The Pittsburgh Gazette.

SMOKE IN WINTER. The sluggish smoke curls up from some deep dell, The stiffened air exploring in the dawn, And making slow acquaintance with the day, Delaying now upon its heavenward course, In wreathed lotterings dailying with itself With as uncertain purpose and slow deed As its helf-awakened master by the hearth, Whose mind, still slumbering, and sluggish thoughts Have not yet swept into the onward current Of the new day;—and now it streams afar. The while the chopper goes with step direct, And mind intent to wield the early axe.

And mind intent to wield the early axe.

First in the early dawn he sends abroad.

His early scout, his emissary, smoke.

The earliest, latest pligrim from his roof.

To feel the frosty air, inform the day.

And, while he croucnes still beside the hearth.

Nor musters courage to unber the door.

It has gone down the gien with the light wind.

And o'er the plain unfuffed its venturous wresth.

Draped the tree tops. Joilered upon the hill.

And warned the pinions of the early bird:

And now pershance. Algh in the crispy sir.

Has caught sight of the day o'er the earth's edge.

As some refulgent coud in the upper sky.
