The paving of Chestnut street has been completed and that thoroughfare is open for travel. A number of flagtone crossings are being laid on streets in different parts of the city, an improvement which is justly appreciated by pedestrians.

Singing School. One of the most desirable and delightful accomplishments is that of being a good vocalist, for who is not moved and influenced by the melody of a sweet song. To attain this power, however, of moving others and, indeed, adding immeasurably to the pleasures of one's own life, it is necessary that instruction be received and a course of training be gone through with under the supervision of a competent instructor. It is with pleasure, therefore, therefore, the difficulty was over the structor. alarm, located at the corner of Third and Chestnut streets, to which the fire depart ment promptly responded. Before the steamers arrived, however, the fire had made such headway as to proclude the pos-sibility of saving the house or the adjoin-ing one to which the flames had communicated. By their exertions, the fire was cated. By their exertions, the fire was confined to the huildings named, both of which were entirely destroyed.

The buildings were owned and occupied by Peter Lehr and Daniel Waiter, and were partially covered with insurance. Most of the household effects contained in them were destroyed, upon which there was no insurance. The fire is supposed to have originated from a defective fine. A collision of a somewhat serious nature occurred between the Friendship and Good Will, hose companies. It seems that the alarm was struck from two boxes, which caused a confusion among the firemen.

The members of the Friendship Hose Company, supposing that the fire was in Manchester, proceeded with their reel in that direction, and while going down Ohio avenue they came in contact with the rel of the Good Will Company, which was coming from the opposite direction, and owing to the darkness the driverawere unable to distinguish the approach of each other until too late to prevent the collision which occurred.

Mr. John Harter, who was seated on the Friendship reel, was thrown from his seat and suffered painful injuries, his leg being severely bruised and lacerated. The driver of the Good Will reel was also thrown from his seat, but fortunately escaped with from his seat, but fortunately escaped with but slight injuries. Both reels were con-siderably damaged, that of the Friendship Company having the shafts broken and the running gear put out of order. The Good Will Company's apparatus was also broken in several places, but it can easily be re-paired. The accident, though an unfortu-nate one, was unavoidable, and no blame-can be attached to the drivers of either Company.

In regard to the other part of the communication, which makes it the duty of the policemen atone to enforce the ordinance, it can only be said that the present police force of Allegheny is none too large now for the duties which it is expected and required to perform, and if the ordinance must be enforced by policemen alone, a large addition will have to be made to their Robbery of a Cigar Shop. The cigar shop of Mr. Charles McEnuity, No. 43 Smithfield street, was entered at an early hour yesterday, morning by some thieves, supposed to have been boys, who broke open the money drawer and abstracted therefrom about eight dollars, which it contained. The show case was which it contained. The show case was also opened and a few dollars worth of choice eigars taken out. When the proprietor opened the store this morning he found the rear window, through which an entrace had been effected, open, the money drawer turned upon the counter, the contents of the show case all in disorder, and everything in a condition which bespoke ungentle handling. There is no clue to the thieves.

Various specimens of stained and enameled Glass are to be found in the art cabinets and museum be found in the art capinets and museums of Europe that, up to the present day, defy imitation. Even the art of producing the colors these specimens embrace has been lost. Each artist made his own colors, pursuing his studies in secret, like the painters, and their art died with them.

One of the commonest errors concerning stained glass is the supposition that wha is termed stained glass 1; merely painted glass. The manner in which the various tints and colors are produced is scarcely less wonderful than the changes which less wonderfol than the changes which mark the various steps in the transformation of the caterpillar into a beautiful butterfly. All the colors we see in stained glass are made from the oxides of various metals. Gold and silver is largely employed in the art. The niesty of the color depends upon the length of time the sheets are subjected to the heat, and in the different description is interested in the color depends upon the length of time the sheets are subjected to the heat, and in the different description is interested in the color of the ent degrees of its intensity, since the colors obtained in the glass are burned into, and obtained in the glass are burned into, and, in reality, become a part of it, hence it is impossible for it to fade. The stained glass in the famous cathedrals of Europe retains, precisely the same color to-day that pleased the eye of those who worshipped in them five hundred years ago. It will be seen from this that the difference between stained and painted glass is as different as any two things that can be conceived.
