His subject, is "Temperance," a theme which, it seems hardly necessary for us to say, he is perfectly familiar within all its bearings. On Monday evening he will debearings. On monday evening he will de-liver his last lecture in Pittsburgh for the present season on the subject of "Habit." Reserved seats for both lectures may be ob-tained this evening at Lafayette Hall, at 7 o'clock.

Caved In.

Yesterday morning an excavation corner of Fourth avenue and Smithfield street caved in just as the workman who had dug it had finished his work. The excavation was made for a sewer drop, and was ten or twelve feet in depth. It was filled up by the falling dirt from the sides about five feet, but fortunately the workman had noticed the premonitory signs of a "cave in," and got out of the way immediately, thus preventing serious

He is now awaiting the result of the motion for a new trial, when, if it is overruled, he will be sentenced in accordance with the verdict of "murder in the first degree," rendered by the juries in the two trials through which he has passed.

Extensive Bank Robbery. Several days since the Peoples' National Bank, on Wood street, was robbed of $12,000 by some adroit and daring thief, who abstracted a small tin box containing the amount from the safe. The affair has heretofore been "hushed up," in the hope that some cine might be obtained to the perpesome cine might be obtained to the perpetrator; but it has gradually become known, and now forms one of the common topics of the street. There are many theories afloat in regard to the manner in which the robbery was committed, but thus far the whole operation is enveloped in the deepest mystery, and the only really tangible information is the absence of the money was a from the bank safe. The money was from the bank safe. The money was a special deposit, and as such had been placed in the tin box, as stated, to more perfectly insure its safe keeping. One of the theories which has gained some ground is, that the thief stole the booty during banking hours, while the safe was open and unguarded. He would indeed be a bold apportion who could parage into a hanking unguarded. He would indeed be a bold operator who could march into a banking house during business hours, when the employes were there in full force, abstract from a safe located in the most closely guarded portion of the place a tin box containing such a sum of money, and pass out sining such a sum of money, and pass out and away again, without having any attention attracted to his movements or being subjected to obtrusive detentions from those in whose care the treasure had been placed. Possibly there may be an expert in our midst whose brilliant abilities have been displayed in this manner, but it don't seem at all probable. The officers of the bank have been making every exertion, with the assistance of experienced detectives, to ferret out the thief, but as yet no clue has been discovered. The affair has been managed in a masterly managed by clue has been discovered. The anarr has been managed in a masterly, manner by been managed in a masterly, manner by the chap, whoever he may be, and it is quite probable that he will never be apprequite probable that he will never be appre

Mr. Megraw, from the Committee on Fire Engines, presented their annual report, together with the annual report of the Chief Engineer, from which it appears that the expenses of the Fire Department during the year were $20,301.87, divided among the Companies as follows: Hope $3,500.76. the year were 25,5510 to the year were 25,529,76; Companies as follows: Hope, $3,529,76; General Grant, $3,141.67; Columbia, $2,-483.75; Friendship, $1.496.29; Ellsworth, $2,515.01; Good Will, $3,535.63, and the Alarm Telegraph, $2,919.76.

and the Alarm Telegraph, $2,919.76.
During the year an additional length of four miles of wire was put up, which now gives a line containing forty signal boxes, distributed over every part of the city. There were a number of unusual expenses which will not occur again, and which, when deducted from the total expenses, shows the actual running expenses of the Fire Department to be $13,676,87. The expenses of the year exceed those of the previous one by $1,630,17, but there have been three companies added to the department,

SELECT COUNCIL BUSINESS.

The business from Select Council was next taken up.

The report of the City Engineer having been presented,

A motion was made by Mr. McNeill to A motion was made by Mr. McXell to dispense with the reading of the report, and concur in the action of the Select branch, which was opposed by Mr. Hanna, who called for the reading of the report. A spirited discussion ensued, which was finally interrupted by a call for the yeas and wars by Mr. Tate upon the reading of and mays by Mr. Tate, upon the reading of the report. While the vote was being taken objection was made to the vote of Mr. Cutler, from the First ward, on the ground that his seat in Councils was made vacant by removal from the district which he was elected to represent.

The Chair decided the point not well

After some debate on this question, Mr. Warner read an extract from the City Code, which provides that each member of Councils must be a resident of the ward which he is elected to represent, and remain so during the term for which he is elected. The Chair receded from its decision and decided Mr. Cutler not entitled to a vote. The yeas and navs were then taken as called for by Mr. Tate, resulting in 13 year and 13 navs. Messrs. Clark and Richardson stated that they had voted yea, but the Clerk had re-corded their votes in the negative. On motion, they were allowed to change their votes—the record then standing 15 yeas to 11 nays. So the report was read and the action of Select Council concurred in.

HAIR DRYING NUISANCE. Mr. Voeghtly presented a resolution in-structing the City Solicitor to assist any private counsel which might be employed by citizens to prevent the erection of a hair drying establishment in the Seventh ward of the city.

Mr. Comley called for the year and nays on the adoption of the resolution, resulting in 20 yeas and 4 nays. THANKS TENDERED

Mr. Tate presented the following:

Resolved, That the thanks of this Counil be and are hereby tendered John S. Slagle, Esq., for the able, satisfactory and impartial manner in which he has discharged he duties of presiding officer during the year. Adopted.

Mr. Megraw offered a resolution tendering the thanks of the Council to the Clerk,
Mr. Robert Dilworth, for the invaluable services rendered in his official capacity during the year. Adopted.

The thanks of the Council were also ten dered the Clerk of Committees, J. R. Ox-ley, and the Messenger, Mr. M. Husselaugh, for the efficient manner in which baugh, for the emirent manner in which their official duties had been performed. The retiring members of Council were also not forgotten, but came in for a share of the thanks tendered to the officers and

Mr. Slagle made a few valedictory remarks, after which, on motion of Mr. Slack, Council adjourned sine die.

The Concert Last Night.

The second grand concert under the auspices of Max Strakosch, the great music provider for the nation, took place last night at the Academy of Music, and was attended by a large and brilliant audience. The programme opened with Donizetti's duet, Belisario by Signors Petrilli and Lotti, and it was a performance which fell colly on the audience, lacking any particular force or animation. Neither of the respected Signors has an extraordinary voice and can lay no just claims to brillancy or artistic interpretation. Herr Kopta's violin solo, walkering France and can be supported by France and Canal State of the support of the support of the respected Signory State of the support of the respected Signory State of the support "Elegie," Ernst, was a masterly performance. This artist is young and destined, doubtless, to rise high in the world of mu-sic. He is a close imitator of Ole Bulf, but tion, which held the audience breathless. He was a fitting musical pioneer to send forth to the audience to warm them into ecstacles of delight, that they might be prepared for the still greater treat from the reigning Empress of Song, Clara Louisa Kallogo, who tripoed out upon the stage Kellogg, who tripped out upon the stage right merrily. Pretty as a picture, it is no wonder that the fair prima donna has made cantives of the army of critics, for her bright smiles would at once divest the gall dipped pen to less enchanting performers. Kellogg sings well, but acts better. Blending both accomplishments together, she is necessarily a favorite, and deserves the high meed of praise so lavishly bethe high meed of praise so lavishly be-stowed upon her at home and abroad. Her bellad singing is by no means as touching and powerful as Parepa Rosa's efforts in that direction, failing to go straightway to the hearts of the audience; but she is more than a near to the Scottish straightway to the hearts of the audience; but she is more than a peer to the Scottish vocalist when interpreting the most ex-quisite gems of the Italian opera. Her voice is measurably powerful, ravisbingly sweet, clear, sharp and under perfect con-trol. She does not attempt that painful constaining of high notes which randers sustaining of high notes which renders Parepa-Rosa conspicuous, and indeed makes few efforts which the experienced musician would class in the category of strains. She rendered Gounod's valse, Ronteo and Juliet, in a very pretty manner, and on being encored sung "The Last Rose of Summer" in a manner too artistic to be warm and genial. In Auber's "Chanson de rire," and in the trio Trovatore she developed her full powers, and left the audience impressed with her magnificence as a singer.

Miss Alida Topp, perhaps, gaye evidence of as much talent, training and power of of as much talent, training and power of interpretation as Miss Kelloug, although in a different way—at the key-board of a Steinway. Quite young and moderately handsome, this lady at once made a favorable impression on the audience, and the way she manipulated the piano, flooding with mel ody the Academy, was wonderful. With her tiny little hands she hammered wick edly at the keys, and with lightning rapidty sent note chasing note in the most artistic manner imaginable, and we won-dered not that the audience insisted on encoring her every performance. Altogether, the concert was a success, and if any were dissatisfied with the musical treat afforded. they should never again endeavor to seek enjoyment in the concert room, for their appreciation is disjointed.

Amusements.

OPERA House .- This evening Mr. and Miss Couldock, who have for two weeks past been delighting the amusement loving public at the Opera House, will take a fare-well benefit, when will be presented "Old Phil's Birthday," and the domestic drama entitled "The Heir of Primrose Hall." The well known ability of both Mr. Conldock and his daughter will doubtless be sufficient to fill the house to its utmost capacity. THEATRE.—The Flying Men of the Air, the wonderful gynnasts and acrobats, connected with the Gregory combination troupe, have become general favorites at the Old Theatre, and the many patrons of that establishment will regret when their engagement closes; but the greatest regret will be expressed at the departure of M'lie Gertrude with her miniature circus and trained dogs. But they have not announced the close of their engagement yet, and are not likely to do so while they are so liberally patronized. ORPHANS! FAIR.-A more agreeable and pleasant place to spend an evening than at the Orphans' Fair, in the basement of the Cathedral, cannot be found in the city The new Cathedral band is in attendance every evening and discourses sweet music. MUSEUM.-We are pleased to learn that Encounter with a Burglar. Burglaries, robberies and larcenies have Of persons afflicted with any of the followbeen frequent occurrences on the "South ing diseases, by calling at the medicine Side" for some weeks past, and the detection of Dr. Ross, No. 28 Sixth (late St. tives are unable to get any clue whatever Clair) street, will be assured of speedy reto the perpetrators. At an early hour yes- lief and permanent cure. These preparaterday morning Mr. John J. Davis, resid- tions are compounded from original rehis house with felonious intentions, but the on Wednesday evening Mr. D. heard some one working at the front door of his house after he had retired, and on opening the door discovered some person dressed in woman's clothes, who made some trifling inquiry and hastened away. He retired without thinking more of the matter, and sometime the next morning was awakened by a noise in the kitchen, and at once got up and went down stairs quietly, carrying no light with him. On entering the kitchen he found the door ajar, and the intruder, who had come in at the window, had evidently unlocked and one out of the kitchen door, fearful of the noise he had made. Mr. D. took a large carving knife from the cupboard, and without closing the outer door, secreted himself to await events. Presently the door was to await events. rresently the door was pushed softly open and a man entered. He lighted a match and Mr. Davis saw that his face was blackened. Having looked about the kitchen for a moment the burstless that he had a manual the burstless that he had a manual the burstless that he had a manual that he h ment, the burglar started up stairs. Mr. D. followed him and when partly up the stairs ordered the villain to halt. Quick as ordered the villain to halt. Quick as thought the man turned upon him and snapped a revolver in his face. Fortunately the cartridge did not explode. Mr. Davis struck his visitor twice in the breast wis struck in Visitor twice in the ofeas, with the carving knife, doing some execution, but how much he does not know. Still holding his knite he grappled with his antagonist, catching with one hand the arm that handled the revolver. Tegether the two rolled to the bottom of the stairs, and there, after a severe struggle, Mr. Davis-succeeded in getting his adversary under him. He then called out, as if there were others in the house, to have a light and his revolver brought to him. At this the burglar, who was a large man, made a tremendous effort, regained his feet and darted out as that of the sham female visitor of the night before.

Mr. Davis followed the fugitive to the mouth of a dark alley, where the latter disappeared. At daylight search was insti-tuted, and the man was traced by a con-tinuous mark of blood up the street, through the alley, and some distance on another street. Active measures are being taken to find and capture the burglar. Mr. Davis was slightly scratched and se-of the door, defying his victor as he went. The voice in which he spoke was the same erely bitten in the struggle.

A New Pennsylvania Central Depot. MESSES. EDITORS: Gentlemen-Various articles have been published concerning the erection of a Local Passenger Depot, on Seventh avenue, by the Pennsylvania Railroad, and the best possible way of running trains to and from the same. Yet none of them go to show how the same can be accomplished, unless by vacating Washington street to said Railroad, and then, in its stead, to construct a bridge from Faber street to and over Penn street. Now the object of this communication is to point out how the erection of this bridge may be avoided and Washington street remain as it is. It is well known that the Pennsylvania Railroad own property abutting both on the east and west side of Washington street; therefore, by constructing a tunne (similar to the one now there) under said (similar to the one now there) under said street, from their property on the one side, to their property on the other, which could be very easily done, their purpose and object would be fully accomplished.

Yours. &c. sic. He is a close imitator of Ole Bull, but by no means his equal, and is worth place along side of Rosa. His subsequent performance "Di Bravura," Paganini, executed on the G string alone, was maryellously exact and beautiful. His fingering of the string, as well as idelicate bowing, elicited the heartiest admiration while producing the grandest of melocountryman during market hours, which extend from 2 o'clock P. M. Monday until extend from 2 o'clock P. M. Monday until the same hour the next day. When brought to the Mayor's office McGinness acknowl-edged the offense, but refused to pay the fine of ten dollars imposed by the Mayor, in accordance with the provisions of the ordinance defining the offense, and the exact amount of the fine. After considerable talk he stated that he would appeal to Court, and upon giving bail accordingly was al-lowed to depart.

We have received from the agents for Corner of Penn and St. Clair Streets, Petroleum Fire Kindler. this city, Messrs. Sands & Reineman, No. 30 Fifth avenue, a very ingenious and valuable intention for kindling fires without wood. It consists of a cast iron cup or bowl, which is filled with sand and supolied with a perforated burner, which, beng filled with most any of the products of petroleum, will burn a strong jet of flame for nearly an hour. It is safe, being at tached to an iron handis, and is cheap and convenient. It does away with kindling wood, and the cost of using is a mere trifle,
