Encouragement of Art. It is a well known fact that Europeans are generally impressed with the idea that Americans have a false taste in all highly finished or decorative works produced by skilled artizans, and they cater, when at work for the American market, to what they consider the popular demand, by offering us works of a gaudy and meretricious style, rather than of the purest and best examples of art or workmanship. The fact is so well known to our largest importers, that when any article of excellence is demanded, they place particular stress upon the order, and even then they do not always succeed in obtaining a first-class article. The inconsistency of the American people is illustrated in their peculiar method of encouraging art. They deny the ability of the American artisan to produce ability of the American artisan to produce work exhibiting rare skill and taste, and at the same time import inferior articles. If they are really honest it is their duty to encourage native skill and talent. As long as they prefer foreign manufactures to home productions they should not depreciate American manufactures. If they do not appreciate American art they need not American landing art, they need not appreciate American art, they need not wonder if it languishes. Fortunately, however, there is a limit to even this disposition so common to a large class of our people. They cannot import lakes, fields or dwel-They cannot import lakes, fields or dwellings. In the matter of architecture they are compelled either to copy or originate. In this we have succeeded so well that a celebrated English writer, speaking of the public and private buildings in New York and Philadelphia, expressed the opinion that they exceeded in beauty and elegance that they exceeded in beauty and elegance that they exceeded in beauty and elegance. that they exceeded in beauty and elegance the finest buildings in England. In church architecture, especially, and in church appointments we have made won-derful strides. Perhaps nothing in the way of art adds more to the interior beauty of a church than richly stained glass. Yet even here we have accomplished wonders.

A quarter of a century ago few church edifices in the country boasted stained winifices in the country boasted stained windows. Now they are everywhere to be seen. In time this art bids fair to flourish in America as it has flourished in the oldest cities of Europe. Utilitarians will see nothing commendable in this. Those who are interested in the art, however, cannot fail to welcome the new order of things. And to them we address oursalves directly. to them we address ourselves directly.

There can be nothing more certain than the There can be nothing more certain than the fact that with every new design, with every new demand for an article requiring rare skill, taste and judgment, the chances are that the artisan will find himself taxed to keep pace with the improvements sought after by the public. Whoever gratifies his taste by securing a gradient of article his taste by securing a gradient of article trains. after by the public. Whoever gratifies his taste by securing a specimen of art that requires the study and reflection of the artisan contributes directly to art. This is, in fact, the practical encouragement of art. That the mass of the American people are disposed to view the matter in the same light we need only adduce the experience of a single establishment of this city. Messrs. Page, Zellers & Duff, proprietors of the American Glass Works, have made extensive preparations for the production of tensive preparations for the production of a large amount of stained, enameled and ground glass. Combining glass making with glass staining, employing experienced workingmen, and tully determined to excel, they have achieved, in the short space of a year, a reputation second to none in the country. They invite attention to the article made in the American Glass Works, fully extinued that it will bear favorable fully satisfied that it will bear favorable edinparison with anything manufactured in England. Parties interested in public buildings, especially church edifices, are invited to examine their stained and enamination.

Mesers. Page, Zellers & Duff are also largely engaged in the manufacture of oval, square and round glass, shades for flowers, wax-fruit, &c. These shades are admirably proportioned, and as clear as crystal. All sizes made to order.

Printer's Ink-A Good Article. The ink with which this issue of the Republican is printed is from the Gray's Ferry Printing Ink works of C. E. Robinson. It is clean, flows freely, and is of a good color. Our brother printers can judge of its quality by comparing it with ink from other manufactories.—The Delaware County Re-ublican. From the Delaware Gazette: To PRIN-TERS-We have been using for several weeks a very fine quality of ink from the Gray's Ferry manufactory of Charles E. Robinson, which our Presemen say is the best for cylinder press news work that they have used for a long time. It is a clear black and free from all kind of sediment. Mr. Robinson is a practical ink manufactu-rer, liberal and courteous in all business transactions, and as he has recently had the misfortune to be burned out, we are the more free to recommend his ink and himself to the patronage of all printers who desire a good article at very cheap rates. Address No. 521 Minor street, Philadelphia.

One of our cotemporaries also recommends it as follows:

Fine Printing Ink.—We have for some time been using the News Ink manufac-tured at Gray's Ferry Printing Ink Works, Philadelphia, by C. E. Bobinson, and, as stated some weeks ago, have found it better adapted to our presses than any ink we have had in our office for ten years. It is have had in our office for ten years. It is not only a very excellent article of Ink but it is furnished at very reasonable prices. The Works also manufacture Black and Colored Printing and Lithographic Inks, Varnishes, etc. Their address is Gray's Ferry Road and Thirty-third street, and No. 521 Minor street.—Hagerstown Herald.

We never recommend an article in these columns unless it really merits it, and to learn whether our own opinion of the Ink the Tax-payer is now using coincided with our pressman's, we inquired his estimate. He replied: "Good, very good;" and as we our pressman's, we inquired his estimate. He replied: "Good, very good;" and as we never knew him to deviate from the truth, we inform our fellow-printers that this was said of Robinson's Philadelphia Printing Ink .- From the Tax-payer, New York.
