.

Brilliant Wedding.—St. Johns Cathedrel, Cleveland, was the scene of a most brilliant wedding party, on Wednesday last, on which occasion Mr. John J. Purcell was united in wedlock to Miss Josephine Burgess. The ceremonies incident to such occasions came near being marred from the occasions came near being marred from the fact that some person through malice, envy or jealousy in order to prevent the organist, Mr. J. T. Wamelink, formerly of this city, from presiding at the instrument, locked the organ, stuffed the keyhole, hid the key and lifters of the bellows, and also carried off the key of the music case. They organ was finally opened and otherwise arranged so that the ceremonies were not emparassed by reason of this ungracious act. barrassed by reason of this ungracious act.

Reported Death of Liest.

A report comes from Germany that Liszt A report comes from Germany that Liext has died suddenly at Weimar; but as the intelligence has not been sent by cable, and is mentioned in only one London paper, we trust it is untrue. Liest was born in 1809, and has from his childhood been acknowledged as the leading planist of the world. Of late years he has been widely known as an orchestral composer. In 1863 he took holy orders in the Roman Catholic Church, entering a convent in Roma. The rules of entering a convent in Rome. The rules of his Order were not, however, strictly enforced in his case, and his career as a masician was only temporarily interrupted byhis religious vows.
