MEET AND RINK. Katherine Bell and Katherine Brown,
The prettiest girls in all the town,
Joly as sand-boys, frightfully nice,
And oh! such elegant clipp, rs on ice,
I can flirt with eliber in warmer weather,
But when it freezes they come togeth;
And there's the trouble—oh, guiding Fates!
What shall I do with these Kates—these Kates!

And there sign states these Kates—these Kates!

What shall I do with these Kates—these Kates!

Even at balls I manage it prime;

For you only dance with one at a time;

For you only dance with one at a time;

For you only dance with one at a time;

At aught that I say to Katherine Brown.

At aught that I say to Katherine Brown.

While Katherine Brown can never till Bell:

The Toledo Blade seems to be wielded by a champion of unprotected females. Thus it slashes the New York Mail: "No matter where Miss Olive Logan was bern, she is not thirty years old, and we hurl back the insunuation of the base-born Bohemian who first exuded the slur, with contempt and scorn."

-Christmas Eve passed in Philadelphia about as usual, with the exception of the horn-blowing, which the Mayor had or dered his police to suppress. Eighth street was about as jammed as ever with a funmaking, pushing, masked and quaintly costumed crowd, but the presence of an unusual force of policemen seems to have prevented all fights and rows.

-Harvard College, though probably the best endowed college in America, pays its professors so poorly that the alumni have decided to raise half a million dollars by voluntary contributions from graduates and therewith increase the incomes of those learned gentlemen, whom the Boston Advertiser speaks of as in "urgent need," and the Boston Post declares their condition to be a "clear case of destitution."

-A Michigan preacher is now traveling in Europe and writing letters to a Detroit paper. He is one of those persons whose acute sense of moral propriety is so shocked by the bare thought of some of the most valuable and least clothed statues and pictures of foreign collections, that we wonder what can possibly induce them to leave their homes, where they are safe, and go abroad where they are in constant and almost certain danger of being shocked.
