SCIENTIFIC INTELLIGENCE. GLASS.

Du Brunfaut, in Paris, has recently exbibited articles made of spun glass, such as head dresses, watch chains, curled and smooth ostrich feathers, &c., differing from those in ordinary use only in being much finer and more durable. The usual objec-tion to glass fabrics, of brittleness, &c., does not apply here, as the thread is as fine as a spider's web, and not inferior in strength to the best wool, while far exceeding it in would speak the truth boldly, they would beauty. The flexibility of the thread may be readily appreciated, from the fact that it may be worked in the sewing machine as well as in the netting machine.

BRONZE PAINT.

Berlin iron work and delicate iron castings are bronzed for their better preservaings are oronzed for than better preserva-tion against rust, by means of a paint, of which ferro-cyanide of copper forms the basis, and which is obtained as follows: To a solution of sulphate of copper is added a solution of ferro cyanide of potassium, which results in the deposit of a brown precipitate of cerro-cyanide of copper. This is mixed with the proper substances to produce the various shades of bronze. When an article has been coated with this paint, and before it is quite dry, if dusted over with copper bronze powder and allowed to dry thor-oughly, the effect will be that of bright copper after being polished. A green bronze tint is produced by washing with a solution of acetate of copper. When perfectly dry, the higher parts of the casting must be rubbed with a plece of clean rag to bring out the brown copper color, when it will appear like a bronze that has become green by age. If the bright copper-colored bronze above mentioned be brushed over with black lead it will produce the brown bronze. Yellow, or pale bronze, is obtained by using yellow bronze, or brass powder, instead of copper powder.

HARD CEMENT.

According to a foreign scientific journal, may be made as follows: To four or five parts of clay, thoroughly dried and pulyerized, add two parts of fine iron filings free from oxyd, one part of peroxide of manga-nese, one-half of sea salt and one-half of borax. Mingle thoroughly and render as fine as possible, then reduce to a thick paste with the necessary quantity of water, taixing thoroughly well. It must be used imme-diately. After application it should be exposed to warmth, gradually increasing al-most to a white heat. This cement is very hard and presents complete resistance alike to red heat and boiling water. Another ce-ment is made according to the following process: To equal parts of sifted peroxide of maganese and well pulverized zinc white, add a sufficient quantity of commercial soluble glass to form a thin paste. This mix-ture, when used immediately, forms a cement quite equal in hardness and resistance to that obtained by the first method.

Some new combinations of tin and lead are recommended for culinary and other yessels, on account of their not being acted on by vinegar or salt water. One of these con-sists of one part of tin and 2.24 of lead the lead being first melted and skimmed off, and the tin then added, stirring round the whole until cooled, to prevent the lead fail. ing to the bottom. This alloy has a density. of 9.64, and melts at 300 degrees. It may be rolled out in the cold, and takes a fine

FEMININE AMENITIES. (From the Faturday Review.) A man's foes are those of his own household, and the keenest enemies of women are women themselves. No one can inflict such humiliatton on a woman as a woman can when she chooes; for if the art of high handed snubbing belongs to men, that of subtle wounding is peculiarly feminine, and is practiced by the best bred of her sex. Women are always more or less antagonistic to each other. They are gregarious in fash-ions and emulative in follies, but they can not combine; they never support their weak confess to a radical contempt for each other's intellect, which is perhaps the real reason why the sect of the "emancipated" commands so small a following. Half a dozen ordinary men advocating "eemancipation" doctrines would do more toward leavening the whole bulk of woman-kind than any number of first-class women. Where they do stand by each other it is from instinctive or personal affections rather than from class solidarity. It is amazing to see the things they can do and will bear-things which no man would deem of standing, and which no man would dare attempt. This is because they are not taught to respect each other, and because they have no fear of consequences. If one woman is insulted by another, she cannot demand satisfaction or knock the offender down, and it is unladylike to swear and call names. She must bear what she can reray only in kind: but, to do her justice, she repays in a manner undeniably effective and to the point. There is nothing very pro-nounced about the feminine mode of aggres. sion and retaliation, and yet it is eloquent, and sufficient for its purpose. It may be only a stare, a shrug, a toss of the head; but women can throw an intensity of disdain ipte the simplest gesture which answers the whole end perfectly. The unsbashed serenity and unfilnehing constancy with which one woman can stare down another, is in itself an art that requires a certain amount of natural genius, as well as careful cultivation. She puts up her eyc-glass-not being short-sighted-and surveys the enemy standing two feet from her, with a the energy scancing two leet from her, with a sublime contempt for her whole condition, or with a still more sublime ignoring of her existence altogether, that no words could give. If the energy is sensitive and unused to that kind of, thing, she is absolutely combined destroyed for the time and reduced crushed, destroyed for the time, and reduced to the most pitiable state of self-abasement. If she is of a tougher fibre, and has had some experience of feminine warfare, she returns the stare with a corresponding amount of contempt of of obliviousness; and from that moment a contest is begun which never ceases, and which continually gains in bitterness. The stare is the weap, on of offence most in use among women, and is specially favored by the experienced against the younger and less seasoned. It is one of the instinctive arms native to the sex, and we have only to watch the intro-duction of two girls to each other to see this, and to learn how even in youth is begun the exercise which time and use raise to such deadly perfection.

In the conversation of women with each other we again meet with examples of their peculiar amenities to their own sex. They never refrain from showing how much they never retrain from snowing now much they are bored; they contradict flatly, without the flimaiest veil of apology to h de their rudeness; and they interrupt ruthlessly, whatever the subject in hand may be. One be rolled out in the cold, and takes a fine polish, which it retains. It leaves a streak on paper, and does not clog a file. The second alloy consists of one part of tin and 2.26 parts of lead. This is harder; tougher and less extensible than the other, and fills

YEAST BREAD.

Professor Horsford, of Harvard Uni-niversity, recently delivered an interesting lecture on the "Philosophy of the Oyen." He closed his remarks by giving the follow-ing special instructions for making good yeast bread : Select good, plump, fully ripened, hard grained wheat. Have it ground, and not too finely boiled. Prepare the yeast as follows: Boil thoroughly with the skins on, in one quart of water, mough potatoes to make a quart of mashed potatoes. Peel the boiled potatoes and nash them to fineness; n ix intimately with hem one pint of flour, and stirt the whole ) an emulsion with the water in which the otatoes were boiled. Cool the product ighty degrees, Fahrenheit, lukewarm, and dd half a pint of the best baker's yeast nd a tablespoonfull of brown sugar. et aside the mixture at an even imperature of about eighty degrees till it. orks well, or is in active fermentation. If this yeast talk half a pint to a allon (7 lba) of flour, mixed with three ints of water, or two of water and one of ilk, all at the temperature of about 80 egrees, add a little salt, knead thoroughly nd set aside to rise at the temperature mea-oned. When it has risen to nearly the all volume for the dough, divide it into haves, knead again, set it aside at the tem. Frature a ready named, till it attains the ill size of the loaf, and place in an oven bated to not less than 450 degrees. Let te loaves of dough be smaller than the tins. kep them covered with a flat tin plate or off paper till the dough is fully raised and the heat carried up, to and sometimes mintained throughout the loaf at 212 degies to convert all the starch to the muciginous or emulsion form and destroy th ferment. Then remove the cover and prmit the browning to take place. If the loves are large a higher temperature will b required. Seven pounds of fine flour wil make eight loaves of 14 lb. each when bked, or four of 21 lb each. Such yeast will keep a week in winter, and from two t four days in summer.

LPROVED METHOD OF CASTING IRON PIPES. A recent German journal contains a notice o a pipe foundry near Nancy, in France, iwhich certain improvements over German mthods are pointed out, and which may be ofinterest to our and out, and which may be of the same practice in many respects, has been for some time in use in the United Sties. The advantage claimed, among oters, is greater despatch, inasmuch as a tue can be moulded and cast in two hours' tile, or four or five in a day, from one box, Intead of requiring twenty-four hours. The boxes for casting the tubes in the estalishment in question are set up on end, im semicircle, around a crane that com-mnds the whole of them, and consists of tw semi-cylindrical jointed portions conneted by pins. At their lower end is a view, serving to close the tube, while a coical depression in the middle receives th spindle of the pattern and of the core, excip centreing them. Tubes of different size are provided, so that there need not be me than one and a half or two inches spee between the pattern and the walls, and spee perween the pattern and the walls, and theabor of stamping is thus diminished. Smil apertures are, of course, left in the tubs, to permit the escape of the gases. Thrould is made in the usual manner, the patrns being of smooth and polished iron, andurned around once on its axis, before bely withdrawn, by means of the crane, Heed gaseous matter (the product of com-buson) is then admitted from the furnace-dry tender passages which made the men-tion of his marriage a notoriously sore subject. "Ah! I see you have taken that old silk which Madame Josephine wished to silk which mainte observation which to paim off on me last year," said the tortured listener brusquely, breaking into the narra-tive without a lead of any kind; and the speaker was silenced.

In this case it was the interchange of doubtful courtesies, wherein neither deserved pity; but to make a disparaging remark about a gown, in revenge for turning the knife in a wound, was a thoroughly femminine manner of retaliation, and one that would not have touched a man. Such shafts. would fall blunted against the rugged skin of the coarser creature, and the date or pattern of a bit of cloth would not have told much against the loss of a lover. But as most women passionately care for dress, their toilet is one of their most vulnerable parts. Ashamed to be unfashionable, they tolerate anything in each other rather than shabbiness or eccentricity, even when picturesque; hence a sarcastic allusion to the age of a few yards of silk is a return wound of considerable depth when cleverly given. The range of the feminine amenities is not confined to women; it includes men as well; and women; it includes men as well; and women continually take advantage of their position to in-sult the stronger sex, by saying to them things which can neither be answered nor resented. A woman can insinuate that you have just cheated at cards, with the quietest face, and gentlest voice imaginable; she can give you the lie direct as coolly as if she was correcting a misprint; and you cannot defend yourself. To brawl with her would be unpardonable, to contradict her is use-less, and the sense of society does not alow you to show her any active displeasure. In this instance the weaker creature is the stronger, and the most defenceless is the safest. You have only the rather questionsates. I ou nave only the rather question-able consolation of knowing that you are not singular in your discomsture, and that when she has made an end of you she will probably have a turn with your betters, and make them, too, dance to her piping, whether they like the tune or not. At all events, if she humiliates you she humiliates her sisters still more; and with the knowl-edge that, hardly handled as you have been,

others are yet more severely dealt with, you aust learn to be content; and to practice a grim kind of patience as well as nature will permit.
