FARM, GARDEN AND HOUSEHOLD.

ACCURATE ENOWLEDGE ON THE FARM. In a recent talk with Squire Oldschool, he with a knife, seasoned with salt and pepper, advocated the stacking of hay and the winter feeding of cattle at the stack-yard-two heresies that we have always opposed. His idea was, that it saved labor in storing the hay, in foddering, and in spreading the manure. Had he ever tried any experiments. to ascertain how much the hay wasted in Let it boil up a few times, season with salt, value by exposure in the stack, how much pepper and grated nutmeg, and at the momore it took to support an animal unsheitered, and how much of the manure dropped. As to the bones and other fragments, the around the yard was wasted? He confessed his ignorance on all these points, but thought his animals came out about as well in the spring as any of his neighbors', who put of goose, moisten with soup or water, season with salt, pepper and pot-herbs, add either pared potatoes or blanched turnips, these, and a great many other disputed points in husbandry, can be definitely settled by the scales. Weigh four bullocks on the first of December, and feed them at the pared potatoes or bianched tallings, and serve as soon as the vegetables are cooked. In all these preparations the fat of the goose is a perfect substitute for butter.

—Petit Journal. stack sixty days, weighing the hay they constack sixty days, weigning the nay they consume and the animals at the close of the trial. Put four others in a good barn, well ventilated, and give them the same daily allowance of hay, and water at the barn temperature, and weight them at the close of the trial. The amount of flesh gain.

She amount of flesh gain. the same period. The amount of flesh gained in the two cases would be a pretty good milk; let it stand until soaked so that it may indication of the respective value of the two practices. If two pounds of hay in the barn made as much flesh as three pounds butter, one nutmeg, and bake one hour.

Beef, Dried.—Take one pound of chipped butter, one nutmeg and bake one hour. the out-door feeding showed the better results, that would be a good reason for the continuance of the old, and, we may add continuance of the old, and, we may add, the still prevailing practice. Feed equal quantities of stack hay and barn-cured hay stothe same arrivals. to the same animals, for the same periods, bring to the table hot.

and ascertain the flesh made in the two Oysters, Fried.—Have a hot griddle, cover for an opinion of the respective values of hay cured by the two processes. The manure of the four animals fed at the stack until brown on both sides and serve while might be confined to half an acre, and that made in the barn, from the other bullocks, to any other. using the same amount of fodder, might be spread upon another half acre of land, in equally good condition. If the sheltered manure showed crops twice as large, we into proper shape before hanging out to dry, should gain some definite knowledge of the waste of manures at the stack-yard. These easily again; this will be sufficient to have experiments, of course, involve some painstaking and expense, but, if fairly made, they would determine something, and lead to better husbandry. They would prove a much better investment than more land, or more water, and let them remain twenty minutes, railroad stock. We want more accurate knowledge, ascertained from careful experiments. This kind of knowledge—the personal experience of practical men-we are most anxious to secure and spread before our readers. The doctrine is certainly true, d has been demonstrated again and again. That which convinces our substantial, oldschool farmers, is what they can prove for themselves. - American Agriculturalist.

HINTS TO FRUIT GROWERS. The Gardener's Monthly contains a query from one of its readers, as follows: "Is there any way to prevent apple blossoms being destroyed by early spring frosts?" to which the editor of the Monthly makes this reply: remedy. In this vicinity, Raule's Jannet often bears when others do not, because its late flowers escape. The evil for which a remedy is asked is a very wide-spread one, and if there is any remedy, whoever discovers it will be a great benefactor to the fruit-growing public. We have had in our mind for many years a remedy, which, it seems to us, will prove effica-cious. It was suggested by the following facts: Many years ago a very severe frost occurred on the night of June 4, killing the wheat, corn and fruit over a large extent of our Western country. On that night, in an orchard, a cow happened to be lying under a large apple tree. The fruit on that tree was saved, while on all the others in the orchard it was killed. The warmth the ordinard it was killed. The warmin from the cow's body and breath, rising into the tree and spreading among the leaves and branches, kept the temperature elevated above the freezing point. A hog lying under a pear tree saved the fruit on it. Now from these facts we draw this conclusion: The heat generated from this cow was not more than would be generated in open air by the burning of a few pounds of hay, or a small amount of grain. The only point is to so plan it that the heat shall be formed in the right quantity and distributed evenly during the night. A little experimenting showed that this could be best accomplished by placing under each tree at the time required burning kerosene lamps, boxed up so as to be safe from wind or accident. We give the hint, hoping that it will be tested thoroughly. EXAMINE YOUR OUTHOUSES.

Every farmer should so arrange his work that he can spare time enough once a week to go all through his barns and outbuildings, and see if anything is out of order. The best time is at the beginning of the week, for then he has no unfinished jobs on hand that must be completed before the Sabbath. In one place he will find a door with a broken hinge; in another a sleigh standing on damp earth; and again he will find a tub with a hoop falling off, etc. "It will take much time?" Then take it—it will be the best spent hour, or half day, if necessary, that the owner spends.

PUMPS. Pumps exposed to freezing are now usually made with contrivances to let off the water—one mode being to make a small hole in the pipe a few feet below the exposed part, so that the water will always run off before freezing. This hole may be stopped at other times of the year. Another way, which may be adopted for any pump, is to place a small nail or carpet tack under the leather of the fixed valve, which will cause it to leak and let off the water.

BARON BRISSE'S RECEIPTS. Veal a fa Marengo is one of the newest ideas in French cookery. The economist with little means, being unable to feast on the famous fricasee of chicken, on account of the ruinous terms of poultry at present, have substituted breast of veal, and well, magination is a fine thing !

Breast of Veal a la Marengo. - Cut neatly into three-inch squares the breast of veal; rinse the pieces in cold water, take them out and drain on a white cloth. Place on the fire a frying pan with a piece of butter, (the chicken fricasee should be made with oil,) chicken fricasee should be made with oil, let the butter fry, then add the piece of yeal, a few very thin alices of onion, a little minced ham, a little soup stock, salt and a little pepper. Fry the whole together and when the yeal and onions are cooked and of a fine color, add a little vinegar and serve. Those who wish a sauce may, when serve. Those who wish a sauce may, when the pieces of yeal are nearly cooked, dredge BATCHELOR'S HAIR DYE.

them with a little flour, fry a few moments longer, then add more soup, and serve after a short extra cooking.

Pumpkin Sauce.—Pare the pumpkin and cut it in large squares; set it to cook with very little water; stir and bruise it until it forms a paste, rather firm, and let the mass evaporate until it ceases to have a watery consistency. Melt some butter in a saucepan; turn the pumpkin into it; salt it a little and add plenty of sugar; let it summer some time, and put it in a dish, cover with powdered sugar, and with a red-hot shovel make a crust over the surface. The pumpkin diminishing a great deal in cooking, considerable quantity is needed to make a presentable plate.

Stew of Roast Goose with Remoulade crumbs, then boiled, are served with the following sauce: Chop parsley, young on-ions, head of garlic and mushrooms, if you have them; put all in a sauce pan, with a lump of butter and a little flour; stir the whole over the fire and moisten slightly best way is, after having cut them up, to ake a gravy, fry in it a moment a little breast of pork cut in dice, then the pieces

Fiannels, to Wash Them.—Flannels that are washed clean, in warm suds and rinsed in cold water, shaken out well, and pulled soft flannel. How to Wash Black and White Mourn ing Goods.-Wash them in lukewarm suds, then wring as dry as possible, and dry quickly. They must not be dampened to iron more than half an hour before the time. Camphor : Cerate. - Take one and a half ounces of spermaceti, half an ounce of white wax, and scrape into a little earthen pot; add six drachms of powdered camphor, and pour on the whole four tablespoonsfuls of the best olive oil- Place in a small tin pan of boiling water; when dissolved, stir it well. MISCELLANEOUS ITEMS. Practical analysis, in one instance, showed that the last cup of milk from a cow's udder contains sixteen times as much cream as the first cup. A cranberry patch in Centre Brook, Connecticut, produced last season, by actual measurement, one hundred and sixty barrels of fruit on an acre, or one barrel to each square rod, besides a large quantity which was not gathered and may be seen under the ice. The rental of this land is less than $2 per acre.

Many kinds of apples which are worthless at the East are succeeding well in Mis-Better sell stock now than be caught in early March with empty mows and a barnyard full of hungry cattle.

The total quantity of milk delivered in London by railway last year was 6,809,446 gallons, or above 120,000 gallons per week. Suel Foater says a whitewash of lime and tobacco will protect trees from rabbits; and a small amount of earth is an effectual barricade against mice.
The cranberry differs from all other small fruits. It must have muck to make the vines grow, and these require sand, in order to develop fruit for a series of years. In one of the girl's echools at Rochester, there is a teacher of gardening. The Iowa Agricultural College College takes young ladies, and there is to be a Professorship of Theory and practice of Butter-making.

The decline in the price of wool and the prevalence of food rot among sheep had caused a panic among Indiana and Ohio wool growers. Farmers are rapidly slaughtering their stocks. In Knox county, Ohio, 40,000 sheep have been killed within two months, and a proportionate reduction has occurred in other counties. This policy, of course, will diminish the yield of wool next spring.
